ANOTHER ACCIDENT

A large touring car, owned and operated by W. L. Cowles of 101 Newbury street, Boston, containing three of his friends, G. M. Muchmore and Walter Kuncie, both of Pembroke street, Boston, and J. Johnson of Wilmington, N. C., struck a tree on Commonwealth avenue Wednesday afternoon and turned turtle, throwing all the occupants to the ground.

Mr. Cowles received a broken arm and the other men slight injuries.

The party was going toward Boston, when the car skidded on the hot tar against the tree, directly in front of the home of Representative George H. Ellis. All the occupants were pinned under the car, but were quickly removed and taken to the Newton hospital, two in the ambulance and the other two in the auto of Chief Frederic M. Mitchell.

Mr. Cowles was able to leave the hospital within a short time. His car was demolished beyond repair and was towed to a nearby garage.

ODD FELLOWS FIELD DAY.

A strong committee is at work to make the I. O. F. field day to be held on Saturday, July 15, at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, the great success to which it is fully entitled. The athletic events are open to the members of the order, the Rebekahs and their families and include 25, 50, 75 and 100 yard dashes, 440 yards, 880 yards, one and two mile runs, peanut race, potato race, relay race, shot put, high jump, three-legged race, a tug of war and a game of baseball. Other attractions include dancing, band concert, prize drill and the degree of chivalry.

PUSHEE—WILSON.

The wedding of Miss Helen Gertrude Wilson and Mr. Frank James Pushee of Somerville, took place last Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Fred Wilson, 35 Pleasant street, Newton Centre. The ceremony was performed at 6.45 p. m. by Rev. Alton H. Robinson, pastor of the Unitarian church at Newton Centre and was attended by the immediate relatives, including four generations of the bride's family. The house was attractively decorated with ropes and festoons and clusters of daisies with bouquets of roses and carnations. The bride who was unattended wore white marquisette, heavily embroidered with bodice of Cluny lace. Her veil was fastened with white rosebuds and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies. A reception followed the ceremony until ten o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Pushee being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. C. Fred Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Pushee. The guests were presented by the ushers, Messrs. H. Lawrence Wilson, brother of the bride and who was also the best man, George T. Lane of Wollaston and Harry Harcourt of Wollaston. The receiving party stood in a bower of palms and bamboo trees. Miss Olive Herrick, a friend of the bride was at the piano. Mr. and Mrs. Pushee left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City and will be at home after September 1 at 14 Bowers avenue, W. Somerville.

BASEBALL.

The sailors from the U. S. S. Rhode Island met defeat for the second time this season at the hands of the Newton Catholic club nine Tuesday at West Newton common. The score was 8 to 1. Features were the playing and batting of Gaw and Ryan for the winners and Bennett and Emery for the losers.

THE WEATHER

In common with other places in this vicinity, Newton has suffered greatly with the intense heat, which beginning last Sunday has continued thruout the present week. No one who has lived thru the past few days will doubt the fact that all weather records for heat were broken, and it now seems as if there never had been or ever would be such a thing as cool weather, to say nothing of a January blizzard.

Newton has been rather free, however, from heat prostrations, the list being small when compared with other places, resulting in only one death.

Dora Roy, of 19 West street aged 17 years fell on the sidewalk on Chapel street, Tuesday and was taken home by the police.

John Dargon of 172 Chapel street was overcome at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Walnut street, Wednesday and taken to the Hospital where he died yesterday.

Officer John A. McKenzie was affected by the heat Wednesday and his son Willard, while going for a physician, was also overcome. They were both taken to the Hospital.

Edward H. Nugent of Gardner street, Newton, while on Pleasant street, Watertown, Wednesday afternoon, was so affected as to become unconscious and was taken to the Newton Hospital.

Harold March of Grasmere street was affected by the heat on Essex street, Boston, yesterday and treated at the Tufts Emergency Hospital.

City laborers were given Wednesday afternoon on account of the weather conditions.

One feature of the heated spell is the absence of canoes from the river. Under ordinary conditions this is the best time of year for the boat houses, but the sun's rays have been so intense as to practically prohibit the use of canoes during the day time.

SUNDAY AT NORUMBEGA.

The Boston Young Men's Christian association opened its third season of summer Sunday afternoon meetings this week at Norumbega Park, Auburndale. A large number of members were in attendance, including several thousands of residents of the surrounding cities and towns, who entered the park to escape the sweltering heat. A 25-minute Gospel address was delivered by Rev. A. A. Stockdale of Boston. Next Sunday the speaker will be Rev. L. A. Niles of Dorchester. Rev. C. A. Fulton of Roxbury will speak on July 16, Rev. Allan Hudson of Brockton on July 23, Rev. James A. Francis of Boston July 30, Rev. George H. Spencer of Boston on Aug 6, Rev. Joseph E. Nyhan of Brockton on Aug 13, Rev. Lewis C. Wright of Melrose on Aug 20 and Fred L. Willis of Worcester will deliver the final address of the season.

POLICE NOTES.

Ruling that both chauffeurs were operating their machines in a reckless manner, Judge Kennedy, in the Newton court Monday morning, ordered the discharge of Leslie Holmes, who was charged with reckless driving. The court proceedings were the result of a collision between two machines at West Newton on June 2. Holmes, who is a student at the Allen school, at West Newton, was driving a car containing Mrs. Everett S. Jones, wife of the headmaster of the school. He was crossing the bridge over the railroad tracks at Putnam street, West Newton. An automobile owned by J. F. Leonard of 20 Sylvan avenue, West Newton, was proceeding along Margin street, which runs at right angles to Putnam street and crosses that thoroughfare. The sides of the bridge cut off the view and Holmes' machine struck the other.

THE ELLIS MILK BILL

It is estimated that approximately 2000 young lives will be saved by the passage of the so-called Ellis bill. This does not include the reduction which it will produce in the deaths and sickness due to milk-borne epidemics among adults. Much has been done to reduce the general mortality, but very little to reduce the infant mortality until now. If the Senate passes the bill, as the House did, it will be the beginning of a new epoch in this respect, and Massachusetts may claim the credit of leading in another great humanitarian movement.

The local boards will be encouraged to appoint milk inspectors and inaugurate milk and dairy inspection. The State Milk Regulation Board will set the minimum standard of regulations but local powers are carefully preserved, and there is nothing in the bill to prevent cities like Springfield and Brockton, who already have well developed systems of inspection, from maintaining a higher standard than that insisted upon by the State as a whole. As the greater part of the State is now uninspected, obviously it will be impossible to establish as high a standard at the outset for the whole State as is now maintained in a few cities in which the work has been progressing for two or three years.

The constitutional difficulties, due to the interstate character of the milk business, have been avoided by requiring a permit of the dealer only and by authorizing the passage of a regulation providing that the milk of any producer inside or out of the State, whose dairy is not approved by the State Board of Health, shall not be sold by any dealer in the State.

Thus the Massachusetts producers are protected from the present unfair competition with uninspected out-of-the-State dairies.

The bill is the outcome of a long series of investigations. The Special Milk Committee of the Legislature of 1910, consisting of Chairman Walter B. Mellen, Clarence A. Warren, Charles M. Gardner, William B. Avery, James W. Bean, George H. Tinkham and John F. Meaney, found that "This work cannot be properly and economically done by the health officers of the several cities and towns. It should be done by some central authority, which would result in an efficient and uniform system of inspection being enforced."

The Special Recess Milk Committee, consisting of Chairman Charles M. Gardner, H. A. Parsons, George W. Trull, Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, and George H. Ellis, in the Report for 1911, said, "It is the finding of your committee, that while several cities and towns in Massachusetts have adopted systems for improving their milk supply, yet these are by no means general throughout the State," and that "milk inspection is primarily a health problem." The first three recommended a bill providing for State inspection under a new separate administrative board. Mr. Ellis and Dr. Rosenau, while agreeing with the other members in their general conclusions, felt that it would be dangerous to isolate the administration of milk health work from the other health work of the State, and that two administrative State health boards would only result in confusion and inefficiency, especially as the State Board of Health would have jurisdiction in case of epidemics in any event. Obviously, it would be futile to give the State Board of Health power over the effect and deny them jurisdiction over the cause. The work for the prevention of disease must be unified if results are to be obtained. It will be seen that the Ellis bill is a natural evolution, which is the result of a series of investigations accompanied by the strong dissatisfaction of the three millions or more of consumers, with existing conditions, expressed from time to time in the newspapers and elsewhere.

THE FOURTH OF JULY IN NEWTON

QUIETEST CELEBRATION IN THE CITY FOR MANY YEARS

Newton had a real "safe and sane" Fourth of July for the first time in its history. Whether or not this was due to the intense heat, we will leave to others to say, but not within years has there been anything like it in this city. The "night before" has usually been filled with explosions and other noises, with which impatient young America has shown its patriotic spirit. This year a walk thru Nonantum square between eight and nine o'clock, seemed as peaceful as midsummer quiet, altho the place was filled with people. There were absolutely no arrests for violation of the city ordinances, as Fourth of July misdemeanors are classed, and only a few fires were noted.

Newton Centre and Nonantum were the only villages with sufficient public spirit to celebrate and an account of the exercises of the day in those places will be found elsewhere.

The Brae Burn Country Club had various contests during the day and a fine exhibition of fireworks in the evening.

The program at Newton Centre included field sports on the playground in the morning, with the annual ball game between the married and single men in the afternoon. It is said that notwithstanding the heat, this was as scrappy and good a game as was ever played in Newton Centre. The single men won by a score of 10 to 3. The winning team was composed of Richardson, Walworth, Chamberlain, R. Forbush, Becker, B. Plympton, Ely, W. Plympton and Foote. The married men's lineup was Jones, Blaisdell, Emerson, Spalding, Cook, Beatey, Mumford, Harwood and McCoy.

There was an entertainment in the afternoon and the usual fireworks and band concert in the evening.

The field sports in the morning on the playground were slimly attended, the intense heat being too much for the spectators. The winners were as follows:

880 yard relay Won by Adams, Viles, Morton and Irving.

The entertainment in Bray Hall in the afternoon was given by Yarrick and Dudley Prescott and attracted about 300 persons, mostly children. The program included ledgerdemon, ventriloquism, funny songs and stories, a Punch and Judy show and character impersonations.

In the evening there were some unusually good fireworks, set off from the railroad side of Crystal Lake. The display was heightened by a generous use of red fire along the entire border of the lake and by 150 small floats which were sent off from the upper shore of the lake and were borne slowly across the water by the wind. Each had a 15 minute red torch upon it and made an odd and beautiful feature of the evening. The fireworks were excellent, the overhead work being particularly effective. The usual band concert was given previous to the fireworks.

The holiday was celebrated at Nonantum with a huge bonfire on Allison park at midnight under the auspices of the Nonantum Athletic Association. The program of the Nonantum Improvement association, under the direction of an efficient committee, headed by President James S. Cannon and composed of Alderman John W. Murphy, W. J. Doherty, T. D. Murphy, M. S. Perlmuter, Reuben Forknall, W. S. Bowen, Charles Murphy and William Hansen, was carried out at the Stearns school and playground. It consisted of a flag raising at 9.30 in the morning, little Mary Turner breaking out the flag and Elvina Boudrot reading the Declaration of Independence. This was followed by an interesting entertainment by LeRoy the magician for about an hour in the school hall. In the afternoon some interesting field sports were held and the married men beat the single men 16 to 2 in the annual ball game. Winners in the sports were as follows:

100 yard dash for boys, Charles Charlton first, William Dalton, second.

50 yard dash for boys, Arthur Boudrot, first, Eddie Champagne, second.

50 yard dash for girls, Mildred Charlton, first, Josephine Healy, second.

Shoe race, David Fried, first, Lawrence Lupo, second.

Wheelbarrow race, Fred Morrell, first, Lawrence Lupo, second.

Gathering race for boys, Fred Marchant, first, Albert Sivigny, second.

Seamstress race for a boy and a girl, Daniel Murphy and Gertrude Boughan.

Sack race, Arthur Boudrot, first, William Dalton, second.

Throwing ball for girls, Alice Blakeley, first, Josephine Healy, second.

The greased pig race caused considerable excitement, the win being claimed by at least six persons who had a hand in its capture, but the prize was awarded to Victoria Piselli.

In the evening there was a band concert and fireworks.

An Early Airship.

We are told by Peter Farley, who wrote as an eyewitness, that in August, 1853, the airship Eagle was officially advertised to sail from London with government dispatches and passengers for Paris and to establish direct communication between the capitals of Europe. This early type of airship was 100 feet long, fifty feet high and forty feet wide, and she lay in the dockyard of the Aeronautical society in Victoria road, near Kensington gardens, then quite a rural spot. Built to hold an abundant supply of gas, she was covered with oiled lawn and carried a frame seventy-five feet long and seven feet high, with a cabin secured by ropes to the balloon. An immense rudder and wings or fins on each side for purposes of propulsion completed her fittings. The deck was guarded by netting. After all this preparation and advertisement the Eagle never got beyond Victoria road, for Count Lennox and his assistants failed to provide the necessary motive power.—London Standard.

Carrying a Stretcher.

The bearers of a stretcher should be as near the same height as possible. If there is any difference the taller and stronger man should be at the head. A stretcher should be carried by the hands or suspended by straps from the shoulders. Never carry a stretcher when loaded upon the shoulders. It frightens the patient, and he might fall off very easily, especially if one of the bearers should stumble. The bearers should not keep step, but break step, the one in front starting off with his right foot and the one behind with his left. The injured should be carried feet first. In going up a hill or up stairs the head should be in front and the reverse in descending, except in case of a broken thigh or leg, when the feet should be first in going up and last in coming down to keep the weight of the body off the injured limb.—"First Aid to the Injured." Dr. H. H. Hartung, in National Magazine.

Coming In Out of the Wet.

There is an amusing story by Atheneus which suggests the possible origin of the phrase "He does not know enough to come in out of the wet." According to the entertaining grammarian referred to, a town in Greece under stress of evil circumstances borrowed money from a rich man, who took as security for the loan a mortgage on the handsome portico which surrounded the market place. He was not an ungenerous creditor, for when it rained he caused the town criers to announce that the citizens had permission to take refuge under the colonnade. Strangers visiting the town who failed to have the matter properly explained to them were so impressed by the extraordinary circumstances that they spread abroad the report that the people were so stupid that they had to be told when to come in out of the wet.

When a Dog Chokes.

Dogs frequently choke. A bone, a nail or a piece of tin gets in the throat, and there is great danger of death before the arrival of the surgeon. Many of them do die, but there is no reason for this, for it is easy, without the slightest danger of getting bitten, to put the hand in the mouth of a dog and to draw out or push down the obstruction that is choking it. A bandage—a handkerchief or towel will do—is passed between the teeth and over the upper jaw, and in a similar way another bandage is passed between the teeth and over the lower jaw. One person, holding the ends of these two bandages, keeps the dog's mouth wide open. A second person can then with perfect ease and safety put his fingers down the animal's throat and relieve it.

A Snake Story.

This story is told of the late Dr. Emil Reich. One day when traveling he lay down to rest in the shadow of a bush and fell asleep. He awoke with a start to find that night was coming on and that rain had begun to fall. Quickly snatching up his umbrella, he tried to open it and, finding it worked stiffly, he pressed the spring vigorously. Suddenly there was a sound of rippling and tearing and a snake fell to the ground split in two. The reptile had apparently swallowed the umbrella as far as it could!

Original Era of Good Feeling.

The phrase applied to the administration of James Monroe, "the era of good feeling," first appeared in a Boston newspaper, the Columbian Sentinel of July 10, 1817. From that time until the present hour the two administrations of Monroe—a period of eight years, 1817 to 1825—are referred to in the terms of the newspaper paragraph which so aptly expressed the public sentiment of the day.—Magazine of American History.

Equivocal.

Cholly Softboy—I suppose I looked very angry at the zoo today when that nasty Dick Dandy said when I stood by the big monkey's cage how much I was like it. Could I friend—You certainly looked beside yourself.—Exchange.

The Lesson.

He—Yes, it's very true, a man doesn't learn what happiness is until he's married. She—I'm glad you've discovered that at last. He—Yes, and when he's married it's too late.—Duffbarber.

No Sympathy.

"Here, waiter, there's a fly in my soup."

"Serves the brute right. He's been buzzin' round here all the mornin'!"—Life.

Life is no dream, but life is nothing without its great dreams.

Handling a Haddock.

"There is no better place than a fish market to pick up queer superstitions," said a restaurant proprietor. "The other day I held up a fine specimen of haddock. The dealer, who was an Italian, nearly choked on the bunch of Neapolitan explosives that rushed into his throat."

"Nevalre, no, nevalre take up haddock so," he said.

"How? I asked."

"By the head, so your fingers touch those dark spots on each side of the head," he said. "The curse fall on you if you do."

"Whose curse?" said I.

"St. Petalre's," said he. "St. Petalre gave the haddock those dark spots. They are his finger prints. He catch haddock just so in the sea of Gallies, and every haddock born since then has shown those same marks. Let go."

"And I did let go. Of course I did not believe it, but when I found that half the fish dealers in that market did believe I deemed it prudent to handle haddock by the body or tail."

New York Sun.

A Maniac's Poem.

Probably the mass of prison poetry which has been written on stools and bedposts and scratched on prison walls far exceeds that which has found expression on paper, and many a "mute, inglorious Milton" has begun and finished his poetical career with these "lost to sight" productions. There is in existence a short poem, said to have been scratched by a maniac on the wall of his cell, which runs thus:

Could I with ink the ocean fill,
Were all the world of parchment made,
Were every reed on earth a quill,
And every man a scribe by trade,
To write the love of God alone
Would drain that ocean dry;
Nor could the scroll contain the whole,
Though stretched from sky to sky.

The authenticity of this being the work of a maniac has often been questioned because of the beauty of its expression and its sound reason, but the story stands.—London Saturday Review.

Bird Stories.

A German scientific journal published in 1897 a story to the effect that a golden eagle shot in that year at Esseg, Slavonia, was found to have a ring about its neck engraved on which were the arms of a Slavonian family and the date 1468.

In 1793 the Gentleman's Magazine told about a hawk, captured when flying in the vicinity of the Cape of Good Hope and taken by an Indian ship to England, which wore a gold collar inscribed:

"This goodie hawk doth belong to his Most Excellent Majesty James, King of England, A. D. 1050."

If this bird really escaped from England in the reign of James, 183 years elapsed between its escape and its recapture, and it had flown a distance of 6,500 miles away from its former owner.

A Boy Once Himself.

The principal of a village school in Kansas one afternoon detected a boy cutting the letters of his name in the desk in front of him. As the novels would put it the principal rushed to the spot, angrily put forth his hand intending to grasp the boy by the collar, when he, and also behold, close by the newly formed letters were the initials of the principal's own name written by himself when he was a pupil in the same school. His grasp upon the boy's collar loosened itself, and he returned to his desk a sadder and a wiser teacher. That principal is today judge of an important court in one of the greatest cities of the world. We often wonder whether or not in the administration of justice the judge ever thinks of the incident in the village school.—Western School Journal.

Parental Tactics.

A worried parent is sometimes obliged to do something like this:

"Pa, what is a transcendentalist?"

"Have you chained up the dog as I told you?"

"Not yet, pa."

"Well, do that, and when you come back I will tell you what a transcendentalist is."

While Bobby was gone his astute parent dug the needed information out of a dictionary.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Beethoven's Fits of Rage.

Beethoven's behavior was often atrocious. In giving lessons to young ladies he would sometimes tear the music to pieces and scatter it about the floor or even smash the furniture. Once when playing in company there was some interruption. "I play no longer for such hogs!" he cried and left the piano. He once called Prince Lobkowitz an ass because a bassoon player happened to be absent.—Dole's "Famous Composers."

Queer Human Nature.

"Man's a funny proposition!"

"What now?"

"When he reads a medical book he fancies he has every disease described, but let him read the work of a moralist and all the faults pointed out he sees not in himself, but in his neighbor."—Boston Transcript.

Stunted Maples.

Stunted maple trees, grown in mountainous regions of eastern Austria, where the winters are long and severe and the snowfalls considerable, yield excellent wood for the manufacture of violins.

How They Would Sound.

Mrs. Galey (musingly)—Suppose I should publish your love letters?

Mr. Galey—Why not simply make a public acknowledgment that you married an idiot?

OPPORTUNITY.

They do me wrong who say I come no more

When once I knock and fail to find you in;

For every day I stand outside your door
And bid you wake and rise to fight and win.

Wait not for precious chances passed away,

Weep not for golden ages on the wane,

Each night I burn the records of the day,

At sunrise every soul is born again.
Laugh like a boy at splendors that have sped,

To vanished joys be blind and deaf and dumb,

My judgments seal the dead past with its dead,

But never bind a moment yet to come.
Though deep in mire, writing not your hands and weep,

I lend my arm to all who say, "I can,"

No shamefaced outcast ever sank so deep

But he might rise and be again a man.
—Walter Malone.

Murat's Daring in Battle.

I have read that my grandfather's three distinguishing characteristics were high chivalric courage, great skill as a general and almost unparalleled coolness in the hour of danger. His form was tall, his tread like that of a king, his face strikingly noble, while his piercing glance few men could bear. He had heavy black whiskers and long black locks, which contrasted singularly with his fiery blue eyes. He usually wore a three cornered hat with a magnificent white plume of ostrich feathers. This plume, with many other relics, is now in the possession of my eldest brother, Prince Murat. My grandfather's dazzling exterior made him a mark for the enemy's bullets. The wonder is that, being so conspicuous, he was never shot down and was rarely wounded. I have read that at the battle of Aboukir he charged with his cavalry straight through the Turkish ranks, driving column after column into the sea.—Princess Murat's Memoirs.

Passed the Bottle Too Quickly.

Will Low, the painter, told this story of the Latin quarter days of Robert Louis Stevenson. Low and Stevenson were great friends in their youth. Their friendship indeed continued up to the time of the writer's death.

"Louis," said the artist, "was no less diplomatic than brave. He could be fiery, and he could also be gracious and pacific. One night, I remember, we sat in a garden in Montmartre. The red wine had been flowing pretty freely, and one member of our party got heated and aggressive. Finally some one said a thing that this fighting chap disliked. As soon as the words were spoken he grabbed up a bottle and hurled it at the other's head. It was a strong, true shot and would have hit the mark had not Stevenson sprung to his feet and caught the missile.

"Tut, tut, George," he said to the thrower—"tut, tut! If the bottle is passed so quickly none of us will be able to stand out the evening."

Poor Thackeray.

Sir William Howard Russell's diary for April 1852, has this amusing glimpse of Thackeray:

"The sportsmen among whom I had the honor to be numbered were of the Winkle order. Thackeray, Dickens, John Beech, Jerrold, Lemon, Ibbotson, were invited, and carriages were reserved to Watford. As we were starting a written excuse was brought from Dickens to be conveyed to Mrs. X. by Thackeray. The party drove up to the house, and after compliments Thackeray delivered the billet. The effect was unpleasant. Mrs. X. fled along the hall, and the guests heard her calling to the cook: 'Martin, don't roast the ortolans; Mr. Dickens isn't coming.'

"Thackeray said he never felt so small. There's a test of popularity for you! No ortolans for Penderel!"

Hiring a Mother-in-law.

In Marseilles the salary of a mother-in-law hired to fill the position for a few hours is quoted at 1s. 6d. It was a case of separation of the girl's parents. Custom decreed that the mother-in-law must be present at the marriage ceremony, so the obliging matron agreed to go to give her consent on condition that a carriage be sent for her, and if not, said she, she would stay at home. The hour for the wedding came, but the carriage did not, so the mamma stayed at home. The bridegroom in desperation when she did not appear ran out into the street and hunted up a promising looking woman, who agreed to come and act mother for the sum named. So she gave consent and blessing to the daughter whom she had never seen in her life before.—Buffalo Express.

The Nile or the Sky?

The barge sped like an arrow over the water, leaving behind it a silver wake that soon was effaced. A few frothy bubbles breaking on the surface alone testified to the passage of the craft, already out of sight. The river banks, yellow and salmon colored, unrolled rapidly like papyrus bands between the double azure of the heavens and the water, these so alike in tone that the thin tongue of earth which separated them seemed a causeway built across an immense lake and made it difficult to decide whether the Nile reflected the sky or the sky reflected the Nile.—"One of Cleopatra's Nights," by Theophile Gautier.

Confirmed His Suspicion.

Ben Nathan, the English humorist, on returning home from a visit to this country was expatiating to a friend upon the glories of California. After listening patiently the friend said: "But there must be some disadvantages in living there?"

"No," said Mr. Nathan, "it is a perfectly ideal place. For any man who will work."

"Ah," broke in the friend, "I knew there were some disadvantages!"

Eyes of the Giraffe.

The giraffe, which is a very timid animal, is approached with the utmost difficulty on account of its eyes being so placed that it can see as well behind as in front. When approached this same faculty enables it to direct with great precision the rapid storm of kicks with which it defends itself.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST.

Why Tires are Affected by Damp.
The action of dampness on the rubber part of an automobile tire is insignificant but its effect on the canvas is serious.

It is an unquestioned fact that cotton thread and all other vegetable fibres of which cellulose is the basis, such as flax, jute and hemp offer a remarkable resistance to heat and temporary humidity, those atmospheric agents which are responsible for the changes in so many organic substances.

Following this line of research some experiments were made recently at one of the Michelin laboratories during which a piece of cotton fabric was exposed to the action of sun and rain for a month in the open air. While this fabric did not lose more than two percent of its initial strength, a piece of calico after being wet through and dried in front of a fire more than 20 times lost only three percent.

When the fabric was left in a moist atmosphere, such as on the floor of a damp cellar, for example, it was not long before spots and stains made their appearance. Such stains denoted the presence of minute destructive growths or tiny mushroom organisms, the action of which reduced the fabric to mould. The same is true of wall paper hung in a damp room. Eventually the paper will fall from the walls in the form of mould and dust.

The application of these experiments to automobile tires is easily followed. Sometimes an envelope will blow out suddenly, perhaps when the car is being used for the first time in the spring. The cause is weakness resulting from the decay of the canvas in the envelope. In most cases this weakness is local, being limited to places where water has been allowed to penetrate. The position of such defective places is easy to locate by the stains left by moisture.

In order to judge of the seriousness of the damage, it must be determined whether the canvas of the tread only has been affected in which case the tire can be retreaded and restored to thoroughly serviceable condition. If the body canvas is affected as well, it becomes necessary to have the envelope completely rebuilt.

There is no way whereby this canvas deterioration caused by dampness can be prevented other than by storing tires in cool places that are absolutely dry.

The "Book of Hibendum" issued free by the Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey, contains innumerable valuable suggestions relative to the care of tires.

Masks of the Marquesans.

The Marquesans of a generation ago were the most completely and artistically tattooed people in the Pacific, and the practice of tattooing is carried on among them to a certain extent today. The really fine pieces of work, however, such as the famous right leg of the late Queen Vaekehu of Nukahiva, are confined entirely to the very old, and, what with wrinkles, deformities and the wear and tear of time, these have lost most of their original sharpness of color and outline. None of the new generation appears to have the fortitude to endure the exquisite pain incident to having a whole limb picked out in a lacework of geometric design or the face barred and circled like a coarse spider's web. Women are rarely tattooed at all now, and most of the young men are satisfied with a broad band of solid black, not unlike a highwayman's mask, which reaches across the face from ear to ear, giving to their never overmild looking countenances an expression of amazing ferocity.—Lewis R. Freeman in New York Tribune.

His Long Suit.

He had written essays critical and digests analytical. His articles political were very widely read. He'd produced some tales of mystery, of travel, love and history; his scientific treatises light o'er the land had shed. He wrote about photography, geography, stenography; he'd finished a biography of some distinguished man. His views upon geometry and mystic trigonometry were everywhere declared to be on the progressive plan. His tracts on modern sciences, mechanical appliances, hydraulics, steam and railroads were indolently received. His writings on morality were of superior quality—were publicly commended, if they weren't quite believed. His verses so poetical, abstruse and theoretical, delighted those who patronize the poets as a fad, but the manuscript he thought the best, the one that money brought the best, was just a simple, wisely worded, big newspaper ad.—News-Perdorm.

Little Boy Grizzly.

Enos A. Mills, writing of his adventures with a pet bear known as Little Boy Grizzly, says: "He and I had a few foot races, and usually, in order to give me a better chance, we ran downhill. In a 200 yard dash he usually paused three or four times and waited for me to catch up, and I was not a slow biped either. The grizzly, though apparently awkward and lumberly, is one of the most agile of beasts. I constantly marveled at Grizzly's lightness of touch or the deftness of movement of his forepaws. With but one claw touching it he could slide a coin back and forth on the floor more rapidly and lightly than I could. He would slide an eggshell swiftly along without breaking it. Yet by using one paw he would without effort overturn rocks that were heavier than himself."—Suburban Life.

Postal Clerks' Pay in Russia.

The remuneration of postal clerks in Russia includes emoluments which do not appear in the form of money. They are furnished quarters, heat and light, and in addition allowances for uniforms as well as medical attendance and medicine for themselves and their families. In cities like Moscow a large hospital is maintained for the convenience of postal clerks and carriers. Their children are admitted to the schools free of charge, which in Russia is quite an item of expense, especially in preparatory schools for colleges, to which the children of the titled and the wealthy only are admitted. The pay of clerks and carriers ranges from $12.50 to $18 per month. They may, moreover, receive gratuities from those to whom they deliver mail.

Police Methods in Berlin.

Berlin is the most strictly governed city in the world, and a stranger will be continually violating the ordinances and regulations without being conscious of his offenses. But the penalties are not severe, and the policeman who arrests you is prepared to impose the fine on the spot instead of calling a patrol wagon and taking you to the police station. You pay him a few marks, for which he gives you a receipt, and within twenty-four hours you must appear before the captain in charge of that precinct and turn in the receipt as a check upon the policeman who has arrested you.

An Alternative.

"Now, then," said the professor of logic, "give us an idea of your knowledge of the question in plain words." "Why—er—I'm afraid," stammered the student, "that I can't just exactly—"

"Perhaps, then, you may give us an idea of your ignorance of it in any old words."—Philadelphia Press.

He Explains.

"Why do they call Washington the city of magnificent distances?" "Because," answered the office seeker, "it is such a long way between what you go after and what you get."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Sandy and the Glass.

Tourist, referring to the barometer: "I see the glass is going up again, Sandy. Sandy—Dad ye tell me that? A body will soon be able to afford a dram at all!"—Dundee Advertiser.

Nothing New.

Wife—Don't you like my new hat, dearest? Husband—Yes, it's all right. Wife—Well, I bought it on your account, dear. Husband—Yes, you usually do!

One bad example spoils a good many excellent precepts.

Tear and Gaze.

Frequently the inquiry is made as to why the spelling czar, to designate the emperor of all the Russians, should be preferred to czar. The most natural and obvious answer is that the spelling indicates the Russian pronunciation of the word, which czar does not. The title comes from an old Slavonic word, which some authorities are agreed is not derived from the Latin caesar, but there are authorities who hold that its ultimate derivation is from the Roman. The origin of the common spelling is supposed to be the writings of Herberstein, about 1550. The letter "c" in Roman-Slavonic has the sound of "ts." The letter was copied, but the sound was not. The letter "z" never belonged in the word. The spelling czar is now regarded by many as old fashioned. With some Germans the spelling is zar, which is pronounced tsar. Many of the French have adopted tsar as the spelling, and that form is increasing in English. The London Times, a most careful authority, employs it, and so does the Encyclopedia Britannica in its supplementary volumes.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Green Constable.

A new constable on duty in a provincial town handed to a sergeant a shilling which he said he had found. The man with the three stripes told him he was quite right in acting as he had done. Proceeding on his round, the sergeant met a brother sergeant and, with a grin, told him the tale of the shilling. They both agreed the new recruit was very green, and at the conclusion of their duties they went to the nearest inn, and the possessor of the coin called for two drinks. On receiving them he threw down the shilling to pay for them, but the landlord refused it, saying it was a bad one. The sergeant, notoriously mean, had to supply the requisite amount out of his own pocket and also to put up with the laugh against himself. On his telling the constable his find was a bad one the man answered: "Yes, of course it was. Do you think I would have been silly enough to give it to you if it hadn't been?"—Pearson's.

An Honor to Allison.

"Do you know," inquired Wilbur Reaser, the New York portrait painter, "that when my painting of Senator Allison was hung in the lobby of the senate the precedent of forty years was broken?"

Surprise being expressed, Mr. Reaser explained: "It is a fact that since the beginning of constitutional government the senate had bought only nine portraits for the lobby. The first was Washington's and the eighth was Charles Sumner's. For almost forty years nobody was considered worthy to follow in the distinguished line. It was generally thought that no other portrait would ever be added to the group, but when Senator Allison died, after serving longer in the senate than any other man in the history of the government, the rule was broken, and his picture became the ninth."—Washington Times.

German Bureaucracy.

A good story is going the rounds of the French newspapers illustrating the beauties of bureaucratic government in Germany. We are told that in the postoffice department if a clerk wishes a new pencil he has to hand in the stump of the one that has become too short to work with. In the particular instance cited a clerk received his new pencil without returning the end. Before the omission was discovered the clerk was transferred to another office. Just after he had commenced his duties at his new post he received an official intimation that he had neglected to hand in his pencil end. By this time it had disappeared, but to prevent bother the clerk purchased a new pencil, cut off a piece about the length of the missing bit and dispatched it to the stationery department.

Criticizing Dad.

"An old man in Missouri tried to commit suicide by hanging himself with a blind bride," said Champ Clark. "His son cut him down just in time."

"When the son cut him down and brought him to the old man complained feebly: "It ain't right, Henry; you've kept your old father out of heaven."

"You'd cut a fine figure in heaven looking through a blind bride, wouldn't you?" retorted the son."

Deceitful Man.

"Didn't you think that was a beautiful girl with me today, Arthur?" "What girl, my dearest?"

"Why, she was with me when you met us in front of the church." "Was there a girl there, dear? I didn't notice. I was looking at you." And then she loved him all the more.

She Agreed.

Spinks—What made him so mad? Winks—He told his wife she had no judgment, and she just looked him over critically from head to foot and said she was beginning to realize it.

Knows Better Now.

Teacher—Tommy, you should have known better than to fight with that Williams boy. Tommy—I know, ma'am, but I thought I could lick him.—Hearth and Home.

Gave Her Proof.

"Do you believe, sir, that the dead ever walk after death?" "No doubt of it, ma'am. I have heard the dead march."

It is a misfortune to have to maneuver one's heart as a general maneuvers his army.—Alexander Smith.

One of the most important features will be Edwin Holt & Co. in one of the greatest George Ade comedies ever written, called "The Mayor and the Manicure." Ethel MacDonough, who became famous as the drummer girl of the Fadette's orchestra and later as the Divine Myrna, will be seen in an entirely new specialty in which she will introduce drumming, songs and some novel bathing effects. Especially engaged for this week is Bert Fitzgerald, the singing monologist, who made one of the biggest hits of the year when he appeared at this house a few months ago. In fact, so great was his success that a return engagement was immediately booked and this was the first week available. Other features will be Patty & Desparado, the wonderful upside-down men of Ringling Brothers Circus; the Majestic Musical Four; the Field Brothers, and Rembrandt, a cartoonist who introduces something new.

In the dark there is no such a thing as color. The reddest dress is just the same color as a pure white tablecloth when both are placed in a dark closet. If you would understand this assume the presence of a light wave motion in the ether. The color of light depends upon the length of these waves. The light waves producing the colors in the blue end of the spectrum are very short compared with those that produce the colors near the red end. The light source that we know as red gives off only waves of a length to produce that particular color. A body appears red because its surface absorbs all the other waves and reflects the red waves back into the eye. If an attempt is made to light a blue body with red light it will fail, because the blue body is capable of reflecting only the short waves producing the blue, and since the red source produces none of these there will be no reflection and the body will appear black. A thing looks black when it is capable of absorbing all the colors at once.—St. Louis Republic.

Improving the Book of Job.
I remember the relief with which, after long feeling the sway of Franklin's imperturbable common sense, I came upon a project of his for a new version of the book of Job to replace the old version, the style of which, says Franklin, has become obsolete and hence less agreeable. "I give," he continues, "a few verses which may serve as a sample of the kind of version I would recommend."
We all recollect the famous verse in our translation, "Then Satan answered the Lord and said, Doth Job fear God for naught?" Franklin makes this, "Does your majesty imagine that Job's good conduct is the effect of mere personal attachment and affection?"

I well remember how, when I first read that, I drew a deep breath of relief and said to myself, "After all, there is a stretch of humanity beyond Franklin's victorious good sense."—Matthew Arnold's "Culture and Anarchy."

An Awful Experience.
A native diver descended into the water to see whether one of the piers, then in course of construction, had set. While he was engaged in this work a great iron cylinder subsided a little, crushing his hand between it and the masonry. When, on a signal being given, another diver came down he found his unfortunate comrade imprisoned under water without hope of escape. After a few moments of mute despair and harrowing uncertainty a speechless decision was arrived at, and the newcomer proceeded with chisel and hammer to hack off his unhappy companion's hand at the wrist. The prisoner was thus liberated, but died soon after reaching the surface from the shock. Never, I think, has an ophthalmic spectacle of hopeless human suffering.—"Travels in India."

Justifiable Protest.
"My wife is one of the unluckiest persons I know," began a Cedar avenue man, who tells long stories about his household affairs.

"She sure is," agreed the victim of the conversation fervently. But his mild sarcasm was lost.

"She was hit by a street car recently," pursued the narrator, "and got a broken arm. That's the fourth time in less than a year that something has happened to her. When they brought her to her senses this time I leaned over her sympathetically. 'Better, my dear?' says I. 'It ain't fair,' she yells. 'What ain't fair?' I ask gently. 'Why,' she groans, 'you're the one that carries all the accident insurance in this family, and I'm the one that always gets hurt. It ain't fair!'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Kangaroo's Kick.
When a big "old man" kangaroo stiffens his tail and converts it into a sort of revolving pivot bearing the whole weight of his body, leaving his tremendously powerful legs free for attack and defense, everybody who does not want to be ripped up or thrown in a heap for a considerable distance will give the marsupial a wide berth. Only those who have seen the full grown kangaroo in his native Australian bush with his back to a tree, scattering dogs, bleeding and torn, right and left, can form any adequate idea of the prodigious strength the animal is capable of exerting when he finds himself in a tight corner.

The Old Man's Opinion.
Mr. Scripps—I asked your daughter a very important question last night, and she referred me to you.

Old Gentleman—If I'm! What did you ask her?

"I asked her if she'd marry me."

"Well, she won't."

"Eh? Has she said so?"

"No, but from what I know of the girl I don't believe she would have bothered herself about me if she had really wanted you."—New York Weekly.

The autos after being repaired were able to resume their travel.

"Weep and you're called a baby. Laugh and you're called a fool. Yield and you're called a coward. Stand and you're called a mule. Smile and they call you silly. Frown and they'll call you gruff. Put on a front like a millionaire. And some one calls your bluff."

The action of the city government in inviting an investigation of our fire department by one of the National bodies of Underwriters is a step in the direction of obtaining the utmost efficiency in this direction. Few persons realize that our citizens probably pay something like $250,000 annually to the fire insurance companies in the way of premiums and that our fire losses average about $50,000 per year. In addition to the insurance premiums, it costs over $60,000 a year to maintain our fire department. With an investigation made by experts, compliance with their recommendations may give us better insurance rates and thereby benefit every householder in the city.

The authority granted Mayor Hatfield to sell the old armory property should be exercised just as soon as His Honor finds a purchaser with the price. The primary mistake was made several years ago by the city in locating the police station at this point instead of the fire station. A police station should be near important centres of business, while a fire station should be so located as to be able to furnish the best and quickest service. The old armory site would be ideal for a fire station, but if it is not to be used for this purpose, it is far the best policy to sell it.

Representative Bothfeld's vote against compulsory electrification of steam railroads, was not founded on an opposition to that great improvement. Mr. Bothfeld simply agreed with the majority of the railroad and rapid transit commission, which favored electrification in another and probably more satisfactory manner than the resolve which was passed by the House and to which Mr. Bothfeld was opposed.

If the hot wave has caused any of us to realize, even but a little, how the poorer classes must have suffered without our modern aids to hot weather comfort, it should loosen our purse strings and give the splendid charity of the Floating Hospital, a wider scope, and lend increased aid to the Country Week organizations of our larger cities.

A public sanitary convenience in Nonantum Square is still a necessity notwithstanding the inexcusable delay of the Newton aldermen to realize that important fact. The personal whims of a few persons who may find themselves obliged to pass by such a structure ought not to block its immediate consideration and erection.

Work on improving the surface of Nonantum Square awaits the laying of underground conduits by the Edison Electric Co.

Even coal was affected by the high temperature this week and rose 25 cents per ton in price.

PHELPS—MANSFIELD.

Miss Helen Alfreda Mansfield and Dr. Joseph Royal Phelps, Asst. Surgeon, U. S. N., were married last Saturday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. H. Mansfield, at 40 Columbus street, Newton Highlands. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Albert N. Slattery, rector of St. Paul's church. Miss Agnes May Phelps of West Newton was maid of honor and Dr. Glenmore F. Clark, assistant surgeon, U. S. N., was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony.

SCHOOL BOY GOLF.

The Greater Boston Interscholastic golf tournament which has been in progress all this week on the Woodland links has attracted considerable attention, notwithstanding the terrific heat. Newton High School qualified five men in the preliminary round, with Esmond Rice, Orville Forte, Thornton C. Pray, R. D. Lyons and Parker Schofield. Rice, Schofield and Forte were put out of the running in the first round. Pray in the second round and Lyons in the semi-finals. For the Presidents cup, Forte was a place in the finals, to be run off today.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

The principal event of the week was the election of a new state auditor to succeed the late Henry Turner, who has held the office for the past ten years. The point of interest was the fact that it was not necessary in this instance to enforce an open ballot, the popularity of the Republican nominee, Senator John E. White of Tisbury, being sufficient to run the risk of a secret ballot. It is also interesting to note that this is the second instance of the election of a state officer by the present Legislature, this method of electing ad interim officials, having been seldom exercised in the past.

The holiday was also an excuse for the General Court to cease from its labors for a few days, Wednesday being the first legislative day of the week. Governor Foss has sent in his 69th message and it contains the usual lecture to the members of the Legislature to get busy on the Governor's pet measures. He now wishes the entire penal system of the state investigated. If left alone, however, the Governor will pardon every criminal in the state, so there can be no harm in delaying this work, until after the hot weather, at any rate.

The proposition to connect the New Haven and the Boston & Maine railroads by a tunnel, with incidental, but important conditions as to electrification on parts of both roads, which was ruled out by Speaker Walker last week, on account of being broader than the scope of the original petition, was recommittees to the joint committees, and they have decided to request reference to the next General Court. Governor Foss can revive the matter by sending in a communication on the subject, if he wishes, and it would seem as if this would be a desirable course to pursue, as the scheme is an important one.

Governor Foss is still quoted as opposed to the consolidation bill of the West End and the Boston Elevated with a larger dividend that 7 per cent, and he will have a strong public support in that position. The West End stockholders who are holding out for a larger rate had better remember the fable of the man who killed the golden goose. There is precious little sympathy with the West End company and a strong public liking for the Boston Elevated Company and if a decision is forced to be made, it won't be the latter company which will receive the worst end of the bargain.

The workmen's compensation bill has been favorably reported by the House Ways and Means committee, which favors the bill presented by two members of the Commission, of which ex-representative James A. Lowell of Chestnut hill was chairman. Mr. Lowell's bill has been lost in the legislative shuffle.

The House has passed the bill to increase the salaries of its members from $750 to $1000 beginning with the next session of the General Court.

Adjournment may be reached on July 22 and then again on May 10.

J. C. BRIMBLECOM.

NORUMBEGA PARK.

Although Boston and vicinity has been having the hottest weather in its history those who are accustomed to visiting Norumbega Park, with its plentiful natural shade, its generally cool woodland appearance and its refreshing breezes from the Charles River, have known how to escape it easily. All that was necessary was to jump on to a trolley bearing the flag marked "N," cool off completely before reaching the park, and then let the park do the rest. Norumbega is on a hill which catches every breeze that blows, and as the Charles River winds about it so that it is almost entirely surrounded by water those breezes are grateful zephyrs from the river.

The effect of coolness is further heightened by the grape arbor effect in the cafe where one may dine as though in a summer garden. And as for the magnificent covered open air theatre, the conditions for keeping thoroughly cool and comfortable are ideal. The program of vaudeville offered for the coming week promises to prove another record breaker in popularity. A leading feature will be the La Petite Emille Bicycle Troupe, consisting of one man and three women. The act is said to be most brilliantly costumed as a finishing touch to the really wonderful work they do on wheels of all sorts. Dinehart and Heritage will be seen in one of those refined comedy sketches which Norumbega Park patrons like so well. Another novelty in the way of a vaudeville act will be that of Yeager and Kemp, the bumpy bumpy acrobats. Their specialty is entirely unlike anything ever offered in vaudeville before. There will be several other acts of equal merit as well as the new series of moving pictures.

Few men realize that their importance must depend on their exportance. About the only things some men can hold on to are their opinions, and they aren't worth it. Most men who have the opportunity of buying something for a song soon find they cannot sing. Auto means to go alone, therefore a feline that prowls in the dark is an autocrat.

Buried in Secret.

Ten ancient kings were buried in secret. Attila, king of the Huns, after his siege of Rome, died in Hungary A. D. 453. His soldiers, desirous of giving their great leader a right royal burial, inclosed his body first in a casket of gold, this in one of silver and this in one of lead, and transported it into a desert. There slaves were selected, and under the direction of men who were sworn to secrecy they dug the grave of the dead monarch. When this was accomplished no traces of the spot were left. The slaves were all cruelly slain.

Alaric, king of the Goths, the celebrated conqueror of Rome, died when with his army at Cozenza, south Italy. His men turned the course of a river, interred the body of their sovereign, with much treasure, in its bed and restored the stream to its channel.

No man has ever lighted on the resting place of either of these kings, who in this respect resemble Moses, of whom it is written, "No man knoweth of his sepulcher unto this day."

Died From Bad Writing.

German handwriting attains a degree of illegibility unknown in Latin script. A tragic instance of this fact was afforded by the death of Johann Bacher, an Austrian musician of the last century. Bacher spent most of his leisure for fifteen years in compiling a history of the Viennese opera. When the manuscript was completed he submitted it to the Imperial academy, which had promised to publish it. In three months it was returned with a statement that no member of the academy could decipher it. Bacher then sought to have it copied, but no copyist capable of deciphering it was to be found. As a last resource he determined to dictate his work to an amanuensis only to discover that the greater part of the manuscript was illegible even to himself. The thought of his wasted years of labor unbathed his brain, and in a fit of depression he committed suicide.

Going Back a Long Way.

Pick up any peevish book and you will find it bristling with ancestral names whose presence is much more difficult to explain than that of the fly in the amber. And as you descend in the social scale the fictions multiply—from the pedigrees of the landed gentry to the family trees proudly cherished in hundreds of middle class homes. But these lineages, aspiring as they are, are of mushroom growth compared with many that are claimed with seeming honesty. At Mostyn hall you may see a vellum roll, seven yards long, headed by no less famous an ancestor than "Adam, son of God." Another pedigree at the college of heralds starts thus modestly with Adam and the garden of Eden, and Wales has many a family tree which traces descent with unerring hand from the same remote origin.

What Became of the Trousers.

Of Judge Parry's many stories of the Manchester county court that about the comedy of a man's Sunday trousers is one of the best. In the plaintiff's box was a woman, in the defendant's an elderly clerk. The plaintiff stated her case: "I lent you mon's missis my mon's Sunday trousers to pay 'is rent with, an' I want 'em back." The defendant at first replied, "There's nowt in it at all." Pressed for a more definite reply, he scowled at the judge and protested, "Why, the 'ole street knows all about them trousers." But Judge Parry was not the "ole street," and he patiently encouraged the defendant to talk until he got the explanation. "Why, you woman 'un my missis drank them Sunday trousers."—Westminster Gazette.

Catching Cuttlefish.

Cuttlefish require little handling. The bait, which consists of a rough chunk of fish fastened to a hook or even tied to a string, is not dropped over the side to be swallowed, but to excite the gustatory organs of the cuttle and to be slowly pulled up until those mollusks have reached the surface in a vain attempt to embrace it with their long arms. Then in a moment a staff is plunged into the leathery mantle of the would be diner, and the creature is unceremoniously flung into the boat.

His Qualifications.

Writing to the leader of a string orchestra, an applicant for a position was requested to state his qualifications. Complaining by mail, he said, among other things:

Yours reud. I can play the fiddle and some on trombone, also slyffiano. Have played foot at parties, but prefer pickles.

Respt., O. M.
P. S.—Have taken twelve lessons on the guitar. Would be willing to teach myself the cornet. Terms, union rules.

Respt., O. M.

—New York Press.

A Double Barreled Grievance.

"What is Smith's grievance against the railway company?"
"He has two grievances. One of them is that some of the trains don't stop at his station and the other that after he gets in the trains they lose due by stopping at other stations!"—London Telegraph.

Helping the Diagnosis.

Doctor—My dear lady, you are in perfect health. I can't find a thing the matter with you. Patient—I wish you'd try again, doctor. I do so want to go away to recuperate.—Century.

Candor.

Shopper—Can I hang this paper on myself? Salesman—Yes, sir, but it would really look better on the wall.—Harper's Bazar.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The quaint figure of Hiram Perkins gives "Mary Jane's Pa." Its comedy, its emotion and its farce. Hiram Perkins is Mary Jane's pa himself, and just before her birth he betakes himself to fresh fields and pastures new, not returning home to the bosom of his family till after many years. During that period his wife has become a power in the Indiana town where she lives and she has no use for Hiram except as a household drudge. He becomes cook, general servant and man of all work in the Perkins household and the humor that arises out of his peculiar situation, his good nature and determination to make the best of everything and to atone for his folly in deserting his wife years ago gives the play a continuous comic action and dialogue that has made it extremely popular.

When "Mary Jane's Pa" was first produced the title role was played by Henry E. Dixey. Later it was assumed by Max Figman, and now in Mr. Craig's production at the Castle Square it will find no less efficient a representative in Donaki Meek, whose skill as a comedian is unquestioned. Mary Jane herself will be played by Henrietta McDonnell, who has been so constantly associated with boy's parts at the Castle Square that her appearance in feminine garb will be a surprise and a novelty. The rest of the cast will include Gertrude Bingley, Mabel Colcord, W. P. Carleton, and the entire strength of Mr. Craig's stock company.

JAMES T. MOORE DEAD.

Mr. Moore was born in Sudbury 78 years ago. He was a member of the firm of Johnson, Rust & Co of Boston for many years, later entering business for himself. He retired from business about 30 years ago. He is survived by a wife and two daughters. The funeral will be held from his home, 40 Park street, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

UTOPIA

To every man of every creed There comes a sweet Utopian dream: He sees a land where not a weed May ever grow, where every stream Makes music as it winds along. Where all the breezes blow in tune, Where all is fair and life a song, Where all the blissful year is June.

There fragrant roses ever bloom, And everywhere contentment spreads; The nights are robbed of all their gloom;

The sun a genial radiance sheds; There all things are superbly planned, The prospects all are fair and fair; Each man has dreams of such a land, With him enthroned as master there.

—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

Making a Home Run.

Augie Moran, ex-ball player and umpire, was telling a story to a group of fans.

"There was a time when I played in the state league, and at that time on the Hazleton team there was a noted eater, 'Kid' Jordan. Well, the year that Hazleton won the pennant nothing was too good for the boys, and a number of business men arranged a banquet for the team and a few of the dyed-in-the-wool rooters. Everything went off well, the courses were arranged temptingly and called 'innings,' and the table was decorated to represent a baseball field.

"We had everything there was to eat, and one of the innings was roast squab. This was served on a platter and the vegetables arranged in the shape of a diamond. The base lines were made of creamed potatoes, and at every base there was some vegetable cooked and cut in the shape of a base.

"This dish was a hit with the boys, and we all commented on it. I turned to Jordan, who wasn't saying much, but was industriously paying attention to the dish, and asked him how he was getting along.

"Fine," he said. "I'm eating 'em up around third base."—Philadelphia Times.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence, which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further informations followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.—London Chronicle.

A Dream and Its Result.

In 1720 a terrible epidemic decimated Marseilles and Provence, and Sardinia owed its escape to a dream. At this period the viceroy of Sardinia dreamed that the disease had invaded Sardinia and that the ravages were frightful. When the viceroy awoke he was deeply impressed by his dream, and a little later a merchantman put in its appearance at Cagliari and demanded a place to berth. The Sardinia refused, and when it was blundered that the merchantman wanted to land some sick the viceroy threatened to train the guns of the forts upon the vessel if the captain did not depart instantly. The people of Cagliari thought that the viceroy was mad, but great was their joy later when they learned that this very ship, which went on to Marseilles, was responsible for introducing the plague into the famous port.

Roads of the Olden Time.

A curious illustration of the lack of any systematic authority over the roads in England, even as late as the fifteenth century, is preserved in the records of the manor of Aylesbury. A local miller, named Richard Boose, needed some ramming clay for the repair of his mill. Accordingly—we learn from "Old Country Inns"—his servants dug a great pit in the middle of the road, ten feet wide and eight feet deep, and so left it to become filled with water from the winter rains. A glover from Leighton Buzzard, on his way home from market, fell in and was drowned. Charged with manslaughter, the miller pleaded that he had no place wherein to get the kind of clay he required except on the highroad. He was acquitted.

English Surnames.

The Reason.

"How did you ever happen to call your little daughter Dagmar?"
"My wife found after careful inquiry that it was about the only thing we could call the little one without running the risk of naming her after some relative of mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Thoughtful Lad.

Voice From Below—Harold, you mustn't interrupt the plumbers at their work, dear. Harold—It's all right, mother. I'm only talking to the man who sits on the stairs and does nothing.—London Punch.

A Proverb Spoiled.

"Dearest, if I were far, far away would you love me still?"
"Why, Reggie, what a question! I'm sure the farther you were away the better I should love you."—

He Was Wise.

Her—What, going away? I don't suppose it would be any use to ask you to stay a little longer? Him—Not in that tone of voice.—Milwaukee News.

One is rich when he is sure of tomorrow.—Cherisher.

GOOD ADVICE

Agnes Edwards Morning Talk Concerning the Weather.

(Agnes Edwards in the Boston Herald.)

"The difference between weather and climate," wrote a small boy, "is that weather lasts a few days and climate all the time." Delightful as this definition is, there is still another distinction that may be drawn if we wish to pursue the topic further. There are two kinds of weather: the kind we find and the kind we make.

Weather is like circumstances; there are three ways of dealing with it; rebelling against it, adapting one's self to it, or rising above it. The first attitude is the most usual and the most futile. The second one is sensible but rather tame. The third is full of stimulating possibilities.

A rainy day is a rainy day. It means that the curl will come out of your hair and the plaits will come out of your skirt, and connote a dozen other disagreeable accompaniments. If you rebel you will probably come to the end of the day exhausted with fretting as well as dampened with rain. Why not consider that if you have had to postpone your garden party or give up your calling that you have suffered enough without working yourself into a pet beside?

Let philosophy come to your aid as it did to the old man who was dying and was asked by the minister if he was resigned, "Gad, I've got to be," he returned grimly.

As for adapting one's self to the weather—that is a process that we have to go through with in all the details of existence so continually that it has lost its illusions. We have to adapt ourselves to living on $800 a year if that is all we have, whether we want to or not. We have to adapt ourselves to the kind of food that agrees with us—or the kind of food we can get. We have to adapt ourselves to the people we live with. It is chastening business and we acquire a fair amount of agility before we are done with the game but there is no novelty left.

But the weather—ah, here is something that is quite different! Here is something that we can rise above supremely! Here is something we can triumph over without compromise! And there is so much glory to be accumulated by following this idea. The girl who apparently comes sliding down a sunbeam to the breakfast table on a dark, sticky morning with a smile and cheery voice is welcomed with admiration far beyond her deserts. It is an easy and sure way to instant popularity.

For, after all, a person must have a decidedly volatile personality if it is dissipated by the first debilitating day or hot night. The old question as to whether personality rests upon character, personal attainments or animal magnetism might well receive another amendment. Does personality depend upon the weather? This must be the final test.

The only way to be sure of sunshine is to carry it about with you. The best way of finding a cool day is to keep cool. Don't try to find pleasant weather. Make it.

CONGRESSMAN WEEKS' SECRETARY.

When Representative Weeks' office is moved to Boston next week for the summer it will be in charge of one of the most competent women in the government service. She is Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson of Burlington, Vt. Representative Weeks' secretary, Mrs. Henderson has been with Representative Weeks for several years and if he were to dispense with her services—a thing he is not apt to do—a dozen senators and representatives who know her ability would compete for her.

Mrs. Henderson is not only a high-grade stenographer but understands legislative matters thoroughly. She handles all of Representative Weeks' correspondence, takes from his dictation facts and figures that he gets down before making a speech and in addition attends to a great deal of his private business.

Mr. Weeks' office force in Washington consists of Mrs. Henderson and Louis Warner, a former member of the legislature. Mrs. Henderson is in charge of the office work while Mr. Warner looks after political and departmental matters.

Although Mrs. Henderson is rated one of the best stenographers at the capitol she learned stenography in three months. The story of how she did it is rather interesting. When she left school at 18 years she talked with friends about going to work. One day, while she was waiting for an opportunity, a business man who had known her from childhood told her that if she would learn stenography and typewriting in three months he would make her his secretary. She accepted the offer and began to learn shorthand.

She heard nothing from her prospective employer until exactly three months from the day he had made the offer. Then he asked her if she was ready. Thoroughly frightened but equally determined she said she was. He told her to come to his office. She made good from the start.

Mrs. Henderson held her position for two years when she was married. The death of her husband made it necessary for her again to support herself. Resolutely she set to work picking up the lost threads of her stenography. A relative read to her from newspapers and books while she brushed up her speed. Then she came to Washington.

The splendid condition of the new diamond which has just been laid out on the playground was highly appreciated by the players and many were the expressions of delight and gratitude for the exertions of our Forest Commissioner, Mr. Bucknam who has taken so much interest in getting the playground as good a condition as possible in so short a time.

THE HOOSAC TUNNEL ELECTRIFIED INTERESTING TRIP TAKEN BY NEWSPAPERMEN OF MASSACHUSETTS

The "electrified" Hoosac Tunnel, which bores the Hoosac Mountain in Massachusetts for a distance of nearly five miles on the line of the Fitchburg Division of the Boston & Maine railroad, was formally opened this week as an electrically operated line.

While the electric engines have been in use for over a month, the formal inspection of the new method was not given until Tuesday, when nearly 200 newspaper men from all over the state, were the guests of Vice President T. F. Byrnes. The party left Boston on a fine special train at 8.30 A. M. and everything possible for the comfort of their guests was done by the railroad officials. A ride of four hours brought the party to the eastern end of the tunnel, where the electric engine was attached to the train in front of the regular locomotive. A small party were fortunate enough to receive an invitation to ride on the electric engine and it was indeed a rare pleasure to experience the sensation of the rapid trip thru the darkness, with plenty of fresh air. The western end first appeared as a small but bright star in the distance but rapidly enlarged as the train approached it at the rate of 54 miles an hour. The trip thru the five miles of tunnel was made in about seven minutes. After washing off a portion of the dust received in the long ride from Boston, an excellent lunch was served at the Wellington Hotel, at which brief speeches were made by Mr. Byrnes, Mayor Frink of North Adams and Mr. W. S. Murray the engineer in charge of the electrification. Mr. Murray told the newspapermen that a world's record had been made in the work on this tunnel, and that there was no other place like it in the country.

A trolley trip to the power station was then made, and on taking the special train again at four o'clock, many availed themselves of the privilege of riding back thru the tunnel on two flat cars which were attached to the train for that purpose. This gave an excellent opportunity to observe the construction of the tunnel and a passing glimpse of the ventilating shaft in the centre.

The return trip to Boston was made as rapidly as a first class engineer with the right of way could drive his engine, and at one time a rate of 64 miles an hour was maintained.

It is the only railroad tunnel of its size in the world through which both passenger and freight trains run under electrical power, with the resultant absence of all disagreeable sensations, and it typifies a new triumph in modern American engineering and transportation service.

The Hoosac Tunnel was first operated under electrical conditions in May, 1911 after a record-breaking feat in installation, and about thirty-five years after it had been opened to traffic. The substitution of the more modern motive power has been brought about at immense expense, but in view of the important benefits to the traveling public and the increase in operating efficiency, the Company considers that the investment was wholly justified.

Within seven months of the actual commencement of the work, the task of installing the necessary equipment in this famous "bore", of building and equipping a big power-house, arranging the necessary overhead approaches to the east and west portals, providing a proper water supply and otherwise reorganizing its motive power, was successfully carried out, and a world record for such a piece of work established.

The Hoosac Tunnel, born of human and financial tragedy, has always been an object of deep interest to the American traveling public, which has never failed to be impressed by the fact that a trip through four and three-quarters of a mile of solid rock cannot be enjoyed by the patrons of every railroad.

Indeed, the Tunnel has no prototype in this country, and one is obliged to go to the Alps to find its equal. And even there the traveler will look in vain for a twentieth century electrical motive power installation such as has just been added to this seventh wonder of the world.

It is a matter of surprise that such a long and costly railroad tunnel should be in New England at all, and especially in Massachusetts. In the mind of the general public, such engineering achievements are more likely to be associated with the Rocky Mountains of the Sierra Nevada. It is the curious fact, however, that New England not only possesses the longest railroad tunnel in the United States but was the first to have a mountain-climbing railway—the one up Mt. Washington.

This summer the thousands of passengers who are to travel east and west over the Fitchburg Division of the Boston & Maine railroad will enjoy the novelty of being whirled through the heart of a fairly high and decidedly solid mountain with no more atmospheric discomfort than if they were traveling over the western prairies.

Neither steam nor oil-burning locomotives will haul their trains but instead the most modern and powerful electric engines will be attached thereto and electric locomotives, of course, emit neither steam, smoke nor cinders.

For the first twenty-five years or so after it was opened to traffic. The trains running through the tunnel were pulled by the ordinary coal burning locomotives. A few years ago these were replaced, in part, by oil-burning locomotives, which to some extent were an improvement over the former type. The modern American railroad, however, not only tries to keep up with the procession, but often is a little in advance of it; and so it was decided by the management that both coal and oil must take a back seat and be superseded by electricity, so far as the operation of the Hoosac bore was concerned.

The real work practically started October 2, 1910, the first order of Mr. Chas. S. Mellen as president of the B. & M. R. R. and was pushed without cessation.

In order to fully understand the magnitude of the operations it will be necessary to consider for a moment the physical characteristics of the great bore. The eastern end of the tunnel is 136 miles west of Boston, and the western end is 50 miles east of Troy, N. Y.

Its total length is 25,081 feet, or approximately 4 3/4 miles, and although its construction commenced from each end and the centre, the sections came almost exactly together, so accurately were the engineers' lines run.

The rock through which the tunnel runs is composed principally of mica, schist and quartz. When the tunnel was constructed two vertical ventilating shafts were cut, one of these being a short distance from the west end, 318 feet deep. The central, or principal shaft, is nearly midway of the bore and descends 1028 feet from the top of the mountain. The highest part of the mountain is near the west portal, where it rises to a height of 1718 feet. Between the higher and the lower summits of the range two streams run, so that the passage is really subaqueous as well as subterranean.

Two tracks run through the tunnel and furnish accommodations for the enormous passenger and freight business that moves over the Fitchburg Division in ever-increasing volume. For the safe movement of this traffic a complete system of telephone and signals was long ago installed.

The grade at the portals is 766 feet above tide water, and in moving from either end to the central shaft trains rise 26.40 feet per mile. The dimensions of the west shaft are 10 x 14 feet, and those of the central shaft, which performs the chief duty of keeping the nearly five miles of tunnel ventilated, are 15 x 27 feet. The width of the tunnel arch is 26 feet.

One of the chief requisites to an electrical plant of this sort is a powerhouse for the manufacturing and control of the "juice", and this was one of the first things to receive the attention of the engineers in charge.

Zylonite, about two miles from the west portal, was selected as the site of this.

The power house, a substantial structure of brick and steel, 200 feet long by 100 feet wide and about 100 feet high, has been equipped with four boilers of 500 horse-power each, there is room for several more with a total capacity of 5000 horse-power.

In order to supply the boilers with water a number of artesian wells have been driven, and an additional supply is derived from the Hoosac River canal and artificial well nearby. A concrete tunnel brings water to the condensers from some distance away, and the heated water is carried back to its source through another tunnel of concrete and discharged at a point where it will cool before entering the condensers.

In a general way, the system of electrification of the tunnel will be similar to that in successful operation on the New York, New Haven & Hartford road between New York and Stamford, and the overhead wiring and bridges at the approach to both portals will recall this part of the New Haven system.

Over each track there are two contact wires suspended from a copper messenger, all wires being in multiple and having impressed upon them the normal voltage of 11,000. This would give approximately 14 1/4 miles per track, or 2.5 miles of power transmission wire in the tunnel.

The average power required at the tunnel for trains will be in the vicinity of 5000 kilowatts.

The electric locomotives used are of the well-known Westinghouse type, and each is capable of developing 1400 horse-power. These powerful locomotives will be able to accelerate a 2000-ton train.

The locomotives have their motors superimposed upon and geared to the wheel axles, and all of the electrical apparatus inside the cab is centrally located, affording roomy arrangement and offering a good facility for general inspection. Passage aisles are provided on both sides of the cab.

The locomotives are designed to handle all trains coming to the east and west portals of the tunnel, and will couple directly on to the steam locomotive, hauling it with its train over the electric zone.

There is no other tunnel in the world where the situation is just what of the Hoosac, and there is no other place in tunnel construction where the factors of safety are so large in the way of insulating the wires, in order to cut down to a strict minimum the electrical failure of the line.

Even your dearest friend will appreciate it at times if you mind your own business.

PARAGON PARK

Paragon Park—The question was raised the other day among a party of newspaper men as to whether it was possible that there was anyone able to read a newspaper in New England who did not know about that 7th epicurean wonder of the world, now in its seventh season, the Palm Garden at Paragon Park. Admitting that of course there were a few people who never knew anything that was going on in the world, and therefore would not be interested at all in such a novel place to dine, the general consensus of opinion seemed to be that at least everybody knew of it. But it must be admitted that only those who have known the pleasure and joy of supping and dining at its tables can appreciate it to its fullest measure. Its fame has spread all over the country. Visitors from other large centres of the country, such as Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Cincinnati, yes, even New York, have told Manager George A. Dodge after dining in the Palm Garden that they hoped some day their own city would have a place like it at a nearby summer resort. It may not be generally realized that even New York with its wonderful variety of attractions beach and summer resorts, has not a place like the Palm Garden and Roof Garden, seating 1500 people at one time at dinner, commanding a fine view of a brilliantly illuminated park and its thousands of people parading the board walk about the lagoon, where one may linger over the wine list or the menu while watching the long list of free circus acts, the fireworks displays, and listen to the concerts of the band, the orchestra, a grand opera trio of singers, a quartette of singers, and a soloist. To be sure, New York has its "cabarets" where one pays as high as $5. for a seat to sit down and eat while watching an entertainment, but no extra charge is made for these attractions to patrons of the Park, and the admission is only ten cents. Paragon Park is enjoying the biggest business ever.

NORUMBEGA PARK.

For the first time in several seasons the magnificent open air theatre at Norumbega Park will have for its attraction the coming week, every afternoon and evening, beginning Monday, July 17 the famous Alabama Troubadours who have delighted so many thousands of patrons at this resort during the fifteen years it has been catering to those who seek to escape the heat of the city and enjoy their vaudeville and musical comedy in the open air midst woodland breezes that cool and invigorate. This organization of real darky fun-makers is not only a company decidedly out of the ordinary, but the entire idea of the entertainment is particularly novel and interesting. Everything of a conventional or stereotyped nature is strictly tabooed. It is just one long lingering afternoon or evening of fast and furious fun, plentifully besprinkled with the haunting melodies of the South before the war and the bewitching dances of the plantation negro. Life, rapid action, and the peculiar oddities of the plantation darky frolic are the secret of the popularity of this attraction. Its whirlwind dances and pretty and sprightly dusky belles are said to be better than ever.

MR. CROWDLE DEAD.

Mr. Martin Crowdle an old and respected resident of Newton, passed away at his home on Gardner street on Monday.

For the past two years he has been in feeble health and unable to attend to his business as a gardener.

Funeral services were held at his late home Wednesday morning at eight o'clock, and solemn high mass of requiem followed at the church of Our Lady at nine o'clock. The burial was at Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO CONGRESSMAN WEEKS STATES FACTS

In the course of a recent speech in Congress on the proposed changes in the shoe and leather schedules in the farmers' free list bill, Congressman John W. Weeks gave some interesting information regarding the United Shoe Machinery Company, which should correct many erroneous impressions relative to that company, in which many Newton men are interested.

Mr. Weeks said:

It has been frequently stated, both on this floor and in the public press, that the shoe industry was in the hands of a machinery monopoly—that is, in the hands of the United Shoe Machinery Co., which does a large part of the shoe-machinery business of this country. This company represents a combination made 12 years ago of three companies—the Goodyear Shoe Machinery Co., the McKay Shoe Machinery Co., and the Consolidated & McKay Lasting Machine Co. Each of these companies furnished fundamental machines to perform a particular class of operations, each independent of the other, but together making up the links of one industrial chain. But, in addition to these main machines, this company owns or controls more than 300 different kinds of machines which are used in the manufacture of shoes. It does not require in its contract that any number of its machines shall be used. In fact, there are 60 different shoe machinery manufacturers in the United States furnishing shoe machines which are working side by side with these fundamental machines of the United Shoe Machinery Co.

Any manufacturer can lease the company's essential machines without being obliged to use any other machine which the company makes. Substantially every factory in the United States uses machines which it has not obtained from the United Shoe Machinery Co. In many cases they come in direct competition with the machines which this company produces. None of the machines which stitch together the pieces of the upper part of the shoe are produced by this company, and necessarily these machines must constitute a large part of any factory's equipment. The direct advantage which the United Shoe Machinery Co. has is that it can furnish all the machines which are used in attaching the soles and heels to the uppers, known as the bottoming room, and I believe it is the only company which can do this.

Mr. Weeks then gave a summary showing that of the 185 operations to make a shoe, 28 are hand, 157 are machine and that of this latter number 146 may be done on machines not furnished by the United Shoe Machinery Co. or which may be done on competing machines.

Any manufacturer is at liberty to lease the Goodyear welting machine and the Goodyear stitching machine without being obliged to lease or buy anything else from the company. Any manufacturer can lease the company's essential machines without being obliged to use any other of the many machines which the company makes. He can take the others or leave them, as he pleases, without regard to any lease he already holds.

I want to point out what would be the result of putting this machinery on the free list. The United Shoe Machinery Co. not only manufactures in this country, but manufactures in England, France, Germany, and Canada. It was necessary for it to do this in order to maintain its patents in those countries. It manufactures the same machines in those four countries that it does in the United States and it supplies its entire market for machines outside of the United States from those factories. Now, if machinery were put on the free list, they would undoubtedly, if they were going to try to make the best possible return on their capital, manufacture all machines abroad and send them in here, because I have testimony, which I will submit later, showing that the average wages which they pay for labor in their manufacturing in Europe in 9 cents an hour, while the average wage paid in this country is 27 cents an hour. They employ in the cities of Beverly, Lynn and Lawrence, Mass., 5,000 men, who are paid an average of $15.75 a week, the total wage being something like $75,000 a week, or nearly $4,000,000 a year. Now, if their machinery were manufactured on the other side at one-third the labor cost, we can easily see that it would mean the payment of wages not of $4,000,000 to our workmen, but either one-third of that amount to our own workmen or to the workmen of a foreign country. That is what it would mean to put shoe machinery on the free list.

Mr. BARNHART. What is the fact about some of the manufacturers of this shoe machinery refusing to sell their machinery, but only leasing it?

Mr. WEEKS. The United Shoe Machinery Co. leases its machinery as a rule, but the majority of its machines can be either leased or bought. In a general way it may be said that it does not sell its machines unless the shoe manufacturer prefers to buy them.

Mr. BARNHART. Why not?

Mr. WEEKS. Because its policy is to lease its machinery. I want to point out some advantages that come to the shoe-maker as a result of this policy. Any man of good character can start in the shoe business in this country if he has money enough to furnish working capital for his business. He can go into almost any good town and get a suitable plant built for a shoe manufactory, with out a large cost to himself, and have his property exempt from taxation for a term of years. He can obtain from the United Shoe Machinery Co. machinery without any cost to himself, on a lease basis, so that his machinery cost, at least as far as this company is concerned, is nothing. Therefore this leasing system has tended to stimulate independent shoe-makers in the United States and has prevented the combinations which possibly would have been made otherwise.

Mr. BARNHART. Is it not possible that the price you speak of there might be maintained through the action of the shoe machinery companies in keeping their lease rates so high that a man, in order to manufacture shoes, would necessarily have to sell his shoes at a higher rate from time to time as this shoe machinery company might dictate?

Mr. WEEKS. In the first place, the average wage paid to labor in the manufacturing industries in this country is about 17 1/2 per cent of the entire cost. The average wage paid to shoemakers in this country is about 22 per cent of the cost of the finished product—4 1/2 per cent more than the average in other industries. The labor cost of a $2.50 shoe—a shoe that costs the manufacturer $2.50—is 22 per cent of that amount, or about 55 cents a pair. The machinery cost of that shoe is not over 4 1/2 cents a pair. The highest machinery cost on any pair of shoes manufactured in this country is 509 cents a pair. The lowest machinery cost is one-half cent a pair, and the average machinery cost of all shoes made in this country—there are 260,000,000 pairs made—is but —Mrs. Elinore G. Stevens the widow of the late Augustus Stevens, died last Tuesday at the home of her son, Mr. Eugene A. Stevens, 21 Waverly avenue. Mrs. Stevens was 86 years of age. Funeral services were held yesterday, the interment being at Blue Hills, Me.

—Col. Sprague will deliver next week a course of lectures on Milton and Shakespeare at the summer session of Cornell University, where he was once Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature. He delivered a course last October to the professors and students of the University.

—The funeral of Miss Mary Horigan, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of this city for many years, who died at her home, 433 Washington street last week at the age of 80, was held at the church of Our Lady last Friday with a requiem high mass celebrated by Rev. Fr. Michael Dolan. The interment took place in the family lot.

Thackeray's Disfigured Nose.

The usual account of how Thackeray was disfigured says that Venables broke the novelist's nose in a fair fight. John Ward in Notes and Queries supplies another version. About a year after Thackeray's death Mr. Ward was traveling on one of the main railways and had as companions two old ladies who knew Thackeray well. One of them said the novelist had told them this story:

"Being one of the youngest pupils (at Charterhouse), he was chosen by one of the older lads, a rather proud aristocrat in his way, to act as his fag. Thackeray bore it as well as he could, but demurred to some more arbitrary command than usual and flatly refused to obey, whereupon the young 'aristocrat' caught Thackeray up, held his head under his arm and with the heel of his boot used as a hammer beat the beautiful aquiline nose quite flat with his face—in fact, breaking and injuring its structure completely—the excuse being, 'You'll clean my boots next time, sir.'"

Before his injury Thackeray was, the same authority says, remarkably handsome.—Westminster Gazette.

Won His Supper.

Terry is of that class of gentry whose nimble wit is the only thing which keeps them from starving in this day of practicalities. Terry is a great coffee drinker, and many are the expedients he will undertake to get it when he is without funds. The other evening he walked into a cafe and said to the proprietor:

"Good evening, Mr. M."

"How are you, Terry?" was the response.

"Pretty good, pretty good, barrin' a bad throat. It's glad I am to see yourself lookin' so smart and yer dolo' so well in yer business, now, ain't yer? It's glad I am, too, about that. By the way, Mr. M., would yer be after trustin' me this evening?"

"Trust you? Terry, I wouldn't be trustin' my own father."

"Thru fer you, Mr. M. If I'd knowed yer father as well as you perhaps I wouldn't trust him meself!"

And Terry got his coffee and rolls.—Chicago News.

When Nature Was Timekeeper.

In the British museum is a large stone composed of carbonate of lime, which would serve perfectly as a day laborer's calendar inasmuch as it would indicate to him every Sunday and holiday of the year, though not the day of the month. Moreover, the stone is an actual time record of the work done for a long period in an English coal mine.

The "Sunday stone," as it is called, was removed from a colliery drain. When the miners were at work the water running through the drain left a deposit colored black by the coal dust, but when no work was being done the water ran down clear and left a white deposit. These deposits in the course of time built up the stone. Each day of work left a black streak. Immediately followed by a white streak made during the night. Wide white streaks indicate the holidays and Sundays.—Harper's Weekly.

Back to Adam.

A parchment roll over a foot wide and nineteen feet long containing the genealogical tree of King Henry VI. is in the Welsh National Library at Aberystwyth. The work is beautifully executed in tabular fashion of the latter half of the fifteenth century and is illuminated with miniatures, rich capitals and red ornamental letters. The pedigree is traced from Adam, and the particulars occupy a red line of six yards on the scroll. On the left side of the pedigree appears the list of archbishops of Canterbury down to John Stafford and on the right side the list of Welsh princes down to Edward I.—Dundee Advertiser.

Eskimo Trial Marriage.

The trial marriage is an ineradicable custom among the Eskimos. If a young man and woman are not suited with each other they try again, and sometimes several times, but when they find mates to whom they are adapted the arrangement is generally permanent. If two men want to marry the same woman they settle the question by a trial of strength, and the better man has his way.—"The North Pole," by Robert E. Peary.

Helping Dad.

Small Johnny—Papa, would you be glad if I saved a dollar for you? Papa—Certainly, my son. Small Johnny—Well, I saved it for you, all right. You said if I brought a first class report from my teacher this week you would give me a dollar, and I didn't bring it.—Chicago News.

What She Wanted.

Father (to his daughter)—I've brought you a zither for your birthday, my dear, and a book by which you can teach yourself to play on it in a month. Daughter—But it was the zither teacher I wanted most.—Filleagende Blatter.

Honesty.

Judge—Did you have a partner with you when you committed this burglary? Burglar—No, your honor. I never works with anybody. You see, you never can tell whether a chap is honest or not!

Man.

Man is the sun of the world, more than the real sun. The fire of his wonderful heart is the only light and heat worth gauge or measure.—Emerson.

One loses all the time which he might employ to better purpose.—Rousseau.

1865 THE OLD FIRM 1910
George H. Gregg & Son
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
 All the Newtons 296 Walnut St., Newtonville

UNITED SHOE MACH. CO.

2-3 cents a pair. The gentleman can easily understand that if the wage cost is 22 per cent of the total cost, which in the $2.50 shoe would be 55 cents a pair, and if the average machinery cost is 2-3 cents a pair, the machinery cost bears so small a proportion to the cost of the shoe that it is negligible.

Mr. ESCH. Can a manufacturer of shoes lease a portion of his machinery from the United Shoe Machinery Co. and purchase or lease his other portion of machinery from other manufacturers?

Mr. WEEKS. He can and that is done by a large part of the shoe manufacturers of this country.

I wish to summarize some of the facts relating to this company and its business. The highest royalty charged in the manufacture of any shoe—the Goodyear welt men's shoes—is 5.09 cents per pair; for women's Goodyear welt shoes the royalty charged is 4.24 cents per pair; McKay shoes, 1.75 per pair; for Goodyear turned shoes (both of the latter women's shoes), 1.1 cents per pair.

This rental includes installation of machines, maintenance of machines, depreciation, all care of machines, and repairs, except the cost of new parts. The royalties charged abroad—and exactly the same methods are followed in other countries which prevail here—are the same as in the United States. It is claimed that the company has furnished its lessees with the very best equipment obtainable at all times; that it always substitutes improved machines for those which have become out of date; that since the combination was formed it has eliminated payments which were previously required for the installation of machines; that it has reduced its rentals and royalties, both directly and indirectly—the latter by furnishing auxiliary machines without additional royalty charge. It has constantly increased the efficiency and extent of its service; it has spent from $300,000 to $750,000 a year since the organization of the company in maintaining a corps of inventors and developers in its experimental department. During this time nearly 100 new machines have been developed by the company, and by the use of these new machines it is believed that manufacturers save annually in cost of production an amount greater than the royalties paid at the time the company was organized 12 years ago.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Unquestionably the biggest event in vaudeville in recent years is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week is "The Meistersinger All-Star Minstrels," which will be put on in the style for which Mr. Keith has become famous, with the greatest organization of soloists, minstrel endmen, and musicians, that has ever been brought together. In "The Meistersingers," who have been for four weeks the leading feature at B. F. Keith's, there is the greatest combination of male voices that has ever been in a minstrel circle, and the end men will number four, whose names are known the width and breadth of the land. They will be George Thatcher, of Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels, the famous Lew Benedict, Hughie Dougherty, the great Philadelphia minstrel, and John Healy, who has been specially engaged from Al G. Gidd's Western Minstrels, for this occasion. The interlocutor will be Harry W. Morse, late of Cohan & Harris' and Lew Dockstafer's Minstrels. There will be over fifty people on the stage, the biggest circle ever shown. The boys and girls of the present generation, who have never seen a real old style minstrel show, should be brought to see these famous artists and company of great singers. Outside of the minstrels, there will be a typical B. F. Keith program of all-star vaudeville. It will include the wonderful Ergotti Lilliputians, in acrobatic feats the Great Howard Scotch ventriloquists; Farnum & Clark Sisters, in songs and dances; the Grazers, dancing musicians; Clemens & Dean, the English entertainers; and others.

Castle Square Theatre—"My Friend from India" has always proved irresistible, and its production at the Castle Square next week is certain to be welcomed. Its plot is brief and simple as well as comical and laughable. In New York lives a wealthy pork packer from Kansas City, and like many others he has social ambitions that they wish, but find hard work, to gratify. By chance the son of the family comes across a little man who looks like an East Indian and he is instructed to play the role of a strange and wise theosophist and he dragged about as a celebrity. Then come the complications and the rapid progress of the plot through them. Droll dialogue and funny episodes—lest of all the mirror scene which inevitably sets the audience in a roar of laughter—keep the fun going till the curtain falls. The cast selected by Mr. Craig will do full justice to the play. The title character will be played by Donald Meek, and with all the other favorite Castle Square players assisting there can be no doubt as to the warmth of its reception. It will be given for one week only.

SUMMER MEETING.

The State Board of Agriculture will hold its Summer Field Meeting at Concord, on Tuesday, July 25, 1911. Leaving the Colonial Inn at 9 o'clock A. M., the Board, and others attending the meeting, will view the points of historic interest in the town, arriving at the asparagus experiment station at 10:30 o'clock A. M. Here a careful examination of the experiments in progress will be made and they will be thoroughly explained by those in charge. This will form the agricultural feature of the forenoon and will be well worth attendance at the meeting.

At 1:30 o'clock P. M. Dr. H. J. Wheeler, Director of the Rhode Island Agricultural Experiment Station, at Kingston, R. I., will lecture on "Alfalfa Growing," at the Town Hall. This crop is one that is attracting a great deal of attention at present. If it can be profitably grown in New England it will do much to settle our dairy problems. Dr. Wheeler has given the subject careful attention and is prepared to present some interesting conclusions.

The public is cordially invited to attend the exercises of the day. These meetings form a yearly feature of the work of the Board and are second only in interest and profit to the public winter meeting, for lectures and discussions, held yearly in the first week in December.

Concord is situated on the Fitchburg Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad. Trains leave Boston at 7:44 and 8:54 A. M., stopping at Cambridge, Waltham and other stations, and reaching Concord at 8:21 and 9:47 A. M. respectively. Trains from the west leave Fitchburg at 7:30 and 8:46 A. M., reaching Concord at 8:24 and 9:50 respectively. A train leaves Ayer at 8:10 A. M., reaching Concord at 8:29 A. M. Trolleys for Concord leave Arlington Heights and Marlborough half hourly through the day.

BASE BALL.

Newton Catholic club defeated the Boston Independents of South Boston, 3 to 2, Saturday afternoon on the West Newton common in one of the fastest games witnessed here this season. Connelly pitched splendidly for the Newton Catholic club, as the South Boston contingent only made two hits off his delivery, while he struck out 14 batters.

Grinned Into Matrimony.

That grinning matches were an accepted form of sport in early English days is shown by an advertisement announcing a gold ring to be grinned for by men on Oct. 9 at the Swan, Colleshill Heath, Warwickshire, which appeared in the Post-Boy of Sept. 17, 1711. Addison gives a detailed account of one of these "controversies of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having been used to cut faces for many years together over his last."

His performance was something like this: "At the very first grin he cast every human feature out of his countenance, at the second he simulated the face of a spout, at the third that of a baboon, at the fourth the head of a bass viol and at the fifth a pair of nut crackers." Addison adds that a comely wench whom he had wooed in vain for more than five years was so charmed with his grins that she married him the following week, the cobbler using the prize as his wedding ring.

Powerful Bulls.

During a debate upon the second reading of the Irish land bill in 1890 Lord Londonderry concluded a period with: "This is the keystone of the bill. Are you going to kill it?"

Sir Frederick Milner, speaking on the budget, said, "A cow may be drained dry, and if chancellors of the exchequer persist in meeting every deficiency that occurs by taxing the brewing and distilling industry they will inevitably kill the cow that lays the golden milk."

Lord Curzon—"The interests of the employers and employed are the same nine times out of ten—I will even say ninety-nine times out of ten."

Discussing Mr. Asquith's licensing bill at a meeting at Shorelitch, a member of parliament roused the audience to a frenzy of enthusiasm by declaring that "the time has come to strip to the waist and tuck up our shirt sleeves!"

What Is Electricity?

Many persons young and old often wonder how the modern electric cars, trains and locomotives are operated and what electricity is. No one knows what electricity is. We know some of the things that it will do. We have to a certain extent learned how to control it and for want of a better name call it a fluid. We have discovered, too, that it is one of the most important forces, if not the most important force, of which we have any knowledge. We are almost as ignorant of many other great forces of nature—as, for example, the attraction of gravitation. For the present we must be content to observe such forces in action and to devise the best methods to control them. In this knowledge mankind has progressed wonderfully within a few years.—St. Nicholas.

Fishing Without Bait.

On the Nadoo creek, at Hukow, we saw a novel way of fishing. Two small boats were moving parallel with each other about thirty feet apart. The ends of a line about sixty feet long to which small unbaited hooks were attached about four inches apart to two sticks were held respectively by a man in each boat. As the boats moved slowly along first one man and then the other would give his stick a jerk. Immediately that the hooks struck anything the line was gradually hauled in and invariably with success. We saw fish struck four out of five times, many of them running apparently from half a pound to two or more pounds. It may be that China is the only place in the world where fish are caught with unbaited hooks.—North China News.

Custom House Humor.

Two Germans who were crossing the Luxembourg frontier declared to the customs officials: "We have with us three bottles of red wine each. How much is there to pay?" "Where is it?" was asked. "Well, inside us." The official gravely looked at his tariff book and read: "Wine in casks, 20 shillings; in bottles, 48 shillings; in donkeys' hides, free. Gentlemen," he added, looking up, "you can go."—Der Guttempler.

Not on His Tombs.

"What did he die of?" "A slight difference of opinion, as near as I can find out." "Oh, a fight?" "Not at all." "What, then?" "Doctors disagreed, and he died before they settled it."—London Tit-Bits.

A Memorable Occasion.

There should be order in all things. For instance, on one occasion we discovered that the proper method is to hook her party gown first and fix the furnace afterward. Inversing the order cost us $32.50 for a new gown and spoiled her whole evening besides.—Detroit Free Press.

The Poor Doctors.

"When a man dies, is an inquest always held?" "Oh, no! If a doctor has been in attendance the coroner is not supposed to have inquired into the cause of the death."—Toledo Blade.

Not Nowadays.

"Polonius was a very wise man. Just consider his advice to his son." "Reads well. But would a really wise man attempt to tell his son anything?"—Washington Herald.

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence.

Japan's Snapping Turtle Farm.

One of the oddest farms in the world turns out each year tens of thousands of snapping turtles and has solved the problem of preserving the supply of what is to the Japanese as great a delicacy as diamond back terrapin is to some Americans. This queer farm consists of a number of ponds. Certain of them are set apart as breeding ponds. Once a day a man goes over the shores and with little wire baskets covers up all new egg deposits. Sometimes thousands of these wire baskets are in sight at a time marking the places where the eggs lie and preventing turtles from scratching the earth from them. Hatching requires from forty to sixty days, according to the weather. The young as soon as they appear are put in separate small ponds and are fed with finely chopped fish. They eat this during September and October and late in October burrow in the mud for the winter, coming out in April or May. Most of them are sold in the market when they are from three to five years old, at which time they are most delicate.—Harper's.

A Resourceful Badger.

An English artist while painting a sea piece discovered a badger's lair and thought to play the animal a practical joke. Gathering together a bundle of grass and weeds, he placed it inside the mouth of the hole and, igniting it with a match, waited for the ignominious flight of the astonished household. But Master Badger was a resourceful animal and not disposed to be made a butt of practical jokes. He came up from the depths of his hole as soon as the penetrating smoke told him that there was a fire on the premises and deliberately scratched earth on the burning grass with his strong claws until all danger was past. No human being could have grasped the situation more quickly or displayed greater skill in dealing with an unfamiliar event.

Building a Reputation.

Young physicians in the smaller towns have an idea that appearing very busy will help them greatly in starting a practice. The following is told by a now prominent Kentucky physician. He had a call the afternoon following the hanging out of his shingle and started through town in his buggy at terrific speed. A policeman stopped the enterprising physician.

"Doctor," he said, "it is against the city ordinance to drive at the speed you are going. You must accompany me to the judge and pay your fine."

"What is the fine?" inquired the doctor. "Five dollars."

The doctor's hand flew to his pocket. "Here's $10. I have to come back just as fast as I am going."—Success Magazine.

Ambition.

The scroll of fame has variant attractions for different minds.

"Here lies one whose name was writ in water"—the despairing and dying John Keats desired that admission of defeat engraved for his epitaph.

"Write me as one who loved his fellow men," was Leigh Hunt's aspiration.

To be remembered as the author of the Declaration of Independence and of the first statute for religious freedom and as the founder of the University of Virginia, this was Thomas Jefferson's prayer to posterity.

Thus one may go the range. And thus the lines recur:

Ambition is our idol, on whose wings Great minds are carried only to extreme, To be sublimely great or to be nothing.

Generous Tramp.

"Please gimme a quarter," begged a panhandler on Washington street. "I won't hand yer no tale about beln' hungry, pard—honest, I wanten git a drink."

"But," we objected (for it was indeed us), "you don't need a quarter to buy a drink."

"Sir," answered the panhandler, "do youse think I'm fallen so low as ter take a gent's money an' den not invite him ter drink wid me?"—Boston Traveler.

Salt Eaters.

Idiosyncrasy often takes the form of a special craving for instead of an objection to certain foods. Many people possess an extraordinary relish for common salt and will eat it by the teaspoonful when opportunely admits. This sometimes leads to obesity and dropsy, but it has also the peculiar effect of increasing the weight.

Highly Improper.

"What is the proper thing for a man to do when his wife asks him for money and he hasn't any?" queried young Newed.

"Oh, there isn't any proper thing to do under those circumstances," replied Oldwed. "Anything he does will be wrong."—Chicago News.

When a Man Makes His Will.

It is a morbid superstition that a man dies when he makes his will. More often he lives happily and long after he has done so. It relieves his anxieties.—London Saturday Review.

The Burglar's Umbrella.

Among a collection of articles used by burglars when engaged in their nefarious calling is one particular contrivance that arouses great interest. In appearance it resembles a large umbrella that has seen hard service. It was formerly the property of a burglar, and it was by its means that he was able to enter the second story of a building. Removing the cover, a stick wound with ropes is revealed. The stick opens like a telescope or a jointed fishing rod. Wound round it is a rope ladder made of strong material and about thirteen feet in length. The ladder is only wide enough for one foot to be placed on the rungs. The extending stick was used to raise one end of the ladder to the window through which the operator wished to enter, and on the upper end of the ladder are two hooks to be fastened to the sill. This imitation umbrella is regarded as one of the most ingenious affairs ever made use of by a thief.—London Standard.

Took the Shilling.

A recruiting sergeant one day met an ignorant youth idling, with his hands in his pockets and standing before a house on the front of which was a notice informing the public that the building was to be sold. The notice ran thus: "To Be Sold by Private Treaty."

The sergeant approached the youth and asked him if he had ever thought of joining the army.

"Not me," was the reply. "You'd have nothing in the army worth talking about."

"Is that so?" said the other. "Well, how is it then Private Treaty has a house for sale and him only a private yet?"

The youth looked thoughtful and puzzled, and presently, over a pint of ale, the possibility of owning a house by joining the army grew into a certainty and the shilling changed hands.—London Tit-Bits.

Wonderful Animalcules.

Of all the minute creatures that inhabit this globe unseen by the naked eye, there is none so astonishing, according to the Scientific American, as the little living things that live in stagnant water. They are called slipper animalcules, or, as the scientist has it, the paramecium. These tiny, invisible things develop so rapidly that if they were able to live through 350 generations they would crowd every other living thing off the face of the earth and form a mass larger than the planet itself. Should they go on reproducing until the nine hundredth generation these little creatures would form a mass large enough to crowd the moon and stars and even the sun entirely out of space. Luckily for us this is not possible, according to nature's decree. The paramecium dies after it has attained the one hundred and seventieth generation, and so the awful possibilities are checked of its multiplying to fill the universe.

The Medicine Bottle.

In order to avert the most serious thing of having a child take the wrong medicine, mothers should adhere to the following rules:

Never give medicine in the dark. Always read the label on the bottle. Never go by the color of the medicine.

When the bottle is refilled see that the label reads clear.

Keep poisons locked up. Keep all bottles locked up in a drawer or medicine chest.

Mistakes of giving children carbolic acid and such like poisons in the nighttime make it imperative that mothers study and adhere to these rules, for sometimes such inadvertent mistakes bring about terrible conclusions.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Proprietor—Well, what did he say about it?

William—"E said it was cowlider than 'ell, sir.—Judge.

A Wisesacre.

"What is a road, dad?"

"Forty square rods, poles or perches."

"What is a wisesacre, dad?"

"One who keeps a spare rod, pole or perch to apply to a boy who asks useless questions. Fetch me my cane!"—London Answers.

Off the Line.

"What became of Butts' educated goat?"

"He had to dispose of it."

"What was the trouble?"

"The neighbors thought the goat was learning too many human accomplishments, and there was a crisis when the animal began to take in washing."—Augusta Herald.

"I think so," replied young Mrs. Toklas. "He certainly acted like one when he got home."—Washington Star.

NEWTON GRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO.,
J. C. Brimblecom, Treas.

TELEPHONE NO. 77.

The Graphic is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all News-stands in the Newtons, and at the South Terminal, Boston.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 15 cents per line in the reading matter, or 25 cents per inch in the advertising columns.

There should be considerable interest in this senatorial district in the speech of Congressman Weeks on the United Shoe Machinery, which I reprint in this issue of the Graphic. It will be recalled that one of the issues in the campaign of former Senator James H. Vahey was the so called machinery monopoly and one of Mr. Vahey's principal backers was a competitor of the U. S. Company. Mr. Weeks has the deservedly fine reputation of never saying anything unless he is acquainted with all the facts, and indeed, the entire speech of which only a portion is given here, shows most conclusively that he had given the whole boot and shoe subject the most careful investigation. His statements therefore, on the United Shoe Machinery Co are well worth reading and ought to correct the current popular impressions regarding the work of that company.

Travellers who have experienced the discomfort entailed by a ride thru the world famous Hoosac tunnel under the old conditions, would hardly recognize the tunnel under the new method of operation by electricity. The passage now is as great a pleasure as the former method was objectionable. The trains are run with doors and windows wide open and the air is as sweet and cool as that in the Washington street tunnel in Boston. The new management of the Boston and Maine Company knows how to please the public and fully deserves all the additional business which will inevitably come to it from this one improvement.

The work outlined by the recently organized Newton Improvement Society has evidently been sidetracked
while the officers are out of town during the warm weather, and yet, there is still more cogent reasons why the children's playground suggested for a portion of Farlow park, ought to be pressed and conditions in Nonantum Square are still a discredit to a city like Newton.

The good work of the iceman during the recent hot weather ought to receive the grateful thanks of the entire community.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

Governor Foss broke his own record
this week by sending in six veto messages in one day, two to the Senate and four in the House. The Senate also broke a record by giving the vetoes immediate consideration, and then passing them over the veto, one unanimously and with only six senators backing the governor on the other.

The Newton representatives voted to sustain the governor in his vetoes of the members salary bill, being 3 of the 18 votes of the minority, and also voted with the governor in his veto of the Essex agricultural school appropriation,
which was sustained by a narrow margin. Our representatives voted in opposition to the governor on the other four vetoes, all of which were overruled.

There is absolutely no hope for prorogation this week and it looks as if the session may last all of next week.

One of the aggravating things connected with legislation this year is the tendency of the Governor to either misstate matters or put them in such language as to convey misinformation.
One of these instances occurred last week, when the Governor, in sending in the expert's report on the state board of agriculture, says "The sum of $40,- 000 a year for building up the agricultural interests of this state seems very small when it is realized that we are spending a million dollars a year, in interest, maintenance and extensions, on parks and reservations, which have cost over $20,000,000 thus far. Personally I would be glad to see all further costs of extending our park system cut off at once, and a more liberal sum voted by the state as a whole to advance our agricultural interests."

In these sentences the governor clearly mixes up two distinct methods of payment, one which is incurred on behalf of the metropolitan district, and one incurred on behalf of the whole state. The metropolitan district would be called upon to pay its share of the state tax to maintain the state board of agriculture, while the state as a whole simply gives the metropolitan district,

the loan of its credit for its part expenses, and the various cities and towns in the district, and not the whole state pays the bills.

One of the funny things about the governors recent vetoes is the reiteration of the suggestion that there should be a state finance commission.

There was a hot debate in the House on Friday over the payment of $9000
for salaries and expenses of the commission recently appointed to determine the amounts Newton and the other cities should pay for metropolitan park expenses for the next five years. I mentioned this matter before, calling attention to the large sum involved for what was apparently a pro forma proceeding as the report of that commission virtually followed that of 1906. It was stated on the floor of the House that the commission held only two hearings and one executive session. Representative White of this city was in charge of the bill for the Ways and Means Committee, and it passed the House, with he and Mr. Bothfield voting in favor and Mr. Ellis voting against. Possibly the Legislature will learn wisdom from this "roast" and fix
the apportionment itself, as I believe it has already done in the case of the expenses of the metropolitan sewer system.

One of the Governor's recent messages, they now number over seventy, called attention to the large expense of the state printing. This subject has been investigated so much that any reference to it calls forth shouts of derision from the wise ones. It is still a fact, however, that this matter ought to have a thorough investigation from men of standing, like Representative Ellis, whose report could be accepted with some assurance that the work had been done with understanding. In the meantime, the bills will still mount up and will be paid as hitherto.

Another message of the Governor advocates the establishment of a state finance commission, with powers to investigate, county city and town affairs
as well, when not busy with the state institutions. The Governor also wants the Walker budget act repealed, if the finance commission is authorized. Its a long gamble that the commission idea will not go thru, but there are many who would like to have the Walker act repealed. The sole trouble as I see it, with the Walker act, is the fact that it is being administered with hostile hands and everyone is tired of the "experts" and "near experts" who have been so prominent the past few months. Given a Governor, who knew his job, like Governor Draper, and a Ways and Means committee, which did not have a candidate for governor as its chairman, it is possible that the Walker act might have had a decent and fair trial. It is patterned exactly after the method used in making up the appropriations for this city—a method which has worked admirably for many years, and there is absolutely no valid reason why it ought not to make good in the state.

Representative White was loyal to his committee which recommended the rejection of the grade crossing bill for the city of Lynn, both Mr. Bothfield and Mr. Ellis voted for it, and the committee was badly beaten.

While our taxation laws certainly need revision I am glad that the various propositions for a state tax on incomes have been referred to the next General Court, after the Senate had passed them almost unanimously. When any amendment is adopted to our state constitution on the matter of taxation, it ought to be broad enough to allow the General Court to do as the people wish on such a vital matter. With about 90 per cent of the burden of taxation borne on real estate, the imminent possibility of the adoption of a national income tax, the passage of a state income tax is to be deplored.

DEMING-MILLARD.

A pretty little romance originating in the recent "The World in Boston" culminated with a wedding ceremony last week Thursday morning in Newton Centre between Mrs. Edith Adams Millard and Mr. Charles S. Deming. The couple are missionaries of long service, who met for the first time at the recent educational feature in Mechanics building.

Mrs. Millard is a missionary who has seen considerable service in China. She is an English woman who wedded an American missionary and worked with him in the China stations. Her husband died about two years ago. During the recent "The World in Boston"
Mrs. Millard had charge of the China scene and much of its success was due to her personal efforts. She is connected with the Baptist foreign missionary society.

Charles Deming is connected with the Methodist foreign missionary society, and has been stationed in Korea. He was here on a furlough and was in charge of the Korean scene during the exposition, and thus met Mrs. Millard for the first time.

Mr. and Mrs. Deming are to go to Korea to resume the work Mr. Deming left when he came to Boston for his holiday.

GIRL DROWNED.

The body of Miss Elsie Carroll, 17 of 177 Langley road, Newton Center, was found by David Waters, a life guard,
in Crystal Lake yesterday afternoon.
The body was identified later by Mrs.
Groth, wife of patrolman William Groth of the Newton police force, who is a relative and with whom she had recently made her home. Medical Examiner West pronounced it a case of suicide and says there was no trace of violence.

Mr. and Mrs. Groth are convinced that the girl is not a suicide and they fear that she met with foul play. Her home life was very happy and she made very few friends.

She left home at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to go to Dorchester to visit a cousin. When she did not return Wednesday evening her friends believed she had remained over night with her cousin. The body was removed to the morgue at the Newton hospital.

MEN AND RELIGION.

Reports received at local headquarters of the Men and Religion Forward movement, which is beginning to engage earnest attention in all parts of the country, indicate that the work of organizing lthoson and its vicinity for the undertaking is well under way. The "Men and Religion" movement is the name under which for six months, beginning next September, the United States and Canada are to be swept by a campaign to bring together, as the name signifies, men and religion, with a view to establishing closer relations between men and active church work and bringing about a recognition of the true relation of men to the religion of Jesus Christ.

Under the plan adopted by the national committee,—"the committee of ninety-seven", to use its official title, which heads the movement, ninety cities of the United States and Canada are to be centers for carrying on the fall and winter campaign. Boston, as one of these centers already has organized its local committee, with Rev.
George E. Briggs, of Lexington, as chairman, and a full list of members and sub-committees representing 100 leading business and churchmen. Francis B. Sears, of Boston, is chairman of the local committee and Edwin W.
Pierce, of 4 Ashburton Place, Boston, is executive secretary.

Within the past few weeks more than 50 public meetings, addressed by Boston and New York speakers agitating the Movement, have been held.

The Boston Campaign will be carried on in the district within a radius of 10 miles from the State House and it will extend as far north as Wakefield, as far west as Waltham and as far south as Readville. At least 10 meeting centres will be selected in this district at which beginning in September, District Meetings will be held at various times in the interest of Bible study, Boys' Work, Evangelism, Missionary effort and Social Service. The meetings, which will be interdenominational in character and held in towns easily accessible by trolley to all the people of the District.

Beginning at about the middle of January, 1912, what are known as "The Eight-Day Campaign meetings" will be held at the centers in each district. During this period speakers who are recognized experts in the various branches of work embraced by the campaign, will be in Boston and each of them will speak in these 10 points during the 8 days, thus making the meetings of equal benefit to all the people of the entire Campaign District.

The Auxiliary Town committee, a sub-committee of the Boston Campaign committee of 100, has invited the following cities in Eastern Massachusetts to become Auxiliary Centers to conduct a year's Campaign in that city and in the district immediately surrounding it:
Lynn, Beverly, Gloucester, Newbury-
port, Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Nashua, N. H., Manchester, N. H., Concord, N. H., Fitchburg, So. Fran-cingham, Norwood, Brockton, Taunton, Middleborough, Plymouth. Of these cities the following 5 are actively at work on their organization and preliminary agitation: Lynn, Lawrence, Lowell, So. Framingham and Brockton. In the following places several meetings have been held and it is expected that they will soon show permanent activity: Beverly, Gloucester, Fitchburg, Taunton and Middleborough.

The Bible Study Committee have organized themselves to promote the following types of work, Boys' Bible Study, Teacher Training, Bible Class Efficiency, Organization of New Classes, Extension Classes, that is, outside of churches. They will co-operate with the Greater Boston Bible Class Council in the annual men's class parade, and,
as far as possible, with any other organization interested in Bible Study
among men and boys.

The Boys' Work Committee has conducted a very successful Conference in Ford Hall, attended by 75 adult leaders and 125 older boys. The committee definitely plans to organize training groups of both adults and older boys to provide trained leaders for churches.
Christian Association, settlements, etc.

THE WEATHER.

The hot spell of last week, which was broken for only a day last Friday, was renewed on Saturday and continued on subsequent days, until yesterday, when the thermometer, which had been flir-ting around 100 in the shade, and to unknown figures in the sun, resumed its normal summer figures. In some ways
the heat of this week was felt more keenly than that of last week. Possibly because the humidity was higher, and more likely because of the effect of the previous heated spell. There were more heat prostrations and two deaths directly attributable to the heat, besides a large death record, part of which was undoubtedly due to the weather conditions.

Guiseppi Laquitoria, who was overcome last week Thursday on Kenrick street and taken to the Hospital died on Friday. Patrick D. Donahue of Washington street, West Newton, aged 66 years was so affected by the heat on Tuesday that he died that evening.

Joe Ablage, a laborer, was overcome by the heat last week Thursday afternoon and taken to the Hospital.

Edward H. Nugent of Washington street, Newton was overcome by the heat on School street, was also taken to the Hospital.

Mary Holden of Cottage street Upper Falls, was affected by the heat on Tuesday morning and removed to the Hospital.

UTOPIA

To every man of every creed
There comes a sweet Utopian dream:
He sees a land where not a weed
May ever grow, where every stream
Makes music as it winds along,
Where all the breezes blow in tune,
Where all the blissful year is June.

There fragrant roses ever bloom,
And everywhere contentment spreads;
The nights are robbed of all their gloom;
The sun a genial radiance sheds;
There all things are superbly planned,
The prospects all spread far and fair;
Each man has dreams of such a land
With him enthroned as master there.
—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

Such a land as described above will be found at Camp Utopia, on Lake

YOU PROBABLY REALIZE

about now what a comfort a shaded piazza would be.

Why don't you let us measure the whole or a part of your piazza and quote you on "VUDOR" porch shades? If you decide not to have them it has cost you nothing.

The "VUDOR" is just about the best made,—practical, durable or simple construction that keeps out the sun and lets in the breeze.

They don't cost much. For instance, $2.25 for 4 feet wide, with 7 foot 8 inch drop, complete with pulleys.

"THE PUBLIC BE PLEASED."

The Colonial Line between Providence and New York have adopted as their motto "The Public Be Pleased", and every effort is being made to follow out this principle in every respect, and to maintain a service fully up to the standard expected and demanded by their patrons.

The fast and elegant screw steamers "Concord" and "Lexington" maintain a daily service between these two great centers, enabling business men to reach their destination without loss of time, and while being distinctive as the only independent line to New York, it offers a high grade service and one which is unsurpassed.

These steamers are of steel, constructed in the strongest possible manner and are especially adapted for Sound Line Service. The cabins are finely furnished, thoroughly ventilated and lighted by electricity, and many of the state-rooms are furnished with double brass beds, accommodating two persons and several of the larger rooms connect with smaller rooms, all of the staterooms are outside rooms and receive light and ventilation from windows opening on the decks.

Office of the Colonial Navigation Company is 256 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

ON A MUSIC TOUR

Word comes of the auspicious arrival in Liverpool of the "Liederheim Music-Tour Club" organized by Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles, proprietor and principal of the "Liederheim School of Vocal Music" of Boston and Auburn-dale, Mass.

There are fifteen in this music tour, under two guides, Mr. Gideon and Mr. Eames, both cultivated musicians and travelers of wide experience. The tour is under the Travel Management of the Bureau of University Travel of Boston. In addition to the complete service guaranteed by the Bureau of University of Travel, famous for their educational tours, this Liederheim Music-Tour Club will have the personal supervision of Mrs. Ruggles, herself widely known as a contralto singer and successful teacher of voice, as well as through her popular Liederheim School of Vocal Music for young women, and her enterprise in all musical matters.

No European tour has ever offered such unique advantages and attractions of such vital and absorbing interest to musicians and music lovers as does this special music tour.

There are several strikingly important features that characterize this tour:

The educational uplift to be obtained through meeting with musicians from widely different parts of our own country, journeying and mingling ideas, accompanying one another to the homes and environment of the musicians of the Old World and there meeting the great masters and workers in the musical profession is not alone a pleasure but an educational benefit beyond price.

Already the party has spent two eventful weeks in England and Scotland, visiting Grasmere the home of Wordsworth, Keswick, Melrose Abbey and Abbotsford, the home of the novelist, Sir Walter Scott. The Trossacks, best known of the old-world scenic excursions; Loch Katrine, dear to the hearts of readers of Scott's novels. Three days have been spent in Edinburgh, the Athens of Great Britain, visiting The Castle, Holyrood, Calton Hill, St. Giles and other points in the City. A day each has been spent in the four great cathedral towns of England, Durham, York, Lincoln and Ely. At two of these places the party was honored with special services followed by organ recitals with programs printed for the party.

The following day was spent in the beautiful university town of Cambridge with visits to the Colleges, The Backs and King's Chapel.

Sunday, July ninth found the party at Stratford-on-Avon. Trinity Church, Shakespeare's grave, Shakespeare House and the many other points of interest have been visited. Then followed a busy day amid the varied points of interest at Oxford, the most venerable and beautiful of university towns. Here the party had the delightful opportunity of meeting Dr. Varley Roberts, director of one of the finest boy choirs in the world, the choir of Magdalen College.

And now as we write the party has reached London. Here the party will remain from the eleventh to the seventeenth of July. A condensed description follows of what remains in store for the Liederheim Music-Tour Club, as furnished us by Mrs. Ruggles:

The opera season at Covent Garden gives us an opportunity to hear the world's greatest singers in the world's greatest operas. There was also a social and musical evening, including an orchestral program of "Modern Young English Music." The hosts being the Society of British Composers.

July 19-26, in Paris a concert of chamber music will be given by the Marcel Chailley String Quartet an organ recital at the English St. Eustache—a marvelous old church in the heart of the squalid marketplace, reception and

PIAZZA PARTY

A very enjoyable phonograph party was given at the residence of Mr. George Breeden, 75 Walker street Wednesday evening with Mr. Asa C. Jewett, Em. Commander elect of the Gethsemane Commandery No. 35 K. T. at the throttle of his machine. Those present were Mr. Asa E. Jewett of Newton Centre, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Peterson of Waltham, Dr. and Mrs. John H. Beane of Natick, Mr. Frank Cone of Cambridge, Mr. and Mrs. John Cutler, Mrs. Sidney H. Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sidney Bryant, Mrs. Thomas Emerson and Messrs Lewis and George Breeden of Newtonville. Ice cream and cake were served on the piazza which was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns and all spent a most enjoyable evening.

recital at the home of a renowned American teacher, pilgrimage to the heights of Montmartre—the scene of Chopin's romantic opera, "Louis" and a recital for our party by the famous organist Widor who has written us a hearty welcome. These are the foremost of the musical pleasures in store for us at the French capital.

July 27. The morning train from Paris draws us reluctantly out of the spell cast upon us by our wonderful week and towards evening brings us our first glimpse of that masterpiece of Gothic architecture—the Cologne Cathedral.

July 28. But the morrow brings a picturesque sail up the Rhine, affording a nearby view of the Lorelei and other spots famous in the legends of the German people. At Bingen—who has not heard of Bingen-on-the-Rhine?—we leave the boat and journey onward to Frankfurt-on-the-Main. Here we visit the house of Goethe, the Cathedral, the house of Luther, the house of the first great Rothschild, the Bethmann Museum and, if time permits, listen to the fascinating music in the Palm Garden.

July 29, 30 (Sunday). The leap from the modern city of Frankfurt to the mediaeval town of Nurnberg is indeed startling. A quiet Sunday here provides a much needed rest and gives the best possible preparation for the soul stirring events of the days to follow.

July 31, August 1. On the morning of the last day of July we enter the Bavarian village of Bayreuth, which is forever associated with the name of Richard Wagner. Here we are to enjoy one performance each of Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg and Parsifal at that unique theatre on the hill which is opened once every two years for a festival performance of the master's works.

August 2, 3. Munich, probably the most interesting centre of art and music in all Germany, offers a Mozart-Wagner Festival.

August 4. The Brenner Pass.

August 5. Trent, Verona.

August 6 (Sunday), 7. Venice.

In this dream city we float about among the great buildings—the Doges' Palace, the churches, St. Mark's, the Academy of Fine Arts—and we succumb to the song of the gondolier.

August 8-14. Here we have a whole week with the world's best art, at Florence.

August 15-23. But we must make certain of entering the Eternal City at the time of its religious mid-summer festival—August 15, the Feast of the Assumption. As if the eternal allurements of this city were not enough, the Italian government this year conducts a great Exposition, the like of which has never been seen in the Kingdom. We also attend one of the concerts and one of the gala performances of opera to be interpreted by Tetrazzini, Caruso, Sammarco, Toscanini and other world famous singers and conductors. This opera festival will take place at the Teatro Costanzi and will present in three series

MAN KILLED

James Rolihan of Springfield while stealing a ride on a freight train last Sunday morning was struck by one of the bridges at Auburndale and received a fractured skull from which he died. Rolihan and James M. Coughlin, both young men of about 23 years of age were on the train and Coughlin saw the bridge in time to escape. He found that Rolihan was hurt and jumped from the train at Newton where the train slowed down a little and told a police officer. A telephone message was sent the Brighton police and Rolihan was taken from the train at the freight yard at that place. He died while being removed to the Boston City Hospital. Coughlin was arrested.

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE.

A live wire Wednesday afternoon ended the life of James Slamin, aged 25, of Newton Lower Falls, while he was painting a telegraph pole in Chestnut street, Wellesley Hills.

Slamin, who had formerly been employed by the New England telephone company as a lineman, went to work two weeks ago as a painter for the town of Wellesley. He had completed several poles and had just ascended to the top of another when he grasped a live wire to steady himself and was killed.

His body fell back in the wires, where it was discovered by Clifton Smith, a foreman employed by the telephone company, who brought it down. Slamin lived with his mother in River Ridge street.

EFFICIENT P. O. CLERK.

Representative Weeks has requested the President to issue an executive order placing Miss Ellen A. Early of Newton in the classified service. Miss Early's brother, James A. Early, is postmaster of Newton Lower Falls. Mr. Early is a grocer and the postoffice is in his shop. For 18 years Miss Early has been his assistant and has had almost entire charge of the postoffice.

The growth of the office has led the postmaster-general to decide that it ought to be separated from the grocery store. In the event that Miss Early takes the civil service examination and passes successfully, she will have to go far down on the list of certified candidates for appointment in the Boston postal district.

MISS CARROLL A SUICIDE.

There is but little question now but what Miss Elsie Carroll, whose body was found last Thursday afternoon in Crystal lake, was a suicide. Her mesh bag, containing her eye glasses and ring were found in the lake on Friday and led to the belief that she deliberately threw herself into the water. Funeral services were held last Saturday morning in the rooms of Mr. E. W. Pratt, the undertaker, and were private. Rev. Dr. E. M. Noyes of the First church officiated and the interment was in Newton Cemetery.

SONS OF VETERANS.

After the meeting refreshments were served. The members of the Grand Army were the guests of the evening.

Castle Square—A farcical play much as "On the Quiet" is especially adapted to summer entertainment at the Castle Square, and it will be Mr. Craig's offering next week. It was in this play that Willie Collier made no little sensation several seasons ago, and it was written by Augustus Thomas, one of the best known and most popular of American playwrights. Mr. Thomas has no little skill at the construction of the plot and the creation of character, and with "Alabama," "The Witching Hour" and a dozen other plays he has amused hundreds of thousands of theatre-goers. The plot of "On the Quiet" deals with the rough course of the true love of a reckless young New Yorker and a girl whose ambitious brother wants her to marry a Russian. The action begins promisingly in the conservatory of a millionaire's mansion, proceeds with merry comedy in the parlor of a New Haven hotel, and is completed on board a yacht stuck in the mud in Long Island Sound. It will therefore be seen that "On the Quiet" lacks not for diversity of scene and character, and no little amusement comes from that as well as from its bright and witty dialogue. Mr. Craig for his production of "On the Quiet" will furnish it with an exceptionally effective cast, the leading roles being acted by Gertrude Binley, Mabel Colcord, William P. Carleton, Frederick Murray and Donald Meek.

We can understand the ease with which a fool and his money are parted, but what puzzles us is how the fool got the money to start with.

NEWTON COMMENDED

A few weeks ago, Street Commissioner Ross entertained the mayor and members of the town council of Outremont, P. Q., a suburb of Montreal, and the following clipping is from a Montreal paper:

"The mayor gave a brief resume of what had been seen by the special deputation, consisting of himself, Councilors Piche and Stuart, with the town engineer, Mr. Dechauteis, who had just returned from a visit to several cities to study the 'methods' of street building and upkeep. The deputation had visited Toronto, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and were of the opinion that while valuable pointers in various directions were to be picked up at all of these, the Boston district was par excellence the place to learn how to make roads. The visitors were particularly struck with conditions at Newton, a ten thousand suburb of Boston, where capital dustless roads were in operation at a cost of only fifteen to twenty cents per yard in excess of the prices paid for ordinary methods. These were oiled by sprinklers, or top-dressed with a sand and oil mixture and notwithstanding a heavy traffic, including many automobiles, the roads were perfectly smooth and dustless. In conclusion Mayor Beaubien said that with the information obtained they were in a position to make immediate start with the laying of splendid roads here, and that a full and more technical report would be ready for submission to the next meeting of the Council."

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Never in the history of vaudeville has there been such wide spread interest aroused over an attraction as that which has been shown over "The Meistersingers' All-Star Minstrels" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. In fact, this wonderful company of fifty has proved a revelation not only in vaudeville but in the minstrel history of America. There has certainly never been a chorus to equal the forty male voices that are singing the old Southern songs and the modern minstrel numbers, while "The Meistersingers" themselves are being heard to better advantage than at any time during their engagement. As for the endmen, George Thatcher, Lew Benedict, Hughie Dougherty, and John Healy, everyone of them has made an individual hit that has revived new interest in minstrelsy, and there will probably never be another similar organization so complete in all its parts as the "Meistersingers' All-Star Minstrels." It will be well worth while for parents to bring their children to see this form of amusement that was so popular in America for many years at its highest development, and see the men whose names have been so long identified with it. As last week, Mr. Keith has provided an exceptionally strong bill, outside of the minstrel circle. It will include Trovato, the wonderful Filipino violinist, who has to be heard to be appreciated; Menckel, whose appearance brings a novelty in the way of invisible writing never before seen in Boston; Neff & Starr, musical comedians; Cullison & Villa Co.; Duff & Walsh; and the Ioleen Sisters.

RYAN A SUICIDE

With a 50-pound bag of sand attached to his left leg, the body of Bartholomew Ryan, who disappeared from his canoe Thursday, was found Monday morning floating in the Charles river by Jeremiah Coleman of Auburndale.

Ryan, who was an employee at the Norumbega leathouse, left there Thursday for Waltham, and since then nothing had been heard from him until his body was recovered that morning.

Ryan's canoe was found floating on the river Thursday, with the paddle inside, and his pocketbook, containing $4, was on the floor. It is supposed that he became crazed with the heat, and after tying the bag of sand, which he had used as ballast in the front of the canoe, to his leg, he leaped overboard and was drowned.

He lived with his wife at the corner of Crescent and Auburn streets, West Newton, and had worked at the boat-house only a short time.

The body was removed to the West-ton bridge headquarters of the Metropolitan police where it was viewed by Medical Examiner G. L. West. Ryan is survived by his wife. They were married but three months ago.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning with services at his late residence at eight o'clock and high mass at St. Bernard's church at nine. Rev. Francis J. Cronin being the celebrant. The interment was at the family lot in Calvary cemetery, Waltham. The church was crowded with relatives and friends of the deceased and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. The pall bearers were Joseph P. Ryan, James Ryan, Frank Ryan, William Ryan, Thomas P. Lyons and Andrew E. Moran.

BURNED TO DEATH.

John Philbin of 32 Middle street, Newton, who was injured in the explosion of naphtha paint which occurred at the Walker & Pratt Mfg. Company's plant at East Watertown, last Saturday, died at the Waltham Hospital soon after his arrival.

Philbin and another employee of the concern, John Leonard of Cambridge, were painting a large iron tank and at the time of the explosion Philbin was wielding the brush inside while Leonard standing on a staging was looking down at him from the outside. Suddenly without any warning, there was a tremendous crash and flash of flame which hurled Philbin clean out of the tank on the ground, while Leonard was knocked over backwards a distance of 10 feet. The clothing of both was a mass of flames and but for the aid of other employees who rushed to their assistance both might have been burned to death.

Philbin was severely burned about the face and body, while Leonard suffered about the head and arms. Drs. Charles O. Chase and M. J. Kelley of Watertown were called to the scene to attend the men. After their wounds had been dressed, Philbin was removed to the Waltham Hospital and Leonard to the Cambridge hospital. Neither was able to explain just what caused the explosion.

EMPLOYMENT BULLETINS.

The State Free Employment Office, at 8 Kneeland St., Boston, which is maintained by the Commonwealth, (service free to all), sends to the clerk of each free to all), sends to the clerk of each some of the office a daily bulletin, showing opportunities open at 9 A. M. at that office. It is sent out the evening before for posting the following morning, and, as required by law, it should be posted promptly in a conspicuous place by the clerk of the municipality receiving it.

A PROFESSIONAL VISIT

By A. TOMLINSON FORD

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Tom Murphy was a lousy lad not long from the Emerald Isle. He could never see any work going on but he must be in it. His fort was emergencies. If a man needed to be dug out from under a pile of bricks or earth Tom's pick and shovel were always in the advance of others. Did some one tumble in a well Tom was the person to go down and rescue him. Indeed, Tom was always about when an accident occurred and the principal man in the salvage gang.

But great strength in one direction is usually at the expense of strength in another. Let Tom get sick and he was the veriest coward and whimper in the land. At the slightest ailment he would take to his bed and groan and fret and wonder why the doctor didn't come, keeping his mother and his little sister Nora waiting on him. Then the moment the pain left him he was covered with shame at his timidity. He kicked off the cover, bounded out of bed and seized upon any method convenient or otherwise to show those about him that he was, after all, a man.

One afternoon Tom was seized with a griping. As usual, he got into bed, dispatched his younger brother for the doctor and roared for restoratives. His mother brought hot water, dipped a towel in it and clapped it on Tom's bare stomach. Tom howled with pain, for the water was near the boiling point and took the skin off. His mother ran to the water cooler with another towel, soaked it in and, running back to the bed, put it where she had put the other one. A terrible chill ran through the invalid, and the griping increased fourfold.

"If the doctor don't get here within five minutes," he cried, "I shall be a dead man."

But before the five minutes were up the pain suddenly left him. He sat up in bed and looked about him.

"Lie down," said his mother. "The doctor is coming and if he finds you able to sit up he will be very angry. We've been hurrying him, telling him that you were at death's door."

Tom lay back on his pillow and covered himself up. Presently he heard a commotion without and fragments of sentences. "Holy mother, he'll be drowned!" "It's quick!" "What's the matter?" and such like phrases. Jumping out of bed, Tom ran into another room where he could look for half a mile down the road. There was the doctor's automobile rolled down the bank beside the road till it hung on the margin over the river. The chauffeur was swimming, while the doctor was holding the auto to keep it from sliding into the water.

"Give me my clothes," cried Tom. "Quick, the doctor's auto will be lost!" "Bad luck to you, Tom," said his mother, "for an idiot. We've been telephoning an' sendin' for the doctor to save yer loife, an' now yer goin' to lift his automobile."

"Me clothes, me clothes!" was all the reply they received. They brought them, and while he was putting them on he cried:

"Nora, go to bed."

"What for?" asked Nora.

"So we can tell the doctor that a mistake was made."

By this time Tom had got into his shirt, his trousers and his boots and dashed down to where the doctor was holding the auto. Tom grabbed it and with the strength of a young bull tugged at it until he got it to a place where it was safe from further injury. Then the doctor looked at him surprised.

"I thought you were dying," he said. "Ye'r mistaken; it's Nora. Hurry, doctor. She's got rumatiz and pneumonia and stomach ache all at the same time."

The doctor went on up to the house, leaving Tom to look after the auto while the chauffeur went to dry himself. As soon as the physician reached the house he was hurried into Nora's room. A pompous, opinionated old fellow, he would not brook a suggestion from any one. He felt Nora's pulse and put his ear down to her heart.

"I think it's a bad cold, doctor," said his mother. "I hope it won't turn into newmomy."

"A cold be hanged!" said the doctor savagely. "She's got no cold, but palpitation of the heart. I must check it or she'll die."

Poor little Nora! She had been so excited over the recent events, especially the turn they had taken in her being the invalid instead of her brother, that it was no wonder her heart beat wildly. She did not know what remedy the doctor would employ.

"It's in me side, doctor," she said faintly, hoping to ward off any heart remedies.

"You need something warming," said the medical man. "Bring a red-hot poker."

"Holy mother! Doctor, are ye goin' to wurrum me wid that?"

"I'm going to mull some liquor with it," said the doctor.

But Nora was not convinced, and, while the physician turned his back to get some pills out of his medicine case, she jumped out of bed and ran for dear life.

The doctor, angered beyond measure, stalked out of the house, found his auto at the door and, jumping in, clugged viciously away.

Tom was afterward on one occasion very sick and sent for the doctor again, but he wouldn't come.

A Few Thoughts on Money.

Money, otherwise known as tin, dough, cash, gold, rocks, etc.

The corporeality of national circulation which indicate the strength of our constitution.

It is often called a curse. Some swear by it, others swear for it, and still others swear at it.

It often causes a species of mental derangement or delirium called money mania. Many are willing to be thus inoculated.

It is the feature of social distinction. It is the measure of intelligence—those who have it are wise, those who have it not are foolish. Possession of it entitles one to the use of a money-gran.

Though a medium of exchange, it has no connection with souls or astral bodies.

It is the religion of today, often called moneythelism. Preachers pray for it; laymen lay for it.

It is the be all and the end all. Children cry for it, women sigh for it, men die for it, and all lie for it.—Smart Set.

Wrecked by a Knife Blade.

A ship was once wrecked on the Irish coast. The captain was a careful one. Nor had the weather been of so severe a kind as to explain the wide distance which the vessel had swerved from her proper course. The ship went down, but so much interest attached to the disaster that a diving bell was sunk. Among other portions of the vessel that were examined was the compass that was swung on the deck, and inside the compass box was detected a bit of steel, which appeared to be the small point of a pocket-knife blade. It was learned that the day before the wreck a sailor who had been sent cleaning the compass had used his pocket knife in the process and had unceremoniously broken off the point and left it remaining in the box. That bit of knife blade exerted its influence on the compass and to a degree that deflected the needle from its proper bent and vitiated it as an index of the ship's direction. That bit of knife blade wrecked the vessel.

Scotch Students.

Many a man who never had any "schooling" gets an education, and often a surprisingly good one.

A traveler in Scotland once met a farmer whose ground rent was about $20 a year and who wrote poetry in Gaelic that was of a high order.

This same traveler met a youth in Scotland who rode from home on horseback to the seaport and then across Scotland to Aberdeen, where he sold his horse to enter the university.

It is related of another Scotchman that he was overheard repeating a line of Tennyson, whereupon some one asked him what poet he liked best.

"Homer," he replied.

"Whose translation do you read?" "I rarely read a translation," he said, wiping the fish scales from his apron. "I like best to read Homer in the original Greek."—Minneapolis Tribune.

All About a Cruiser.

"What sort of a boat is this?" inquired the inquisitive man at the docks.

"A cruiser," replied a smart lad.

"And where is she going?"

"A cruise, sir."

"What makes it go?"

"It's screw, sir."

"Who are on board?"

"It's crew, sir."

"It looks pretty smart."

"We have to keep it clean, or rubbish and dust would accrue, sir."

"Oh, you're too smart! Where do you come from?"

"From Crewe, sir."—London Tit-Bits.

Manhattan Scallop.

A delicious breakfast or luncheon dish is Manhattan scallop. Shred sufficient cold cooked fish to measure a good half pint. It must be free from skin and bone. Add to it one cupful of fine stale breadcrumbs, a good seasoning of salt and pepper, two well beaten eggs mixed with a half cupful of stewed tomatoes. Turn all into a buttered dish, sprinkle the top with buttered breadcrumbs, dot with bits of butter and brown in a hot oven.—Suburbanite.

Sizes of the Planets.

An ingenious way of comparing the sizes of planets with the sun is suggested by a French scientific writer. Let the earth, he says, be represented by a twenty franc piece; then Venus is 15 francs; Mars, 7; Mercury, 7; Uranus, 280; Neptune, 320; Saturn, 1,840; Jupiter, 6,900, and the sun 6,780,000.

A Time For Blindness.

There is sometimes a greater charity in seeming not to see our neighbor's trouble than in trying to relieve it. "Let me alone!" is the prayer of many a tortured heart when the curious, the officious and the tactless force the door of its place of desolation, albeit they bring wine and oil.

Looked Like a Big Dose.

The man in bed had never been sick before. The doctor, wishing to ascertain his temperature, pointed the thermometer at him and commanded:

"Open your mouth, Jim."

"Wait a minute, doc," objected the patient. "I don't believe I can swallow that."—Judge.

Questions and Answers.

The time elapsing between a question and an answer is almost as important as the answer itself. It may be wisely long or short, but the longer it is the wiser must be the answer.

Let nothing shocking to eyes or ears approach those doors that close upon your child.—Juvenal.

A LOVER'S TEST

By MARGARET KELLY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

In Constantinople there once lived a young girl whose father and mother, dying, had left her a snug fortune. Moreover, her parents being dead, she was at liberty to choose a husband for herself.

Now, Fatima—that was the girl's name—was very particular about one thing in the man who should be her husband. She wished him to be a brave man. Superstition at that time hung like a pall upon the Turks as well as the Christians. But Fatima was more enlightened than others and had a contempt for any young man who would be terror stricken at a supposed apparition.

Three lovers sought her hand. To the first she said: "My father last night appeared to me in a dream and told me that if I would send one whom I thought of marrying to the sepulcher in the cemetery where his body and those of others of our family lie he would appear to the suitor and give me to him. Go there and receive me from my father, and in the morning return to me. Then I will marry you."

The young man, whose name was Abdallah, reluctantly accepted the situation and said that he would go to the sepulcher as soon as it was dark and wait for the ghost's appearance.

Then Fatima told the second lover, Hamid, what she had done, adding that if he would go to the sepulcher and appear to Abdallah as a ghost and scare him away she would accept Hamid for her husband. Hamid was quite pleased at what he considered an easy way to get a rich wife and agreed to abide by the result of his effort.

The third suitor, Bismillah, was an independent fellow, and Fatima preferred him to either of the others. She told him of the arrangement she had made with them and said that she would also give him a chance for her hand. Whoever of the three was found in the sepulcher in the morning she would marry.

"Nonsense," replied Bismillah. "I'm not going to make a guy of myself by sleeping in a tomb."

"Oh, I thought you loved me," replied Fatima.

"So I do, but not well enough to risk my life by remaining all night in a cold sepulcher. What good would it do me to win a wife and die?"

"It is very plain," said Fatima, "that you do not love me."

"I don't call love giving way to a whim."

"It is not a whim; it is a test."

"Very well, test these other men. I have no mind to enter such an absurd competition."

He turned on his heel and left her. She was very much disappointed. She had given her word to the other two to marry the one who should fulfill the conditions, relying on Bismillah, whom she knew to be brave and free from superstitions, to occupy the sepulcher and thus win her. His refusal upset all her plans and would give her a husband she did not wish to marry.

She lay awake all night bewailing the miscarriage of her plan and thinking how foolish she had been to undertake it. She knew Bismillah would not fear to remain all night in any uncanny place, and she respected him for not being willing to win her in such fashion. Besides, his indifference only made her more anxious to have him for her husband.

She fretted over the matter till just before dawn, when she determined to go herself and try to frighten away the suitors she did not wish to marry.

Dressing herself, she wound a sheet about her and hurried to the cemetery. Approaching the sepulcher of her ancestors, she heard a sound and stopped to listen. Could it be a snore? Surely it was a snore. One of the men she had sent there had got rid of the other, gone into the sepulcher and fallen asleep.

All now depended on Fatima's frightening away the man in the sepulcher. The moon had risen, and there was light enough from this and the coming of dawn for her to be distinctly seen, though it was too dark for her to see the man in the sepulcher. Standing before the door, which was open, she gave a shriek. There was a sound as of some one turning, the creaking of some sort of a bed, and a voice came:

"Go away from here and cease to disturb my slumber."

"Leave this abode of the dead," said Fatima in a sepulchral voice, "or I will drag you with me to Tartarus."

"That would please me greatly," replied the voice huskily. "By coming here I have put myself in an unpleasant position. A girl told me that if I would occupy this place till morning she would marry me. I refused; then, lest she should think me cowardly, I came. I brought my bed with me and drove away two fools I found here. Now I suppose I shall have to marry this girl. I would prefer going with you to Tartarus."

There was silence for a few moments, then Fatima gave a sob, then a laugh, and Bismillah, who knew from the first it was she, sprang from the cot he occupied, took her in his arms and checked her sobs and her laughter with kisses.

Then, taking up his bed, he carried it, walking home beside her.

There wasn't any trouble about her choosing a lover after that. The two other suitors took a back seat, and Bismillah occupied the only front one.

A Double Risk.

It was well known in Mayville that when Cyrus Fanning lent anything from a hammer to a plow, he expected a good return for the favor. It was a matter of astonishment to Wilson Green, however, when on inquiring of Mr. Fanning how much it would cost to rent his long ladder for an afternoon Cyrus replied promptly, "One dollar fifty."

"Now, look here, Cy," remonstrated his neighbor; "you know I've got to borrow it, for mine isn't long enough to reach where I'm obliged to climb to search out that chimney leak for the Widow Sears. Can't you make it less?"

"No, I can't," and Mr. Fanning shook his small head and closed his obstinate mouth.

"Why can't you?" demanded Wilson Green.

"Because there's a weak place in it—two-thirds the way up!" snapped Mr. Fanning. "It'll bear my weight all right, but you're a good thirty pounds heavier. If it gave way under you 'twould cost me a dollar to get it mended. Considering the risk, I call a dollar 'n' a half cheap."—Youth's Companion.

The Seal Ring.

The seal ring is known to be the oldest style of ring. It dates back to the days of the Old Testament, and products of the glyptic art, as gem engraving was called, were known in the most remote times. In Exodus xxviii, 17-20, mention is made of the following stones, upon which the names of the twelve children of Israel were engraved: The sardius, the topaz, the carbuncle, the emerald, the sapphire, the diamond, the ligure, the agate, the amethyst, beryl, onyx and

HOW HE WAS EXECUTED

By OSCAR COX

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

We may dress up a man in uniform, foot a horn, a rattle, a drum, in his ear and he will shoot down his fellow beings with great zest. But try to make him kill even one of them in cold blood, then you will see what a difficult matter it is.

There was once a kingdom not as big as Monaco, and that is small enough in all conscience. Little Sonneson was but five miles in circumference. Yet it was a perfect kingdom. for King Slindilgrah was a real royal personage, five feet high, five feet around the girth and wore a crown that weighed pretty nearly as much as himself. He had a cabinet, masters of the robes and hounds and courtiers galore. There were 5,000 commoners, with a number of horses, mules, cats and other animals. The general of the army of forty men (mostly effective) was a terrible fellow, with fierce mustaches as pointed as his sword.

But the army and the general were both for show, for the kingdom was under the protection of its neighbor, the emperor of Hollibag, who had been paying it a stated sum ever since the principal part of the territory had been lopped off many centuries before for the benefit of the empire. Besides, the little Sonnesons were the most peaceful people in the world. So tender hearted were they that once when a musquito flew over their from what is now New Jersey they refrained from killing it, so that it planted all the pools with musquitos.

Nevertheless there was once a murder committed in the kingdom by a man named Hans Gotterman. But that was an exceptional case, for he killed his wife, who was a nagger. Perhaps for this extraordinary incitement to murder he might have gone scot free had he not been lazy and generally worthless. So he was convicted and sentenced to have his head chopped off.

But here arose a difficulty. There was a royal executioner, but, like the general of the army, he was for show. He wore tight, a mask and all that, constantly carrying an ax on his shoulder. But the ax was wooden and its bearer so tender hearted that when he had fried chicken for breakfast his wife was obliged to cut off his head.

At a meeting of the cabinet the matter of Hans Gotterman was discussed, and it was agreed that the royal executioner wouldn't do for the job at all. So it was decided to send a request to the emperor of Hollibag for the loan of his headman. Unfortunately there had been a revolution in the empire, and the royal executioner was so busy cutting off the heads of rebels that he could not be spared.

At another meeting of the cabinet it was decided to offer a hundred pieces of gold to whomsoever would execute the murderer. The offer was posted everywhere throughout the kingdom, and the king and his cabinet waited for some one to step forward, accept it and put an end to Gotterman. But no one was willing to kill a man at the price, and as no other expedient was suggested Gotterman still lived.

One day a musquito bit him and impregnated him with bacteria that caused a terrible fever. The court waited expectantly, thinking the man would die, but he disappointed them by getting well, and since it cost considerable to keep him the cabinet decided to let him out on his promise to return when an executioner could be found to behead him. He rather objected to this, but his keeper stopped his food and thus forced compliance.

Every few days he would pretend he had heard that an executioner had arrived and go back to the jail, demanding food and interin. Thus he got to be an insufferable bore. No one could be found to kill him, he wouldn't die.

One day it was reported to the king that fifty coal miners had been buried in a mine. These were citizens the state could not afford to lose. The cabinet ordered a hundred men collected at great expense to dig the miners out. They dug a month, when one day, hearing a voice, they made their way with pick and shovel toward the sound. After several days' hard work they broke into a compartment and there found Gotterman.

He said he had gone into the mine for work, but when asked how he had lived so long without food pointed to fifty empty dinner pails. He had gone into the place where the entombed men had placed their dinners. None of the laborers was ever got out alive. Gotterman alone survived the catastrophe.

The king was much incensed when he heard the story of Gotterman's rescue and renewed his efforts among the neighboring states for the loan of an executioner, but without success. Then came a written offer from the murderer to cut his own head off for the promised reward. The cabinet could not accept it, because there was a law of the kingdom against suicide.

One day when the cabinet was in council a member presented an offer from a woman who was known to be a faithful shrew to marry Gotterman if she were paid as a dowry the hundred pieces of gold for his execution. The cabinet decided to accept the offer. As soon as Gotterman heard that he must marry the shrew all his courage left him. He had got rid of one nagger and dreading to be tied up with another. A law was passed compelling him to marry the woman, and she talked him to death within a month.

Colors Warm and Cold.

One clear, cold winter's day Benjamin Franklin spread a number of handkerchiefs carefully on a level stretch of snow. One of the handkerchiefs was black, another white and the others of various colors. Some time afterward he returned and removed the handkerchiefs carefully one by one, measuring the depth of snow under each. Under the black handkerchief he found that the snow had melted considerably; under a red handkerchief, almost as much; under a blue handkerchief, very little, and under the white one scarcely any. By this simple experiment he learned that color has a great deal to do with the warmth of clothing. White sheds the sun's heat almost as well as an oilskin sheds water; blue is nearly as heat proof; green is less so; yellow is a warm color, red a still warmer color, while black soaks up almost all the sun's heat that strikes it. Make the experiment some time and you will see why black clothes are out of place in the summer time and white ducks in winter.—Christian Herald.

The Thunderer's Logographs.
Some of the most serious riots recorded in the printing trades occurred in 1814, when the London Times was first printed by steam, and a number of workmen discharged through this innovation sought to wreck the office in Printing House square. Long before this the Times had been printed logographically—that is to say, the proprietor conceived the happy idea of having words cast entire to save the compositors the trouble of collecting type. The logographs most in demand were: Dreadful, robbery, atrocious outrage, fearful calamity, alarming explosion, loud cheers, interesting female. One hundredweight of each of these was always kept in stock. Interesting females no longer figure in newspaper reports, but otherwise the clichés of journalism seem to have altered but little.—London Chronicle.

China's Floating Islands.
On all the great lakes of China are found floating islands, which are enormous rafts of bamboo overlaid with earth and bearing on the surface of the water pretty houses and gardens. They are, in fact, aquatic farms, bearing crops of rice and vegetables. The rich bottom mud, utilized as an artificial soil, is extremely fertile and yields bountiful harvests, though on a small scale. In a country where there is a lack of available land the floating plantations are most serviceable, large sails being attached to the dwelling house as well as to each corner of the island whenever it is desired to move about. After gathering a crop of grain or garden produce from his farm the floating farmer casts his nets into the water and from their depths brings up a supply of fish for his family.

Cheeky John Forster.
In "William Harrison Ainsworth and His Friends" the author, S. M. Ellis, tells a quaint story of Ainsworth and his friend John Forster. Ainsworth had discovered a fine set of Hogarth's engravings which was held at £5, a sum which, he said, "I could not just then spare or at least did not think I ought to spare. I took John Forster down to see the Hogarths, whereupon he actually said that he would and must have them himself and as he had not £5 of loose money at that moment I should lend that sum to him. I pointed out the absurdity of the position—that I wanted the engravings for myself and could not afford to lay out the money; how, then, could I lend it to him? It was of no use. He overruled me, had the £5 of me and bought the Hogarths I was longing for."

The Moves in Chess.
In the number of possible moves chess stands alone among games, and not only is it perfectly safe to say that no living man has ever made even once every possible move, but it is highly improbable that in all the centuries of the history of the game has every possible move been made. The different ways of playing the first four moves on each side are so numerous that if every man, woman and child in a city of half a million population were to set to work playing them at the rate of four moves a minute night and day it would be more than a year before any one would be able to leave the chessboard.

A Freak Tortoise.
"Patrick, Patrick!" admonished a lady. "Be careful where you are walking! You nearly trod upon my darling tortoise!"
"Och, be aisy, me lady!" rejoined her Irish gardener. "Shure an' I wouldn't hurt a hair of his head, the sweet creature!"—London Telegraph.

His Choice.
Kindly Old Man—Well, my little man, what would you like to be when you grow up?
Little Man—I'd like to be a nice old gentleman like you, with nothin' to do but walk around and ask questions.

His Protest.
A bright little lad heard his parents talking about the salaries of teachers. "I don't see why they should pay the teachers," he said very seriously, "when we children do all the work."

Mixed.
Policeman (to clubman returning home late)—Here, you can't open the door with that. It's your cigar. Clubman—Great Scott, then I have smoked my hatchkey!—Hire.

Some of the best and happiest hours possible to a man's life are held in trust for him, so to speak, by his fellow men.

POLICE NOTES.

There were two auto cases in the Newton court Tuesday morning, in each of which the defendants were found guilty and fined. The first, Chas. E. Middleby of Malden, was caught several nights ago while operating an auto without a license. He was fined $15 for this offence and $15 for violation of city ordinance. Gordon Parmenter of Natick, who also neglected to get out a license before going auto driving, was fined $10 on that charge, also $5 for not having his rear light lit.

Charles Buttnar of Harrison avenue, Boston, was fined $15 Wednesday morning on the charge of having assaulted Antonio Laurence on the night of July 16 at Norumbega Park, where both were employed in the restaurant. According to the testimony the men had an argument which ended by Buttnar striking Laurence in the face. The latter fell backward, struck his head against a post and received a bad scalp wound. When the police inquired of Buttnar concerning the case it is alleged that Buttnar declared that Laurence had a heat stroke and had thus injured himself.

Early yesterday morning the police were called to the house of Mrs. Amelia Caponi at 7 Quirk court, Nonantum district, and there found Francesco Toscano, 35, a boarder, bleeding profusely from a number of deep wounds about the face and head. He was taken to police headquarters and after his wounds had been dressed was locked up on a charge of assault and battery. Mrs. Caponi swearing to the complaint. According to her story, Toscano this morning attempted familiarities and she struck him over the head with a billet of wood in defending herself.

Norumbega Park—It is about this time of year when Norumbega Park is in its prime. The summer foliage is now in its best state of development, the landscape gardening effects have reached their highest state of perfection, and the well cultivated flower beds are in full bloom. To wander through its well kept paths, through its leafy bowers, taking glances here and there out on the beautiful Charles dotted with the festive canopied parties is worth the trolley trip to Norumbega, to say nothing of the many attractions there. The Zoological Garden was never more interesting than it is this season. It is a distinct pleasure to all lovers of animals to find the beasts of the jungle and forests so well cared for in their special enclosures which are planned to approach as near as possible to their natural habitat. The new Grape Arbor Cafe has bounded higher than ever this season in the estimation of the public. With its excellent menu and capital service, orchestra concerts, cozy garden nooks it is well nigh ideal, and quite in keeping with the spirit of this woodland park. Such features as the Casino, Merry-go-round, rifle range, Chalet of Wonders, women's cottage, the Aviary, Monkey House, Children's playground, etc., there is no lack of diversified entertainment. The vaudeville program for the coming week, every afternoon and evening, beginning Monday, July 24, is one of exceptional merit, containing as it does a great variety of feature acts by the leading talent of the vaudeville world. For the balance of this week the visitors to the magnificent open air theatre are hugely enjoying the Alabama Troubadours, those colored merry-makers, singers, dancers, and cake walkers who have been so popular as entertainers here in past seasons.

Of all hard things to bear and grin, The hardest is to know you have been taken in.

POLICEMAN TRAPPED.

Police Officer Enegess had a rather trying experience Wednesday evening, which he probably will not care to repeat in the near future. While patrolling his route, he noticed that a window was unlocked in the home of Mr. W. F. Gregory on Walnut street, Newtonville, and entered the house thru the window for the purpose of locking it. While leaving by the front door, the spring lock of the inner door closed behind him, and as the front door only opened with a key, the officer was shut in the front vestibule as closely as in a cell. It was some time before his rapping on the front door brought assistance and the patrol was summoned from West Newton before the door was opened. He was confined for about an hour and a half.

There is one phase of the direct nomination law which may not occur to the average citizen. It is the potent factor Boston will be in determining the coming nominations, for many years. For instance, the voters of Newton have been content to allow a few men to pick and choose the delegates to the various conventions, not realizing, or being indifferent to the fact that delegates so selected have been chosen to aid or defeat certain candidates for office. As a result the attendance of voters at the primaries or caucuses, has been small, usually about ten per cent of our voting list. Newton's experience has been typical of most of the cities and towns of the state. Boston, on the contrary, has had a direct nomination law for several years in all the important offices below the state ticket;
and usually casts a large vote at the primaries. It is expected, therefore, that it will take some years to educate the voters outside of Boston, up to the fact, that hereafter each vote will be a factor in determining the result, and until that education is completed, Boston will undoubtedly cast a preponderance of the total vote, and thereby dictate the state nominations of each party.

It is singular how general public opinion approves the administration of Governor Foss. Carefully and judiciously compared with that of former Governor Draper, it is sadly lacking in most of those essentials, hitherto, believed to be the "Massachusetts" standard. The fact that a large majority of the Legislature pass measures over his vetoes is taken by the public to be an evidence of politics, and not an evidence of poor judgment on the part of the Governor. The half baked reports of his experts, his own messages, filled with misstatements, and erroneous impressions, are also accepted by a credulous public as the words of a statesman, and legitimate criticisms by members of the Legislature are again attributed to "politics."

When the present political hysteria is over, the people of Massachusetts will realize that they made a great mistake in substituting Eugene N. Foss for a governor as sound and able as Eben S.
Draper.

Lower Falls

—Cochran's paper mills are shut down
this week for repairs.

—Mrs. Sumner Shattuck is able to be out again after a very long and severe illness.

—The ball game of last Saturday between the Lower Falls team and the Cherokees of South Boston was watched by a goodly number of spectators.
It resulted in the first defeat of the home team, the score being ten to one.

—Mrs. Charles Worthington formerly Miss Eliza Jenkins and a life long resident of this place died last Monday after a short illness. She will be greatly missed by a large number of friends
while the loss to her own home circle calls for our deepest sympathy.

—It will be of interest to many to learn that Mrs. Mary A. Martin who died recently in Manchester, N. H., in her ninety-ninth year was born here at Newton Lower Falls in what is known as the old Rice house. She was a sisigate, the irrigator, the subjugator, the big

DOWNING STREET, LONDON.

It Bears the Name of a Clever Man
From Massachusetts.

Downing street, London, where are the British colonial and foreign offices and the official residence of the first lord of the treasury and where cabinet councils are held, perpetuates the name of a clever man from Massachusetts.
Those were the days before the Fourth of July had any significance in American annals, and George Downing, the first scholar in the first public school in Massachusetts and the first graduate sent out by Harvard college, came to England and became a chaplain in Cromwell's army.

By a remarkable stroke of fortune
he was sent to represent England at The Hague when Europe was trembling before Oliver, and during three distinct eras in England's history he held the office of British ambassador at the Dutch court. He was as popular or as clever under the Merry Monarch as under the protector and the commonwealth, and it came to pass in the reign of Charles II. that the man from Massachusetts was granted a great tract of land at Westminster, where he built huge mansions and laid out Downing street.

To this day Downing's street is Downing street still, and, though George Downing is forgotten, there is no name in the British empire which is more familiar to us than his.—St.
James' Gazette.

GREEN TURTLES.

The Youngsters Have a Perilous Time
After Being Hatched.

Concerning the great turtles of the southwest Indian ocean a traveler says: "The chelonian, or green turtle (Chelone mydas), is an animal of considerable economic importance to the atoll, for it still occurs in the vast hordes which are so often described by early voyagers in the tropics.
There appear to be two distinct groups
—one resident and small in numbers, the other migratory and visiting the atoll to breed in numbers impossible to estimate.

"The latter arrives in December, and from then to April the sea seems alive with turtles. The females seek the small sand beaches and then ascend them with the rising tide, pushing themselves laboriously above high tide mark. Holes are then dug in the sand by means of the fore flippers until a satisfactory one is obtained, and the eggs, 200 in number, are buried, the turtle returning to sea immediately.

"After forty days the eggs hatch almost simultaneously, and the young turtles dig their way up out of the sand and go down to the sea in a long procession, in the course of which they offer an easy prey to their enemies, the frigate birds and herons. Once in the sea, sharks and other large fish eat them, and only 10 per cent reach maturity."—Chicago News.

A Strong Recommendation.
"We are not taking on any new traveling men just now," the safe manufacturer said. "Business is rather dull in our line."

"Well, if you need one let me know,"
said the applicant for a job. "I'd rather sell your safe than any there is in the market. It's the best."

"Are you an expert?"

"Yes, sir. I know all there is to be known about safes."

"Ever dealt in them?"

"No, sir."

"Ever worked in a factory?"

"No, sir."

"How do you know ours is the best?"

"Because it takes longest to break into it."

"How do you know that?"

"I'm a reformed burglar."

He got the job.—Chicago Tribune.

An Immense Flower.
The largest of all the flowers of the world is said to be the rafflesia, a native of Sumatra, so called after Sir Stamford Raffles. This immense flower is composed of five round petals of a brilliant color, each measuring a foot across. These are covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens. The cup of the rafflesia is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is covered with projections like miniature cows' horns. The cup when free from its contents will hold about twelve pints. The flower weighs about fifteen pounds and is very thick, the petals being three-quarters of an inch.
—Scientific American.

Rhinoceros Horns.

The horns of the African rhinoceros sometimes grow to the length of four feet. In olden times rhinoceros horns were employed for drinking cups by royal personages, the notion being that poison put into them would show itself by bubbling. There may have been some truth in the idea, inasmuch as many of the ancient poisons were acids, and these acids would decompose the horny material very quickly.
—London Telegraph.

Adaptable.

house my husband asked me to inquire
if the district is at all unhealthy.

band's profession, madam? Client—
He is a physician. House Agent—Hum-

to admit that the district is not too healthy.—London Opinion.

HE ESCAPED THE GALLOWS

By R. G. MARTIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

An old sailor was run into his last port—the Sailors' Snug Harbor. After his first supper he sat on a bench outside, filled a pipe with a short stem and smoked luxuriously. Several of the inmates of the institution approached him, pulling on their own pipes, and sat down near him, and one of them said to him:

"Mate, we uns have made a rule here that every newcomer introduces himself by spinnin' a yarn. That way we can judge him. A man generally gives himself away when he's tellin'
his spereences."

"About myself?"

"In course. How can we judge o'
you if your yarn's about some one else?"

"Well, here goes," said the newcomer after a few thoughtful whiffs at his pipe. "My yarn happened when I was aboard the bark Sarah Blake. I was young then and full o' life, and, though I say it myself, no man could get aloft quicker and hang on tighter, furlin' at the same time, than I could. But I had the misfortune to get the enmity
o' the first officer, McWhalley, and after that my life wasn't worth livin'. He did everything he could to get me overboard, sendin' me out to the end of a yardarm when the ship was rollin' and dipplin' me in the crests
o' the seas. Another time he sent me on to the bowsprit when it was covered with ice and pokin' itself into every wave that came along. Well, one day he knocked me down with a marlinpike, and I picked up a capstan bar and hit him on the head."

The old fellow took his pipe out of his mouth, cocked his eye at his hearers and asked if the Snug Harbor was a locker for secrets. Being assured that it was, he proceeded.

"I was desperate and didn't know how hard I struck. I cracked his skull, and he died the same afternoon. In course I was put in irons to be taken into port and tried for both mutiny and murder—either one o' which, as you know, mates, is enough to hang a
man."

"There wasn't a seaman aboard that didn't like it because I'd downed the mate and got rid o' him. The captain and the other officer didn't think that way. They didn't believe in mutiny now, and they was bound to bring me to trial. They didn't know who to trust to guard me in the brig,
but it didn't make much difference,
for so long as we were at sea there was no way o' gettin' ashore, even if I had my liberty. But the afternoon after I killed the mate my guard, as soon as he was put on watch, put his finger aside his nose, and he said in a whisper:

"Mate, we seamen has been con-
sultin' a way to git you out o' hangin'.
We're nearin' the coast, and the mate
you killed is to be buried at two bells tomorrow mornin'. He's sewed up in his hammock now, with a ten pound shot tied to his ankles. Say the word and we'll take him out and put you in. We kin give you a sharp knife to cut yourself out with, some cork from the lifeboats, a bottle o' water an'
some berrings."

"I told him I'd rather die that way than be swingin' at a rope's end, and I might git picked up. So that night when the men that was my friends
was on watch they tuk off the irons, gave me the things, tyin' the corks around my body under the arms, the berrings in a bag the sailmaker had got up for the purpose around my waist, a bottle o' water hung from the waist between my legs, and the knife
I put in my pocket. Then they watched their chance to git rid o' the mate's body and after dumpin' it overboard put me in the hammock and sewed me up."

"In the mornin', soon after two bells
struck, I heard footsteps on the deck, nobody sayin' nothin' and then quiet
for awhile, when the captain's voice sounded somethin' readin' the burial service. This was more'n I'd counted on.
I knew I'd probably die, but I objected to the burial service bein' read over me before I was dead."

"Howsomever, I lay still, and when the skipper got through I felt myself lifted up, laid on an inclined plank and skidded off into the water.

"I've know, mates, that was a mighty mean fellin', a weight hangin' to my ankles, draggin' me down. But I didn't have no time to be thinkin'.
If I didn't cut the shot loose quick enough I'd go down where the water pressure would keep me down. So-sides, I couldn't hold my breath more than fifty seconds, though I'd been practicin' doin' it. I whipped out my knife, ripped open the hammock, got my arms out and cut the cord in about twenty seconds."

"The bag fell off while I was risin'.
There was a danger that I'd be seen from the ship, so I was, but this had been provided for. As soon as I was afoot some of my friends tuk up the attention o' one o' the officers, and nobody saw me except men who was in the plot.

"I floated on the water all that day and the next. I'd had a good breakfast before bein' list'd overboard and didn't eat nothin' till evenin', when I pulled out some berrings from the pouch around my belt and took a little water.
I saw several ships that day, but none on 'em came near enough to hail. The next day one passed me about a mile away. Another, twelve hours later, pretty near run me down. I yelled,
and they took me aboard."

SEEING A JOKE.

It Depends on the Brand of Humor to Which One is Accustomed.

Foreigners, as a rule, do not understand our wit and humor. Sir Alfred Harnsworth once remarked to me, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, that American humor was coarse and sometimes brutal. Mark Twain and Finley Peter Dunne are the only American humorists who are accepted by Englishmen. On the other hand, we do not appreciate the humor of Punch, the Englishman's delight.

I have seen an Englishman laugh heartily over a joke in Punch that I couldn't see any point to until it was explained to me, and no doubt that gentleman considered me as dense as we consider them when we tell them a funny story and get a sort of pained look, rather mystifying to be sure, instead of the laugh which was expected.

It is the local application of the joke that counts the world over. The funniest thing I ever saw was the charge
a yearling Hereford bull made at a barbed wire fence in the Texas Panhandle. He struck the fence full tilt, and the rebound caused him to turn a complete back somersault. He landed on his hoofs all right, and there he stood all straddled out with a look of astonishment on his face that was almost human. It was so ludicrous that I lay down in the mesquite grass and rolled over in spasms of mirth. Then he began to bawl like a whipped child, turned tail and ran as from a banisher.

I was at dinner in a Bradford club and told about it, expecting to get a laugh, but all I got was this from Hon.
Smith Feather, mayor of that Yorkshire city:

"By Jove, I didn't know those wire fences were so strong. It's a jolly good thing the poor brute wasn't injured."

WATERSPOUTS.

Old Time Mariners Fought Them With Noise and Cannon.

In the waterspout the medieval mariner saw a malevolent living monster—a sea dragon. There were various means of combating them. Once all sailors carried black handled knives, which the monster was believed to hold in special abhorrence.

When a spout made its appearance
these knives were produced and pointed in its direction, waved in the air so as to make the sign of the cross or, according to the recommendation of certain contemporary authorities, driven several times into the side of the ship.
Certain passages from the gospel of St. John were recited as charms against waterspouts.

A loud noise of any kind was also believed to be efficacious against them
—shots, the clash of swords, the beating of drums and gongs, etc. The custom of firing cannon against waterspouts, says the Scientific American, dates back at least as far as the sixteenth century. The original idea appears to have been to frighten them away by the noise of the report, but in the later times it was believed that the water column could be cut in twain
by the cannon ball and the spout thus dispersed. It would be interesting to know whether the cannonading of waterspouts is still sometimes practiced.
It was certainly common much less than a century ago. It is hardly necessary to say that it is entirely futile.

The Bawbee.
Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a bny queen and a loyal people. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpence at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it.—Penson's.

The Wise Bride.

"Yes, the girls gave the bride a com-miseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry
they were she was going to marry
such a man as the coming bridegroom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mixed Metaphors.

A well known bishop, speaking in the upper house of Canterbury convention on prayer book revision, rather startled some of his Episcopal brethren by declaring, according to the Church Family Newspaper, "We are not writing on a clean slate; there is a good deal of grit under the door."

No Wonder.

"My husband has never spoken a cross word to me."

"You lucky woman! How long have you been married?"

"Nearly two weeks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Gallantry.

She—It seems to me as though we had met somewhere before. He—Impossible, fraulein, else I should have fallen in love with you before!—Flie-gende Blatter.

Do not accustom yourself to consider debt only an inconvenience. You will find it a calamity.—Johnson.

Where all the bluestiful year is June.

There all things are superbly planned,

He Took Her For a Thief

By DANIEL WINSTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Perry Atkinson, immaculately dressed and with a pearl stickpin in his cravat, was waiting on the platform of a seaside station at the height of the summer season. A number of persons were there, some to receive friends, some to see friends off, all waiting for a train. When it rolled up to the station Atkinson craned his neck with the rest, like a turkey gobbler hunting for some favorable point to fly over a fence.

While thus looking up he suddenly felt two arms thrown around his neck and a pair of lips pressed to his.

Now, at this especial resort, situated not far from a large city, were many different classes of persons, from the highest to the lowest. When Atkinson felt himself in the embrace of a woman who was a stranger to him the first explanation of the situation that entered his head was that it was a game to relieve him of his money. Disengaging himself as quickly as possible, he clapped his hand to his hip, where he kept his pocketbook. He was relieved to find the wallet there. Then he instinctively felt for his pearl stickpin, and it was gone!

By this time the woman who had embraced him—a girl of twenty—was standing looking at him with a puzzled expression which, as she gazed, developed into one of horror.

"I greatly fear," she stammered, "that I have made a mistake."
"You certainly have made a mistake if you take me for a 'fat.' You had out my stickpin mighty quick or I'll call the police."

At this the girl put on an expression to describe which language is inadequate. Her face was scarlet; her eyes flashed alternate indignation and fear. Then suddenly Atkinson made a dive for her skirt, where he saw his scarfpin hanging, and caught it as it was about to fall to the ground. Putting it in its proper place, he gave the girl a final glance and was about to turn away when she said:

"Do you mean to tell me that you are not Ben Willard?"

"I don't know the gentleman."

"You are the image of him," the girl added, ready to burst into tears.

Atkinson gave her another look as if undecided whether to apologize or say something harsh, then walked away very much disgruntled. While he had been thus engaged a friend he had come to the station to receive had escaped him. As he walked to the summer residence where he was staying he began to see the episode in its true proportions and to become conscious of having made a guy of himself. Before the day was over he regretted not having apologized to the girl and longed for an opportunity to undo what he had done.

The next time Mr. Atkinson met the young lady whom he had mistaken for a thief he was dancing the cotillon at one of the "cottages." A line of ladies was advancing toward a line of gentlemen, and as the lines met the first gentleman whirled away with the first lady. In the coming line of ladies Atkinson suddenly espied the heroine of the stickpin. This in itself was embarrassing, but when he counted the men ahead of him and the ladies ahead of the girl in question and discovered that she would fall to him for a partner his heart sank down into the heels of his patent leather boots.

When the couples ahead of them were reduced to three Atkinson saw the girl's eyes fixed upon him and shuddered. He saw by her expression that she was about to take her revenge. When all those who had preceded them had sailed away to the dance and they stood face to face the girl turned on her heel, presenting her back to Atkinson in sight of all present, and marched out of the room.

Atkinson made way for the man next behind him, wishing that some of those standing about would shoot him. He made his exit through a door opposite the one by which the young lady had passed out and left the house.

The rest of the evening was given up by those who were not dancing to a discussion of what Atkinson, who was known to be a gentleman and a favorite socially, had done to draw forth an expression of such contempt.

The next fortnight was one of profound suffering to Atkinson. He sent friend after friend to the young lady, Miss Langdon, with explanations and apologies. No reply came from any of them. When he met her on the beach she did not notice him. Had she shown again signs of her contempt he would have liked it better. He declined all invitations, fearing that he would meet her. But when an intimate friend gave a cotillon party at which he was obliged to be present he was horror-stricken to see Miss Langdon among the guests. He tried to shrink dancing the cotillon, but failed. Sitting in his chair, the picture of misery, waiting while the ladies were offering favors, what was his astonishment to see the girl he had taken for a thief advance toward him, smiling, and hand him a favor.

It seemed as if the tortures of Tartarus were replaced by a heavenly balm. Placing his arm around her waist, he sailed away with her, neither speaking, yet both attracting, from the nature of the case, much attention. When they had finished their waltz Atkinson said to her:

"Only an angel would have forgiven me my stupid blunder."
"Only a feud would have denied you forgiveness."

A Black and Barron Coast.

Black and barren is the west coast of South America, where it is always cloudy, yet never rains, where it is chilly even up under the equator, where never a tree nor a blade of grass is to be seen—only the parched and hungry foothills of the Andes, swept with windrows of sand, and behind them fleeting glimpses of the towering peaks of the main mountain chain. Probably nowhere else in the world is there a season of equal extent so desolate and uninviting.

Harbors there are few or none. Callao, 200 miles north of Valparaiso, and Callao are safe and of commercial value. But, although there are few harbors, there are many ports. The Pacific ocean, true on this coast, at least, to its name, makes it possible for a vessel to anchor almost anywhere to take and leave cargo by means of lighters. Loading and unloading the lighters at the shore are made possible by artificial breakwaters or a fortunate conformation of the land which affords shelter for small craft.—New York Post.

When You Break Cut Glass.

An accident to cut glass invariably plunges the owner of it into clouds of gloom, but often these clouds have silver linings. Before throwing the pieces away examine each piece separately and see if it could be set down into anything smaller. Shops which deal in cut glass usually have a cutter on the premises. A case is told of a bride who upon entering the dining room arrived in time to see, but not prevent, her maid from pulling instead of pushing the extension table, and as it separated in the middle several pieces of valuable cut glass which had been placed there during the cleaning time fell through with a crash to the floor. It seemed a hopeless accident, but a rose bowl was cut down from a decanter, following the pattern near the neck, which had broken off; a small violet holder was cut down from a tall vase, a tiny sugar bowl from a vinegar cruet, and a small bonbon dish was saved from a larger cut glass bowl.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Clever Crow.

As to a crow's ability to talk, said a naturalist, some will and others will never learn. The first of the four birds I have had recently was a wonderful talker. Unlike the parrot, his conversation seemed intelligent rather than simply imitative. For instance, if I said to him, "Hello, Jack?" he would answer, "Hello!" and not put on the "Jack," as so many parrots do when one says, "Hello, Polly!"

But he could imitate me also. He found that when any one called and said, "Hello, Wood!" my reply was a low "Hello!" He tried in every way to imitate that low tone of mine and finally succeeded. He would go over to his water trough and with his head in the air would cry, "Hello, Wood!" Then down would go his head in the trough, and out would come the "Hello!" just like mine.—Washington Star.

Temperature of Sea Water.

The temperature of ocean water varies at the surface from 28 degrees F. at the poles to over 80 degrees F. in the tropics. The cold water toward the poles has an annual variation of less than 10 degrees F. at any one spot, and the warm water of the tropics also has an annual variation of less than 10 degrees F. In a band that nearly encircles the earth. This is the region of the coral reefs and atolls. Between these regions of small annual variation there are two bands surrounding the earth where the annual variation is greater and may exceed in certain regions 40 degrees F. at any one spot.—Marine Journal.

The Woman in the Case.

A mother-in-law had stayed so often with her daughter as to cause a quarrel with the husband.

One day she found her daughter weeping in the drawing room.

"What's the matter? Gracious me, don't say that George has left you!" she exclaimed.

"No, no," replied the young wife tearfully.

"Then there's a woman in the case?" mother asked, her eyes lighting up expectantly.

"Yes."
"Who is it?"
"You."

A Model Horse.

El Billings went to a horse sale one day and bought a horse for $18. When he got the horse home he offered it a bucket of water, but it wouldn't drink. After that he gave it a feed of corn, but it wouldn't touch that either. "By gosh," he said, "you're the very horse for me if you'll only work!"

Probably There Now.

Bobby—Pa, did you ever see an arm of the sea?

Father—Yes.
"Where was it?"
"It was hugging the shore the last I saw of it."—Smart Set.

Ourselves.

No one was ever yet made utterly miserable excepting by himself. We are, if not the masters, at any rate almost the creators of ourselves.—Epictetus.

The Yankee Twist.

"You can always tell an Englishman," said the Briton proudly.
"Of course you can," replied the Yankee, "but it doesn't do any good."

Fell Into Luck.

Artist—What a beautiful place this is! I suppose you came here for the view? Old Lady—No; I wasn't consulted. I was born here.

The County Fair Cucumbers

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

When it was known that George Huggins, old bachelor, was paying his attentions to Lucy Smith, old maid, the people of Crawville said that it would be a good match on both sides. When it was known that there was an engagement there were many earnest congratulations.

Mr. Huggins had a little home of his own and kept bachelor hall. Miss Smith had a little home of her own and enjoyed a small income. The principals had known each other for years, and love had come about through an incident. Miss Smith was at her well one morning to draw a pail of water when she leaned too far over the curb and fell in head first. Of course as soon as she could get her head above water she began to scream. Mr. Huggins happened to be passing the house and heard her and went to the rescue. She was very wet and very scared, and in the excitement of the moment she fell on his neck and called him dear George. Mr. Huggins was also somewhat excited and the first thing he knew found himself calling her dear Lucy. After that Cupid's work was easy.

The marriage day had not been set, but things were gliding along, when the county fair committee came out with the list of premiums for the fall fair, still many weeks away. It so happened that Mr. Huggins had made up his mind to grow a big cucumber for the fair. He had grown a monster the year before, but had not entered it. And it so happened that Miss Smith decided to do that selfsame thing. Of all the things in her garden, which she worked herself, cucumbers seemed to do the best of any vegetable. It was one evening when they sat on the front doorsteps in their happiness that George mentioned the cucumber business and declared he would take the premium over the whole county.

"Why, George, I'm also going to raise one," was replied.

"All right, but you'll waste your time."

"I know I shan't. I grew one over a foot long last year."

"That won't be enough this time. I think you'd better grow squash or tomatoes. I don't think we should compete against each other."

The matter was argued good naturedly, but no decision arrived at.

"Lucy, dear, I ask this as a favor of you," said Mr. Huggins as he took her hand.

"George, dear, you can raise onions," was the reply.

"But I saved your life when you fell into the well."

"But the water wasn't over my head, and I believe I could have climbed out anyhow."

"I wouldn't have believed you were so stubborn."

"Nor I of you. I've always heard you were open to argument and were seldom in the wrong. Perhaps we have made a mistake?"

"I hope not, but it looks queer to me that you stick out for cucumbers the way you do."

"And it looks just as queer to me, George, do you think a knight of old would have been as tricky as you are? No, sir—he would have told his lady love to go right ahead and given her all sorts of encouragement."

"But I want to beat old Deacon Swift. He has taken the prize on cucumbers for the last three years."

"And he's the very man I want to beat. When his hog rooted up my garden last year he wouldn't pay a cent damages, but told me to sue and be hanged."

When Mr. Huggins left for home that night there was a chilliness in his parting. He was still sticking on cucumbers. The question had become a broad one. His whole future happiness was at stake. He walked slowly down to the gate, hoping to be called back and told that Lucy had relented, but there was no calling. She was also realizing that the question had broadened. Next evening he went down and sat beside the mill dam until a late hour instead of keeping his usual tryst. It was so the next evening and the next. Then it became a matter of gossip that the engagement was off.

As time went on the cucumbers grew and grew. They grew by day and grew by night.

And at last, when the day came that their stems were cut and they were carried off to the fair on pillows, one could detect no difference between them. They were twins. It was said that the cucumber committee would have split the prize, but it didn't turn out so. Deacon Swift drove into the grounds with a whoop and a holler and unloaded a cucumber that took the cake by ten points. Mr. Huggins saw the unloading. So did Miss Smith. They were aware of each other's presence, but hadn't spoken. Now they began to edge around nearer and after awhile found themselves face to face.

"He's a mighty mean man!" exclaimed George.

"Perfectly contemptible!"

"I feel sorry for you after all your trouble."

"And I for you."

"I want to get even with the deacon, and I know of but one way. Will you help me?"

She took his arm, and they walked away, and next morning there was a wedding. Some folks have to go through just so much trouble to find happiness.

Nature's Scene Shifting.

Although in the geological past vast changes of level occurred on the borders and even in the center of continents, it is a debated question whether at present similar elevations and subsidences can be detected. Recently the frequently repeated statement that the coasts of Massachusetts and New Jersey are perceptibly sinking has been disputed, the apparent subsidence being ascribed to simple changes of shore line. But some curious records kept in Europe seem to indicate that actual fluctuations of the level of the land may occasionally be observed. In the valley of the Mala a church tower hidden behind a mountain screen has since 1801 gradually risen into plain view from the chateau of Strossendorf, and still farther in the same direction another church tower, which began to be visible from Strossendorf eighty years ago, is now clearly seen above the horizon and is said to rise higher as time goes on. Similar records exist in Bohemia, in Switzerland, in Spain and in the French Jura.

Ocean Derelicts.

There is an old dread of encountering a derelict that is just below the surface of the water. There is no such danger. A derelict that will sink below the surface will sink to the bottom. Take a tub of water and try to find any object that will unattached occupy a position that is other than at the surface or at the bottom. There is a long task ahead of you. There is the false theory that the water grows denser as one goes deeper and that a sinking object will find a place where it will remain suspended. This theory is not correct, and a boat that will sink beneath the surface will sink to the bottom, even if that bottom should be twenty miles down. The derelict that is bumped into has a piece of itself sticking out of the water as an alarm if the eyes of the lookout are only sharp enough to catch it.—New York Tribune.

Knew the Boundary Lines.

The friends of a couple in Cleveland, in whose household no doubt exists as to who is the head of the family, tell an interesting story relative to the last trifling passage at arms between husband and wife. One evening just before playing bridge all the afternoon, came in to find her husband and a strange man (afterward ascertained to be a lawyer) engaged in some mysterious business over the library table, upon which were spread several sheets of paper.

"What are you doing with all that paper, Henry?" demanded the wife.

"I am making a wish," meekly responded the husband.

"A wish?"
"Yes, my dear. In your presence I shall not presume to call it a will."—Lippincott's.

Not a Hindrance.

It was a revival meeting, and the church workers were working up and down the aisles. A gray haired woman past middle age approached a sedate looking gentleman who occupied a rear seat on the end of the row. Placing her hand on his shoulder with maternal touch, she said:

"Don't you think you would like to be a Christian?"

"My dear madam," he began, "don't you know that I am professor of theology in the little seminary at the other end of the town?"

The woman, a homely character, and ignorant of the "isms" and "ologies" of the modern curriculum, gave answer in smooth accents:

"Well, my dear brother, don't allow a little thing like that to stand in your way."—Philadelphia Times.

Garrick and Kitty Clive.

Kitty Clive, the paramount soubrette of Garrick's time, was celebrated for her temper and her spiteful tongue. She denied "little Davy" had skill in tragedy and mocked at him when he prepared to put on "Hamlet." During the performance she stood in the wings, intending to scoff, but she was carried away with enthusiasm to spite of herself and applauded vigorously.

"Well, Kitty," asked Garrick as he came off the stage, "have I convinced you that I can act in tragedy?"

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

There is now but little doubt that the present session will break the record in length. The Senate has foolishly requested the opinion of the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the workingmen's compensation act, and will have to wait well into next week for that body to reach a decision. I use the term "foolishly" with a full realization of its meaning. The bill in question does not take effect until July 1912, or six months after the next General Court has been at work, and it is wholly unnecessary for the present Legislature to make a decision on such an important subject, especially when the commission, which considered the present measure has been given until next winter to make a further report.

The really big measures, like the Boston subway act, the West End lease, and the $9,000,000 Port of Boston bills, are being passed without much friction, and if it was not for the foolish request of the Senate prorogation could be reached within a very few days.

The House has been as foolish as the Senate in one respect, in admitting and passing a bill to give themselves extra compensation for the long and wearisome session. Speaker Walker courageously voted to break a tie vote and kill the bill on Tuesday morning, but reconsideration was taken in the afternoon, and it was passed by a good majority. All three Newton men voted against the bill in all its stages, as our citizens had a right to expect them to do.

The Senate should have a mark on the right side, however, for killing the bill to provide a penalty for every person who failed to make an annual statement to the assessors for the purposes of taxation. The bill called for penalties ranging from $10 to $5000 for each neglect, and was a most drastic measure. It may be possible that this would be the most effective means possible to make our citizens realize that our present tax laws are most objectionable, and that in the end such a law would open the way for a modern system of taxation. But I fear that the enforcement of such a drastic measure would tend to depopulate some of our best residential sections and be killing the goose which now lays a part at least of our golden egg. A magazine article on methods of taxation in portions of the Dominion of Canada has recently come to my notice, and seems a vast improvement over Massachusetts laws. The venerable sentiment for our state constitution ought not to stand in the way of doing things rightly in this year nineteen hundred and eleven.

Governor Foss honored two Newton residents this week in reappointing Mrs. Sarah J. Rand of Newton Centre, a trustee of the Medfield state asylum, and reappointing Captain Frank L. Oakes of Newton as a pilot commissioner.

While everyone has anticipated that Mr. Robert Luce of Somerville would have an unopposed entry for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, it is rumored today that Mr. Louis A. Coolidge, well known in this city, and a brother of Mr. William H. Coolidge of Newton Centre has been persuaded to become a candidate.

Mr. Coolidge's early education was obtained in the public schools of Natick, Mass., and at the Newton High School, after which he entered Harvard University, from which he graduated in 1883, magna cum laude, with the degree of A. B.

After leaving college, Mr. Coolidge was given a position on the staff of the Springfield Republican, from which he resigned in 1888 to become private secretary to Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, at that time a member of the House of Representatives. He remained in this position for three years, when he was made Washington correspondent of the New York Record. From 1896 until 1904 he represented the Boston Journal and the New York Commercial Advertiser, now the Globe. He was in succession editor of the Congressional Directory, indexer of the Congressional Record, clerk of the Committee on Election of president, vice-president and representatives in Congress and Director of the Literary Bureau of the Republican National Campaign in 1904. He was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in February, 1908, which position he retained until April, 1909, when he resigned to become treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery Company of Boston, Massachusetts.

During his years of service at the National Capital, Mr. Coolidge was a leader in the newspaper fraternity and the famous Gridiron Club, of Washington, D. C., achieved pronounced success during his presidency in 1904.

In addition to being Treasurer and Director of the United Shoe Machinery Company, Mr. Coolidge is Vice-President and Director of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Company; Treasurer and Director of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation and a Director in the following Companies among others: Boston Fast Color Eyelet Company, J. C. Rhodes & Co., Inc., O. A. Miller Treering Machine Company, United Awl and Needle Company, United Fast Color Eyelet Company and the United Xpedite Finishing Company.

His long experience in public life has been of inestimable value to Mr. Coolidge in his commercial connections. He is a keen and accurate student of human character.

Representatives Bothfield and Ellis voted for the bill to provide a tax on incomes, while Mr. White voted in opposition. All three of our representatives voted to refer to the next Legislature the bill making a penalty for failure to make tax returns, but were in the minority. Mr. Ellis and Mr. White were both opposed to the adoption of resolutions stating that the General Court approves of the direct election of United States senators by the people. It was passed by the House on Tuesday but amended by the Senate on Wednesday, and the House refused to concur on Thursday. This probably means that no action will be taken at this session, and as any such action has no real effect, the whole matter has been a waste of valuable time.

On Tuesday the Governor sent in another message asking for legislation relative to the alleged monopoly of the United Shoe Machinery Co., but evidently members of the Legislature had read the remarks of Congressman Weeks on that subject, as a prompt report was immediately made that no legislation was necessary. The attention of the governor is invited to the speech of the Congressman printed in the last Graphic.

The Ways and Means Committee hasn't done a thing to our fellow citizen Mr. H. S. Chase, on his report on the state treasurer's department. Besides saying that Mr. Chase "did not familiarize himself with the laws" the committee shows that some of his recommendations were unconstitutional.

It is said that the Governor may veto the Ellis milk bill, which is favored by all consumers, and generally opposed by the producers. Mr. Ellis usually knows what he is talking about and it is a ten to one wager that Mr. Ellis is right. Besides Mr. Ellis is a producer himself.

The Senate has most properly killed the bill to allow members of the present General Court extra compensation for the long session.

J. C. BRIMBLECOM.

TO TEACH THRIFT

SOME SUGGESTIONS TO SCHOOL COMMITTEE

The Bank Commissioner has sent the following letter to the School Committee:

To the Members of the School Committee, Gentlemen:—

The Legislature of last year passed Chapter 524 entitled, "An act to provide for the compulsory instruction of thrift in the public schools."

In accordance with the recommendation of this department the Legislature this year has passed an Act, Chapter 211, Acts of 1911, to authorize savings banks to receive deposits from school children.

In accordance with said section, this department approves the following regulations and requests your formal approval thereof:—

(1) Any savings bank desiring to receive deposits from the pupils of any school shall, by vote of its Trustees, authorize the Treasurer to obtain the written consent of the Bank Commissioner and the School Committee therefor, or any school through its principal or the Superintendent of schools may arrange to have a Savings Bank obtain such consent.

(2) No school shall act for more than one savings bank. In case more than one savings bank shall request permission to receive deposits from any one school, the School Committee shall decide which savings bank may act for such school.

(3) After any bank has been authorized to act for any school, its rights shall not be revoked except with the written consent of both the School Committee and the Bank Commissioner.

(4) Any pupil may become a depositor in the School Savings Bank on bringing one cent or more and depositing with the teacher or principal or representative of the bank.

(5) The one receiving the deposit shall enter upon an individual deposit card the name of the pupil making the deposit and the amount thereof, which card shall be returned to the pupil and kept by him or her.

(6) The deposit card is the receipt for the deposit. In case of its loss, immediate notice should be given to the teacher or person receiving the deposit. On cent may be charged the pupil for a duplicate deposit card issued in place of one lost.

(7) When the deposit has been received from the pupil, it shall be entered by the person making the collection by name, date and amount in a book to be called "Pupil's Ledger."

(8) When the last collection of each month has been taken, or each week if desired, the one receiving the deposits from the pupils shall send to the head of the school bank a memorandum of the names of each pupil having a balance and the amount of such balance as shown on the "Pupil's Ledger." The form on which this information is made shall be called the "Monthly Balance Sheet" and shall be used by the head of the school bank or Savings Bank representative to check up the balance as appears on his "Collector's Ledger" and shall be returned for use the succeeding month.

(9) The head of the school bank on receiving the money from the collector shall enter the name of the collector and amount in a book, to be called "Collector's Ledger", which shall also show amounts transferred to individual pass books.

(10) The total amount so collected shall be entered on a deposit slip by amount only, and deposited with the savings bank by the head of the school bank, to his credit as trustee. Accompanying the deposit slip shall be a memorandum of those having sufficient balance to be entered upon a pass book, and the total of such amounts shall be entered as a charge against the trustee account.

(11) When there has been entered upon the deposit card the minimum amount on which the savings bank allows interest, the savings bank shall issue a deposit pass book therefor in its usual form, and thereafter, when the sums entered upon said deposit card amount to one dollar or multiples thereof, such deposit shall be entered by the bank upon the pupil's deposit pass book.

(12) Collections shall be made once in each school week between October 1st and June 1st of each school year.

(13) No sums shall be withdrawn by the pupil except upon the regular bank day by an order, in proper form, signed by the pupil and approved by the parent or guardian, or one in charge of the school bank.

(14) All deposit pass books shall be kept by the teacher or principal, or one in charge of the bank, in some safe and proper place, but shall be delivered to the pupil at the close of the school year, or as often as may seem best to the one in charge.

(15) All books, cards, deposit tickets and blanks are to be furnished by the savings banks.

(16) No entries are to be made in the pass book except by the bank officials.

(17) No entries are to be made on deposit card except by the teacher or one receiving the deposit.

(18) Any interest earnings of the trustee account shall be first charged with expenses of blank forms and then turned over to the head of the school savings bank for such school uses as he may decide.

If the Superintendent of Schools desires, he may arrange with the Savings Bank, when mutually satisfactory, to have the work done by its own representative, who will visit the schools once each week and receive all deposits and make all entries, thereby relieving the teachers of all the work.

Where this plan is chosen, the rules and regulations governing the work will be the same as now prevail in the regular routine of the bank, except as they are modified by the provisions of chapter 211, Acts of 1911.

All amounts less than the minimum on which interest is allowed may be carried by the Savings Bank as a trustee account in the name of the school bank.

It is hoped that the Committee will encourage this effort to cultivate thrift among the children by having the Superintendent of Schools or some member of the Committee take active charge of the installation in the schools and arrange to have each principal interest the teachers therein. It will be of more benefit to the pupils than to the savings bank, so the initiative should come from the schools. The teachers will find it does not entail great additional work after the system is in operation, not taking more than ten or fifteen minutes per week.

Very truly,

Arthur B. Chapin,
Bank Commissioner.

CLEAN MILK

Who is telling the Governor that the Ellis bill will increase the price of milk? The consumers? No! A few snarling, selfish producers who all the rest of the year have been themselves asking that the price be made higher.

The consumers want clean milk. They do not believe that it will be necessary to pay more for the milk but even if it is they want it because they know that dirty milk is expensive even if it is given to them. Doctors' and undertakers' bills count up much more rapidly than a penny a quart on the milk. They also know that clean milk at eleven and twelve cents is almost the cheapest of foods.

It has been shown, however, by experience in Springfield and Brockton that a much stricter inspection than that possibly be put into operation over the State as a whole does not increase the price of milk. The middleman if he sells more milk can afford to decrease his margin.

It does put the milk business on a sound economic basis, however; it does increase very largely the sales of milk, and for that reason the producer gets more for his milk and the consumer pays no more.

Will it cost the producer any more to wipe off the udders with a damp cloth before milking? No! But it will reduce the number of bacteria according to experiments at the Storrs' station on an average from 7000 bacteria per cubic centimetre to 700.

Will it cost the producer any more to feed his cattle after milking instead of before milking? No! But experiments have shown that it will reduce the number of bacteria by at least two-thirds.

Will it increase the price of milk to use pails two-thirds covered? No! But it will reduce the bacterial count by at least three-fourths.

Will it increase the expense of the producer to discard the first strippings of the milk? No! But it will vastly decrease the amount of bacteria.

Is it expensive to sweep down cobwebs, to occasionally wash your hands, to make a change of overalls before milking, to remove the manure from the tie-up as soon as possible, not to handle the milk longer than necessary in the stable, to whitewash your stable, in other words to use a reasonable degree of care in handling the milk? No! But it marks the difference between clean milk and dirty milk.

Is it expensive to keep the cakes of manure off of the cows' flanks? No! But it marks the difference between life and death to the young baby.

In Brockton they have demonstrated that by the exercise of proper care very clean milk can be produced in ordinary old fashioned barns.

Bottled milk in Springfield sells for eight cents today in spite of the fact that when the local board of health started its inspection several years ago, they raised the same cry then as today, that they would be driven out of business because the price of milk would be so high that the consumers could not buy it. Their fears were not realized; and they will not be realized in the case of the Ellis Bill. The Governor will not appoint five men who will ask anything unreasonable of the producers. Moreover, two of the men to decide what regulations shall be enforced, are to be practical milk producers themselves.

HOBOS ARRESTED

As part of a campaign to keep tramps off the freight trains, Officer Richard J. Goode, assisted by train hands, Wednesday afternoon arrested seven tramps on board a freight train that had been stopped in the West Newton freight yard for the purpose.

The freight, bound from Springfield to Boston, was boarded by the gang near Framingham and on reaching Riverside they were ordered off the cars but refused to go. The police were notified by telephone and at West Newton the train was stopped.

The men were found hiding in the cars, and one by one were dragged out and ironed. Several put up a battle but were quickly subdued and six others managed to run away. In court yesterday morning Judge Kennedy continued the cases until fall.

Three more were taken off the cars yesterday morning.

THROWN OUT.

Thomas Kelly of Pine street, West Newton, was thrown out of a tipcart on Washington street, Newton Lower Falls, Wednesday afternoon, when the horse ran away. He was badly cut about the head. The horse ran out on to the bridge across the Charles river and when Kelly was tossed out, he narrowly escaped being thrown into the water.

No. 12 Davis Ct., to John J. Kelley who buys for occupancy.

Through the office of W. Waldo Trowbridge the house and stable which formerly was owned by Charles A. Potter and situated on Woodbine Terrace, has been sold to E. C. Eckman for immediate occupancy.

The house and lot of land containing 33,000 square feet, property of Judge J. C. Kennedy of the Newton Court has been sold by W. Waldo Trowbridge to Rev. M. V. O. Morris of Elizabeth, N. J., who will occupy the premises.

SLEEPING OUT-DOORS

The practice of sleeping out of doors which is so popular at present should be regulated by some consideration of one's neighbors. Grown people are harmless, as a rule, for they are not likely to break out into loud crying, talking, coughing, singing, etc., in the middle of the night; but very small children who are liable to do any or all of these things at any time during the night or early morning should not be put out of doors to sleep in a neighborhood where the houses are near together. The unfortunate non-sleeper-out who has a sleeping porch on each side of him occupied in part by babies and small children may easily lose enough sleep to render him unfit for the duties of the day. Children should not be allowed to sleep out of doors until they are old enough to understand that they must be quiet in order not to disturb other people. This could hardly be under five years of age. There is a city ordinance in Newton against allowing dogs to "disturb the quiet of any person," with a fine of $15.00 attached to the violation of it. The loud crying of a child out of doors in the night is fully as awakening as the barking of a dog, and quite as needless a disturbance where people are comfortably housed. It is a disturbance which should be confined to the family of the child. The neighborhood should not be forced to share it.

HEMERY FINISHES ALONE.

Hemery in a Fiat equipped with Michelin tires was the only driver to finish within the allotted time in the Grand Prize Automobile Race July 23rd. The race was run over the Circuit de Sarthe in France, and drew the largest crowd since the Wright aviation trials in 1908. The intense heat subjected the engines and tires to a tremendous strain, adding greatly to the interest of the event as a test of endurance.

MR. WHITMAN DEAD.

James A. Whitman of 352 Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, died at Rockport, last week Thursday at the age of seventy-one years. Mr. Whitman was a sufferer from a weakness of the heart which is supposed to have been the cause of death.

Mr. Whitman had lived very quietly at his Chestnut Hill home for the past twenty-three years. He was born in Boston, but moved to Cambridge at an early age, where he married a Miss Potter of Cambridge. After his marriage he lived for some time at Winchester.

There are two daughters, Margaret J., who is now Mrs. Richard D. Ware, and Miss Effie E. Whitman who resided with her father at Chestnut Hill.

Mr. Whitman's father was one of the original partners in what is now Dwight Fabry & Co. He had a brother, George, who went to New York and engaged in the wool business, and another brother, Frank, lives in Cambridge. Mrs. Justin E. Gale of Weston is a sister.

CHRISTENS BOAT

From a handsomely decorated stand little Ruth Baxter, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Baxter of West Newton, hurled a bottle of champagne at the bow of the Steamer Suffolk, christening it at 12.30 p. m. Tuesday as the vessel slid from the ways at the plant of the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N. J. The craft will be used by the Coastwise Transportation Company to convey coal from Norfolk to Boston. The Suffolk is 390 feet in length over all. She measures 50 feet beam and is 32 feet deep. She will make a round trip between Norfolk and Boston in seven days.

POLICE NOTES.

After entering the flat of A. W. Jones in Nonantum square and stealing a pocket book there last November, Martin J. Hehir was finally brought to book last Thursday night in a saloon at Brighton and was turned over to the Newton police. In court last Friday morning he was sentenced to three months in the house of correction.

At the same time Francesco Toscano, a Nonantum district barber, was sentenced to 40 days in the house of correction for assaulting Mrs. Amelia Caponi at her home, 7 Quirk ct. The Caponi woman was not much injured in the affair, for as soon as Toscano attacked her, she struck him over the head with a stick of wood, inflicting a deep gash. While the case was being tried Toscano shouted to the woman that as soon as he had completed his sentence he would kill her.

George Tyer, an Andover autoist, was also found guilty of driving his auto without having the lamps lighted, also for passing an officer when ordered to stop. The charge concerning the lamps was placed on file, but on the other Tyer was fined $10.

THE AUGUST SUBURBAN LIFE.

The August issue of that cheerful exponent of living outside of the crowd ed cities, Suburban Life, is radiant with the spirit of out-of-doors. Indeed, out-of-doors and out-door affairs are presented in so attractive a light that one is tempted to abandon forthwith conventional houses of lumber or clay and live in a house-boat, tent or cabin. "Try Tenting Somewhere—Anywhere," is an appeal to women especially, to be rid of non-essentials in the home. "Arden-a Colony of Pleasure and Profit" tells of a little settlement of thinkers and workers near Philadelphia. "Combining Houseboat and Automobile" describes a novel plan for boating, with a motor car always at hand and ready for land trips. "Auto-Tracker as Boat Carrier" details another unique scheme. "Boys' Camps that Pay," "Entertainment in the Open Air," and "My Adventures in Butterflying" are articles whose context is indicated by the titles. A most interesting treatment of the vacation problem is "Take a Vacation in Your Own Home," which is a plea for relaxation and rest by those who simply can't get away from "things." "Getting a Maid and Keeping Her" surely will appeal to the average suburban householder. It offers a solution of a pressing problem and advances some theories that will, no doubt, be earnestly discussed by many people. "The Suburban Woman and Her Children" is an intimate "honey" discussion of another ever-present suburban problem. "As Human as a Hen" is an odd little story of a pen of chickens and the individuality shown by each. Besides, there is a variety of garden and household matter of the usual high quality.

Was He Telling the Truth Then or is He Telling the Truth Now?

THE POLICY OF THE UNITED SHOE MACHINERY COMPANY HAS NOT CHANGED

BILL RELATING TO MACHINERY LEASES.

Many Interesting Points Brought Out in Interview With Charles H. Jones, President of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company.

Charles H. Jones president of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company of Boston, with factories at Whitman, Mass., and in Maine, in an interview concerning the bill now before the Massachusetts Legislature, numbered 1297, in relation to the lease of machinery, alleged to be directed against the United Shoe Machinery Co., said:

My attention was called especially to this bill yesterday morning by a neighbor, whose factories are not in the state of Massachusetts, with the request that I read the bill carefully and see where it was going to place Massachusetts manufacturers. Previous to that time I had only heard through newspaper reports that such a bill had passed the House, and, presuming that it would be in some ways a benefit to the trade, had given it no further attention, but on looking it over with care it was soon apparent that while it was probably directed against the United Shoe Machinery Co., it would prove in fact, if passed, a serious blow to Massachusetts shoe manufacturers.

REPLIES OF MR. JONES TO QUESTIONS SUBMITTED.

Q. Would it not be an advantage to the manufacturers if they could obtain, by legislation, free competition in shoe machinery, instead of the practical monopoly that is now understood to exist.

A. Anything would undoubtedly be a benefit to the shoe trade of Massachusetts that enabled them to obtain their shoe machinery cheaper, or on more favorable terms, and if this bill was calculated to produce this result, you may be sure it would have the warmest support of all shoe manufacturers. Its actual result in practice, however, would be exactly the opposite.

Q. To anyone not acquainted with the shoe business, this last statement seems very surprising. Would you mind explaining how it would operate against the interests of manufacturers here?

A. I shall be very glad to explain it, as I think every manufacturer in Massachusetts should be fully aware of the risk he is running if this bill becomes a law. If you will read the bill, you will find in substance that it forbids the United Shoe Machinery Co. from trying to bind, either by lease or by the giving of discounts, manufacturers to use their machinery exclusively. If this means anything, it means that if the United Shoe Machinery Co. sell or lease their machinery at prices so low, or on terms so favorable, that manufacturers are compelled by their own interest to buy all their machinery of them, then under this law competing machinery manufacturers may show that such prices and discounts are unreasonable and force the company to advance them. If competition was to be promoted by causing some dealers to sell our machinery on better terms, shoe manufacturers would be very glad to assist in passing the bill; but if present conditions are to be changed by compelling the United Shoe Machinery Co. to ask as much for their machinery as competing manufacturers see fit to ask, it means simply that we would have to pay more for our shoe machinery than we now pay, and we do not wish to have the state of Massachusetts force us, by law, to do any such thing. Of course, the word "unreasonable" as applied to discounts on machinery or royalties is one which I cannot apply with any exactness, and so, of course, do not know what discount would be considered unreasonable and what would be considered reasonable; but I wish to obtain, both on machinery and royalties, the greatest possible discount, and do not want my privilege to do this to be curtailed by any law of the state.

Of course, the proposed law would have no effect outside of the state of Massachusetts, and, if it should pass, the United Shoe Machinery Co. would be undoubtedly put to some inconvenience and trouble in readjusting their leases to comply with the change in the law. It is inconceivable, however, that in its readjustment the manufacturers of Massachusetts would be allowed by them to obtain an advantage over the manufacturers in other states. The practical effect of the law would undoubtedly be this. The policy of the Machinery Company would remain unchanged the world over, except in the case of Massachusetts. In this state we would be put to some disadvantage; how great or how little it is impossible for any one to foresee today, but it is clearly evident that whatever inconvenience and increased expense the machinery company was caused by this bill, we manufacturers should have to pay.

Q. If that would be the result of the bill to shoe manufacturers, can you tell what interest is back of the bill? Who originated it and who is backing it for passage?

A. Of that I can only speak from hearsay. IT IS OBVIOUS THAT THE ONLY PARTIES BENEFITED WOULD BE THE MANUFACTURERS

OF MACHINERY WHO DESIRE TO COMPETE WITH THE UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO. THE TERMS WHICH THE MACHINERY CO. HAVE RECENTLY OFFERED THEIR PATRONS ON CERTAIN LINES OF MACHINERY ARE SO LIBERAL THAT THE OUTSIDERS CANNOT COMPETE. They apparently wish the company to be forced by law to change these terms to their level, and as the parties who would derive the benefit are usually the ones who cause the legislation, I think it is fair to assume that the statements which are publicly made, that the outside shoe machinery interests are back of this bill, are correct. It is certain that the shoe manufacturers, either individually or as a body, are not back of it. I personally never heard of it until after it had passed the House of Representatives, and in conversation with other manufacturers, during the past two days, have not found a single man who had ever been consulted, or, in fact, had any knowledge whatever in regard to it.

Q. Is it not a fact, as claimed by the advocates of this bill, that the Shoe Machinery Co. is very arbitrary in its dealings with the shoe manufacturers, and that its large earnings are a heavy tax on the industry?

A. There are, undoubtedly, some clauses in the different leases which manufacturers are required to sign with the Machinery Co. that give the impression that the company desires to bind the manufacturers, and limit them in their business action to an unreasonable extent. At the time of the organization of the Machinery Co. I resented very deeply what seemed to me the extreme and unfair advantage they were taking of the power which they undoubtedly held over shoe manufacturers; but IN THE SIX OR SEVEN YEARS DURING WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN IN OPERATION, I MUST SAY THAT I HAVE WAITED IN VAIN FOR ANY UNFAIR OR ARBITRARY USE OF THIS POWER ON THE PART OF THE COMPANY; IN FACT, THEIR DEALINGS WITH US HAVE BEEN MARKED BY MORE CONSIDERATION THAN WAS FORMERLY SHOWN US BY MANY OF THE CONSTITUENT COMPANIES. IT IS A FACT THAT MUST NOT BE OVERLOOKED, THAT IF THE COMPANY IS A DESPOTISM, IT HAS BEEN, UP TO THIS TIME, OF THE MOST BENEVOLENT TYPE. IT HAS ACTUALLY REDUCED THE PRICES ON MANY OF ITS MACHINES; IT HAS PLACED OTHERS IN OUR HANDS ON A RENTAL SYSTEM THAT HAS SAVED US A VERY LARGE INVESTMENT OF CAPITAL; IT HAS CERTAINLY GIVEN MORE FAITHFUL CARE AND ATTENTION TO THE RUNNING OF THE MACHINES AND KEEPING THEM IN ORDER, AND IN OUR COUNTRY FACTORIES, WHERE WE EMPLOY A LARGE PROPORTION OF INEXPERIENCED HELP, THEY HAVE GIVEN US MORE CONSTANT AND FAITHFUL ATTENTION IN INSTRUCTING NEW OPERATORS, AND IN THE SUPERVISION OF THE MACHINERY UNDER TRYING CONDITIONS, THAN WE EVER OBTAINED FROM ANY OF THE CONSTITUENT COMPANIES.

Q. Has the charge for such service as you describe been increased over what you formerly paid?

A. I cannot say that it has. AS FAR AS I RECALL THEM, THE ROYALTIES DEMANDED BY THE COMPANY ARE THE SAME, EXACTLY IN AMOUNT, THAT WE HAVE ALWAYS PAID. IT IS ONLY FAIR TO ADD THAT THEY HAVE SUPPLIED US WITH MANY ADDITIONAL MACHINES TO DO THE MINOR PARTS OF THE WORK, WITHOUT ANY CHARGE AT ALL. THESE MACHINES HAVE BEEN OF CONSIDERABLE VALUE TO US, BOTH IN THE SAVING OF LABOR AND INCREASING THE UNIFORMITY OF THE GOODS, AND ARE SUCH MACHINES AS WOULD UNDOUBTEDLY HAVE COST US A ROUND SUM IF THE UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO. HAD NOT BEEN IN POSITION TO FURNISH THEM TO US GRATIS.

Q. The newspaper reports of the hearings at the Legislature made quite prominent the statement that exorbitant prices have been charged by the company for supplies. The prices of tacks and nails in the open market and the price charged by the Shoe Machinery Co. were compared. Do these statements show the facts as they actually exist?

A. I did not see the statements, and so cannot answer that question; but IF YOU WISH TO KNOW WHETHER THE COMPANY IS CHARGING US AN UNFAIR PRICE FOR TACKS AND NAILS, WILL SAY THAT THIS IS ENTIRELY UNTRUE. THE ROYALTY ON SOME OF THEIR MACHINES IS DERIVED FROM THE PRICE OF THE TACKS AND NAILS USED ON THEM; CONSEQUENTLY, THE PRICE WHICH THEY CHARGE FOR THE TACKS AND NAILS IS CERTAINLY GREATER THAN THE SAME THING COULD BE BOUGHT IN THE MARKET, FOR USE BY HAND; BUT, AS A MATTER OF FACT, THE SHOE MACHINERY CO. CHARGES US NO MORE FOR TACKS TODAY THAN THEY DID MANY YEARS AGO, WHEN TACKS IN THE OPEN MARKET WERE MUCH CHEAPER THAN TODAY; IN FACT, MY IMPRESSION IS THAT THEY HAVE ACTUALLY REDUCED THE PRICE OF TACKS BETWEEN 25 AND 30 PERCENT, WHILE EVERY ONE KNOWS THAT THE COST OF TACKS AND NAILS IN THE OPEN MARKET HAS ADVANCED.

Also in regard to eyelets, which they now manufacture extensively, we are paying them from 10 to 20 percent less than we formerly paid, although it is perfectly well known that the copper and speller from which they are manufactured have advanced in price nearly 50 percent since 1899.

Q. You do not seem to be one of the manufacturers who regard this trust as one of the burdens on the industry?

A. I must say that is not my view today. I am by no means convinced that all their methods are the best, or that their policies might not be changed to make them more liberal in some respects; but I am very glad to say that the expectations I had of what was to be the result of this combination when it was formed have not been borne out by our experience. Up to this time, I DO NOT BELIEVE ANY MANUFACTURER WHO HAS BEEN HONEST AND STRAIGHTFORWARD IN HIS DEALINGS WITH THE COMPANY, CAN SHOW ANY CLEAR GRIEVANCE AGAINST THE COMPANY, OR CAN MAKE OUT THE SLIGHTEST CASE OF CROWDING OR COERCION. ON THE CONTRARY, I CAN SAY FOR OURSELVES, THAT THE QUESTION OF ROYALTIES AND MACHINERY, WHICH WAS FORMERLY ONE OF THE MOST VEXATIOUS AND EXACTING DEPARTMENTS OF OUR BUSINESS, HAS CEASED TO GIVE US ANY CONCERN AT ALL. WE WERE FORMERLY OBLIGED TO EXAMINE NEW INVENTIONS, AND WERE FORCED TO MAKE EXPERIMENTS WITH MACHINES FOR MONTHS AT A TIME, WITH THE RESULT THAT WE OBTAINED MORE OR LESS BAD WORK AND WERE PUT TO MUCH USELESS EXPENSE, AND THE THOUGHT AND ATTENTION OF OUR BEST MEN WAS GIVEN TO DECIDING BETWEEN THE MERITS OF THE OLD AND THE NEW. WE WERE OBLIGED TO DICKER AND TRADE WITH EVERY DIFFERENT MANUFACTURER OF MACHINERY ALL THE TIME, WITH THE MORAL CERTAINTY THAT SOMEBODY WHO HAD MORE TIME AND ATTENTION TO GIVE TO IT WOULD GET A BETTER BARGAIN THAN WE WERE ABLE TO OBTAIN; AND WITH IT ALL THERE WAS AN ENORMOUS AND PERPETUAL SHRINKAGE ON ACCOUNT OF THE CHANGES MADE NECESSARY BY THE INTRODUCTION AND ADOPTION OF MACHINERY THAT WAS NOT THOROUGHLY AND SATISFACTORILY DEVELOPED BEFORE BEING PLACED ON THE MARKET. TODAY THIS IS ALL CHANGED. IF WE WANT A MACHINE, WE SIMPLY NOTIFY THE COMPANY. THEIR AGENT CONFERS WITH OUR FOREMAN. THE BEST MACHINE KNOWN FOR DOING THE WORK IS INSTALLED WITH LITTLE OR NO EXPENSE TO US. WE ARE OBLIGED TO PAY A RENTAL IN SOME CASES, WHICH WOULD AMOUNT TO ABOUT THE SAME AS THE YEARLY SHRINKAGE IN VALUE OF THE MACHINE IF WE HAD HAD TO BUY IT, BUT THE CAPITAL WHICH WE WOULD FORMERLY HAVE BEEN CALLED UPON TO INVEST IS STILL IN OUR POSSESSION FOR USE IN OUR REGULAR BUSINESS. WE ARE CONFIDENT THAT WE ARE GETTING THE MACHINE ON AS FAVORABLE TERMS AS ANY COMPETITOR, AND WE ARE ENABLED TO EMPLOY OUR OWN TIME AND ABILITY IN THE LEGITIMATE BRANCHES OF OUR BUSINESS, AND WE HAVE NOT, UP TO THIS TIME, BEEN OBLIGED TO PAY AS MUCH FOR THIS PRIVILEGE AS WE FORMERLY PAID, FOR THE VERY MUCH LESS SATISFACTORY CONDITION. It may be true that the Shoe Machinery Co. suppresses inventions, but my own experience with outside manufacturers during the past five or six years has gone quite a way toward convincing me that the outside inventor gets all the consideration from the company to which he is entitled. We have encouraged a few of them that we thought had good things, only to be sold out by them as soon as they could make a satisfactory trade with the company.

I think it is quite likely that the company buys and pays a good price for all that is valuable in the way of invention that is offered to them, and they certainly stand between the manufacturer and the inventor of crude and incomplete machines, and guarantee to us that whatever is put on the market is a complete mechanical contrivance, capable of doing what they recommend. I have heard it stated that one of the strongest advocates before the Legislature for the passage of this bill was a man who had failed to force the Machinery Company to pay him a salary of $5000 a year for services which were worth nothing like that amount. This is perhaps what they call suppressing invention.

Q. In your opinion, would this bill be a serious blow to the Machinery Company if passed?

A. It would certainly cause them some inconvenience, in readjusting their leases and royalties, to comply with the change in the law, but nothing can prevent a company which has machinery of such value as theirs from making arrangements with manufacturers who desire to use it, which will be profitable to them. This bill will certainly not prevent them from doing this. They will accomplish exactly what they accomplish now in another way, and the manufacturer will simply have to pay the cost of the change. IF IT SHOULD PROVE, ON THE PASSAGE OF THIS BILL, THAT MANUFACTURERS IN OTHER STATES WERE ABLE TO GET THEIR MACHINERY ON MORE FAVORABLE TERMS, WE SHOULD CERTAINLY KNOW OF IT, AS WE HAVE TWO FACTORIES LOCATED IN THE STATE OF MAINE. THE MARGIN ON SHOES TODAY IS SO SMALL, THAT EVEN A FRACTION OF THE ROYALTY WE PAY WOULD NECESSITATE OUR REMOVING OUR FACTORY FROM MASSACHUSETTS TO MAINE, OR SOME OTHER STATE, AND I CAN SEE NO WAY IN WHICH SUCH A RESULT AS THIS WOULD BE A BENEFIT TO MASSACHUSETTS OR ANY OF HER PEOPLE.

The United Shoe Machinery Company.

TESTING AN OCTOPUS.

The Power of This Repulsive Creature Much Overrated.

There have been made abroad experiments with an octopus, in a specially devised tank of sea water, in order to test the truth of the many stories told of monster cephalopods dragging human victims to the sea bottom, says Harper's Weekly.

In the tank with the octopus there was placed a "dummy" of the same gentle gravity as a man, and this was baited with a crab. Attracted by this tempting morsel, the octopus made for the figure, seized it in its powerful arms and tried to drag it under water without success. It then urged its body toward the edge of the tank, and, holding the glass with some of its arms, it dragged its prey beneath the surface and crushed the crab shell with its powerful jaws.

It is believed that these experiments afford proof that the octopus can only drag its victims far below the water near rocks to which it can attach its suckers. There is one spot in the bay of Naples where these creatures attain a large size, and now and then a fisherman is reported missing. It is thought that such disappearances are due to the unfortunate man being caught by the leg by a concealed octopus and dragged under water. In the case of such a repulsive and powerful creature as the octopus it is difficult to separate fact from fiction.

A VACATION IN BED.

Twenty-four Hours' Sleep Versus a Week's Holiday.

If you want to obtain complete rest and recuperation equal to a week's vacation in minimum time sleep the clock around twice is the advice of a physician who holds a high place in medical circles in England.

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed," he said to a friend, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. The night before, having gone to a theater to take the mind off worries and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning calling shall be omitted."

"Then sleep. On waking turn over and sleep again. On waking again ring for some hot milk. Drink it and sleep again and keep on sleeping. Have nothing to do. Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly. Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again."

"When you are tired of sleeping sleep again for the night. Nothing calms the nerves more than resting the eyes."—New York Herald.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice when sentence of death is about to be passed a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court and, advancing to the bench, bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker." Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

The Box Tortoise.

Though the tortoise is slow of foot, it is quick to make the best of all its available modes of defense. The box tortoise possesses a singular defensive apparatus. The plastron or shell covering the under part of the body is so formed that its front segment can be drawn upward to protect the animal's head, the head meanwhile being drawn back under the carapace or shell on the back of the tortoise. The upper and under shells then meet in front, forming a kind of box in which the creature is unassailable. When the danger is passed the reptile relaxes a muscle and the raised part of the plastron falls, allowing the head and fore feet to come forth. This movable plate is fastened to the plastron by a strong hinge of elastic ligament.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

When Israel Zangwill was an obscure youth teaching in a Jewish school in London he sent a short poem to a leading American monthly. It came back by an early post. He kept it, and after he had achieved fame as a writer he sent the same poem to the same magazine. This time he received a cable from the editor offering to buy the "world rights" for a large sum. The poem was the same, word for word.

Different.

"Why, a year ago you told me this place was easily worth $10,000. Now you estimate its value at less than $10,000."

"You must remember that I was trying to sell it to you then. Now you want me to sell it for you."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Adam Was Grouchy.

The serpent—What's Adam so grouchy about today? The Apple—Oh, he says that the arrival of woman means that all his plans for universal peace have been knocked in the head for good.—Puck.

Whatever demands the deepest courage and endurance of soul of course must unveil most perfectly its hidden strength.—George W. Briggs.

POWER OF AN AUDIENCE.

Influence It Exerts Over an Actor or a Speaker.

No orator living was ever great enough to give out the same power and force and magnetism to an empty hall, to empty seats, that he could give to an audience capable of being fired by his theme.

In the presence of the audience lies a fascination, an indefinable magnetism, that stimulates all the mental faculties and acts as a tonic and vitalizer. An orator can any before an audience what he could not possibly have said previous to going on the platform, just as we can often say to a friend in unaltered conversation things which we could not possibly say when alone. As when two chemicals are united a new substance is formed from the combination which did not exist in either alone, the speaker feels surging through his brain the combined force of his audience, which he calls inspiration, a mighty power which did not exist in his own personality before he rose to his feet. No public speaker ever forgets that first surprising feeling of confidence.

Actors tell us that there is an indescribable inspiration which comes from the orchestra, the footlights, the audience, which it is impossible to feel at a cold mechanical rehearsal. There is something in a great sea of expectant faces which awakens the ambition and arouses the reserve of power which can never be felt except before an audience. The power was there just the same before, but it was not aroused.—Success Magazine.

A SOLEMN MOMENT.

When the Great Mail Steamer Was Stopped in Mid-ocean.

The great steamship wavered; the screw revolved more slowly and gradually ceased to turn. There is something uncannily disquieting about an unmoving ship in the middle of the ocean, and for a few moments there were fearsome rumors among the second and third cabin passengers. The steersman, being nearer to the heart of things, understood what was going on. The deck stewards went about explaining, and as they explained the passengers moved to points of vantage. Then all was very quiet—quiet even for the sea.

A man whom the first cabin passengers knew to be a famous bishop stepped down from among them. A heavy, clumsy, greynose bundle was brought up. Over it the bishop, with bared and reverent head, intoned the service for those who are buried at sea. As the bishop spoke the words of committal, "We therefore commit his body to the deep, to be turned into corruption, looking for the resurrection of the body, when the sea shall give up its dead," a door in the bulwarks was lifted for the bundle and let down again. The ship began to move, sluggishly at first, then smoothly as was its wont, and the passengers went back to their games, their books and their loquaciousness. The greatest event in the dead stoker's career was over. He had stopped his majesty's mail.—Exchange.

The Eskimos and the Bible.

Frank Cross, a missionary among the Eskimos, has found considerable difficulty in using the illustration of the Bible in arctic regions. He gives two amusing anecdotes to bear out his statements. First, how his Eskimo interpreter translated a well known text into the following: "Every log that bringeth not up good applik is cut up and used for firewood." "Applik" being the Eskimo for dried apples and the nearest thing to fruit that they know. Again, of law, justice and government they have not the remotest notion. Mr. Cross' nearest neighbor had hundreds of dollars' worth of furs deposited in a cache. Wishing to preach on "Where Thieves Break Through and Steal," the interpreter gave up his attempt at translation, for he said such a thing was impossible among them.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Disagreed.

One west side woman who thought herself an ardent suffragist was surprised to learn that other members of the sisterhood did not share her opinion.

"Why do you doubt my devotion to the cause?" she asked. "What have I done to make you think me less earnest than the rest of you women?"

The answer was a letter which she had written to headquarters the day before.

"You wrote on your husband's stationery," they said. "No suffragist who is worth her salt will write a personal letter under her husband's letterheads."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Catastrophe.

"Did you hear about the catastrophe down at the Browns' last night?"

"No. What happened?"

"Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the crib and broke its neck."

"What, the baby?"

"No; the bottle."

Not Just What She Meant.

A little community of colored people had raised the money to build a new church, and the dedication was to take place the next day. "Where are you going tomorrow?" the school-teacher asked one young girl. Smiling radiantly, she answered, "I'm going to the degradation of our church!"

Mamma's Joke.

"Oh, mamma, the hen is sitting on the vacuum cleaner!"
"Perhaps she's only trying to lay the dust, dear."—Yonkers Statesman.

ROSES AND THORNS.

An Old Eastern Legend and Its Application to Human Life.

This world we're living in is mighty hard to beat. You get a thorn with every rose. But ain't the roses sweet?

There is an eastern legend that when the beneficent Creator prepared the earth for man, causing it to bring forth herbs and trees pleasant to the eye and good for food, each bearing its seed within itself for propagating its kind, the roses had no thorns and the lilies, violets and other blossoming plants were free from thistles, brambles and noxious weeds.

But the sons and daughters of men in their greedy eagerness to gather the flowers, each one selfishly striving to secure a larger share than his fellow, seemed likely to despoil the earth of its beauty and leave not even enough blossoms to perfect their seed and perpetuate their species. So the kindly All Father provided the roses with thorns for self protection and sent a host of defenders of the more tender blossoms by causing thistles and briars to spring up around them like wardens of a castle or the bodyguard of a queen. And this is the reason for the thorns and briars—nature's protection against human greed.

The legend has a wider application. The roses typify the pleasures of life and the thorns its pains. A life of ease and pleasure was not only useless, but satiating. It would demoralize him who indulged in it. Satisfaction despoils the rose of its beauty and the violet of its fragrance; hence kind nature makes true pleasure the reward of virtuous effort and punishes over-indulgence with penalizing suffering. To the end that greed may be restrained and self control developed with its attendant virtues of temperance, kindness, industry and thrift.—John B. Stoll in South Bend Times.

FOES TO SUCCESS.

Don't Be a Victim of Timidity, Shyness or Self Consciousness.

Timidity, shyness and self consciousness belong to the same family. We usually find all where we find any one, and they are all enemies of peace of mind, happiness and achievement. No one has ever done a great thing while his mind was centered upon himself. We must lose ourselves before we can find ourselves. Self analysis is valuable only to learn our strength; it is fatal if it makes us dwell upon our weaknesses.

Timid, shy people are morbidly self conscious. They think too much about themselves. Their thoughts are turned inward; they are always analyzing, dissecting themselves, wondering how they appear and what people think of them. If these people could only forget themselves and think of others they would be surprised to see what freedom, ease and grace they would gain, what success in life they would achieve.

Thousands of young people are held back from undertaking what they long to do and are kept from trying to make real their great life dreams because they are afraid to jostle with the world. They shrink from exposing their sore spots and sensitive points which smart from the lightest touch. Their hypersensitiveness makes cowards of them.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

A Congregation of One.

In his younger days the Rev. Sir Cameron Lees, D. D., was a highland missionary in a scattered territory and passing rich on £40 a year. On one occasion on the Sabbath day the windows of heaven opened and there was a deluge on a small scale. The young minister of course was at his post, but only one member of the congregation had the courage to turn up, an old farmer. Cameron Lees suggested that in view of the terrible weather they should adjourn to his study and hold their devotions there.

"No, no," said the old highlander. "It is written, 'Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I also.' You are one and I'm one, so there's the two, and we'll have the service as usual." And there was a service for a congregation of one.—London Globe.

Worrying Happiness.

The bishop of Manchester, speaking at a meeting at Church House, Westminster, said the secret of happiness was to have a sufficient multitude of worries.

The man who had only one worry, a blind that would not be pulled up straight by the servant or a coal scuttle the bottom of which was always coming out, found his way to the lunatic asylum, but the man who had no time to dwell upon his worries because he had to go from one to another and back again and round and round like a squirrel in a cage could be a perfectly happy man.—London Mail.

Elastic.

"An' one other thing I want you to remember when you build the house is to put one of the finest elastic steps on it that money can build."

"An elastic step, madam?"

"Yes; I was readin' how Miss Blubud had a fine elastic step, an' I want one just like it or better."—Houston Post.

Becoming.

"Isn't my new dress becoming to me?" asked the delighted wife.

"Yes," replied the head of the establishment, "and I suppose the bill for it will soon be coming to me."

Life is a quarry out of which we are to mold and chisel and complete a character.

THE SILVER BOWL.

It Was Full of Water, and It Puzzled the Weak End Guest.

A rising young politician in New York tells this story on himself. He was invited recently to spend a week end at a country house where things were done a notch or two more elaborately than he was accustomed to, and he stood in not a little awe of the solemn person who was assigned to act as temporary valet to him. The climax came when this functionary tapped at his door on Sunday morning and told him it was 8 o'clock.

"All right, I'll get up," said the visitor, and the solemn man disappeared into the bathroom, from which presently the noise of water running into the bathtub was audible. In half a minute more the solemn person emerged, holding a large silver bowl full of water, with which he approached the bed.

"He must have seen the astonishment in my face," said the New Yorker. "I couldn't conceal it. It was a wholly new game to me, and I didn't know whether I was expected to dip my head in it or to drink it. It was an awful moment, but that man was a diplomat. He realized my embarrassment, and he just let drop in a cold and aloof tone, as if he had outsiders to deal with every day, the simple explanation:

"The temperature of your bathwater."

"—New York Sun.

THEATER SEATS.

Very Annoying Indeed It Was Before They Were Numbered.

People who nowadays book their seats beforehand for the play cannot conceive of the discomfort of other days, an instance of which is given by John Fyvie in "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era."

"One of Charles Matthews' newspaper cuttings," he says, "contains a letter from a disgraced playgoer dated January, 1776, protesting against this custom of 'permitting a footman to sit for an act or two of a play next to a woman of the first quality by way of securing a place for his absent master.'"

"The indecency of the practice is said to be aggravated by the usual choice of the dirtiest servant of the family for this duty, 'for the men of parade and figure are to prance before the lady's chair with lighted flambeaux or hang like a rope of onions behind her coach.'"

"As a remedy for this nuisance the writer of this letter made the revolutionary suggestion that the sittings in the boxes should be numbered, a plan which does not seem to have occurred to any one previously and which was not adopted till long afterward."—London Gentlewoman.

Women in Tibet.

Concerning the manners of Tibetans a traveler writes: "The male part of the Amdo population is fond of meeting together for frivolous conversation on all suitable and unsuitable occasions. The most the men do is to go hunting and robbing. The domestic work, such as tending the cattle, collecting fuel, drawing water and, in short, everything, falls on the women. While the wife is working incessantly all day long the husband grows weary with idleness and does not go to her assistance unless she is physically incapable of doing any work at all. On horseback the women are as dexterous as the men. To catch any horse she likes out of the troop, by her hand on its mane and quickly spring on to the back of the barebacked steed and ride off in any direction she wishes is an ordinary feat for any young Amdo woman."—Chicago News.

The Oil Bird.

One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "oil bird," or guncbaro. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The natives melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter. The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

A Word of Wrath.

The word "rabbits" on board a Cornish fishing smack arouses the ire of the crew. Should the hated word be uttered as the boat is leaving the harbor on a pilchard expedition the speaker would stand a fair chance of being buried overboard. The mere mention of "rabbits" destroys all chances of a "catch."—London Chronicle.

Pa's Hard Job.

"Johnny," said the visitor at the door, "is your father at home?"

"He's trying to be, sir," said Johnny, "but you know, Mr. Squigga, ma's mother's here."—Harper's Weekly.

The Real Sorrow.

"Did your operation cost you much pain?"

"Yes, but I didn't mind that so much as the dollars it cost."—Baltimore American.

This is our Specialty

This is an age of specialists, and the most efficient service in any particular is given by men who have had a lot of experience in that line. The specialty of this bank is handling the banking business of wholesalers and jobbers in shoe, leather, wool, textile and other lines. While we do a general banking business and are fully equipped for it, we are prepared to give special attention to the banking needs of the lines of trade above mentioned. The convenience of our location with reference to those branches of business is also a strong argument in favor of our ability to give especially good service in the direction indicated.

GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES.

Chautauqua Seems to Have a Wide Variety of Meanings.

United States geological survey records present these notes on geographical names and their origin and meaning:

Brooklyn: part of New York city; a corruption of the Dutch name Breuckelen, from a village in the province of Utrecht, Holland. The name signifies "broken up land" or "marshy land."

Barren: county and village in Johnson county, Tex., named for Edward Barren, Indian fighter, and vice president of the republic of Texas under President Houston, 1811.

Chautauqua: county in Kansas; county, lake and town in same county in New York. An Indian word which has been the subject of much controversy. Webster says it is a corruption of a word which means "foggy place." Another derivation gives the meaning as "bug tied in the middle," referring to the shape of the lake. It is also said to mean "place where a child was washed away." Dr. Peter Wilson, an educated Seneca, says it is literally "where the fish was taken out." Other meanings given are "place of easy death" and "place where one was lost."

Chicago: city and river in Illinois. The Ojibwa Indian form, she-kag-ong, signifies "wild onion place," from a root form implying a "bad smell."

HOLLAND'S RAILROADS.

They Are Operated at a Loss to Aid the Canal Traffic.

In contrast with the history of Belgium, Germany, France and Austria, Holland alone of all European countries presents a situation where the railroads require protection from the competition of the canals. Holland thus reverses the general rules which apply in all other countries. Railroad development was remarkably slow in Holland. The first Dutch railroads were short local lines, while the waterway system was extensive and strongly entrenched.

At length, convinced that she could not keep pace with other European countries by her waterway system alone, the Dutch government constructed an ambitious line of railroads connecting with the international lines of Europe.

The railroads were built not with any expectation that they would be profitable as investments, but because they were considered absolutely necessary to save the country from industrial decadence. Holland is the only country in the world in which the state has provided both rail and water highways substantially free of capital charges. The railroads are now operated at a loss to supplement the waterways, which carry 90 per cent of the traffic of Holland.—American Review of Reviews.

London's Crystal Palace.

The Crystal Palace was a great producer of superlatives in its early days, says the London Chronicle. When Queen Victoria wrote of May day, 1851, as "the greatest day in our history, the most beautiful and imposing and touching spectacle ever seen," she was referring to the whole idea and effect of the exhibition, but "the beauty of the building and the vastness of it all" were important factors in the marvel which she relied upon to astonish her uncle Leopold. When the palace moved to the new site Herbert Spencer wrote: "I have been once at Sydenham. It surpasses even my expectations, though I had seen it in progress. It is a fairyland and a wonder surpassing all others." Ruskin said that Mr. Dickens has said that there was nothing like it in fairyland and added bitterly that Mr. Dickens was right.

What America Has Proved.

America has proved that it is practicable to elevate the mass of mankind—that portion which in Europe is called the laboring or lower class—to raise them to self respect, to make them competent to act a part in the great right and great duty of self government, and she has proved that this may be done by education and the diffusion of knowledge. She holds out an example a thousand times more encouraging than ever was presented before to those nine-tenths of the human race who are born without hereditary fortune or hereditary rank.—Daniel Webster.

Modern Improvements.

Patient—Doctor, I'm having an awful lot of trouble with the gas in my stomach. Doctor—Yes, yes; I know. Those old fashioned fixtures are giving people a lot of unnecessary trouble these days. Just step into the next room, and I'll have my engineer wire you for electric lights.—Puck.

Warily Wisdom.

"Now that my engagement to Edgar is broken off I wonder if he will ask me to return the jewels that he gave me."

"If he doesn't ask for them I'd send them back at once, for in that case they're not genuine!"—Fliegende Blätter.

A Dear Place.

Batchman—Who was it said "Home is the dearest place on earth?" Phantasee—Some married man who had just received his coal and grocery bills, no doubt.—Boston Transcript.

Difference of Opinion.

It were not best that we should all think alike; it is difference of opinion that makes horse races possible.—Mark Twain.

FAST COLORS

Fast colors are important in an out-of-doors table cover—that is one reason we are carrying the Austrian covers. Besides this, they are cool appearing and come in the pretty piazza reds and greens and blues. The prices run from 70 cents to $1.30, depending on size, and they will last a long time. And when you come in to see these, just ask to see our dainty out-door serving trays, particularly those made of willow with removable glass bottoms. You will like them.

In view of the many difficulties which appear in the path of modern legislature, it seems fitting to call attention to the extraordinary faith which the general public appears to have in the forethought and ability of the founders of the state and nation. This condition is undoubtedly due to the fact that we have been taught for many years to believe that our forefathers represented
the highest ideals in statesmanship and wisdom and that the various constitutions—state and national—handed down to posterity should be regarded as unchangeable as the laws of the ancient Medes and Persians.

We do not detract one iota from the great patriotism, wisdom and statesmanship of our Revolutionary heroes,
if we honestly question in this 20th century, the advisability of retaining portions of our state and national constitutions and to make them conform more closely to modern conditions.

Our national constitution, drawn when the states had just passed from under the disadvantages of a monarchical government and when it was believed that the great bulk of the people were unfit to govern themselves, placed many checks in the path of legislation.
Our forefathers could not imagine the present situation, where state lines are practically ignored, commercially, and our nation has become one people, and not a group of state sovereignties. The degeneration of the Electoral College for the election of the President and Vice President from the high plane it first occupied, to that of an automatic cash register of today, is but one instance, showing that the statesmanship of a century ago is not sufficient for today, and the coming authority to allow the direct election of United States senators is another striking example.

In our own state we have two striking manifestations of the change in conditions, as laid down in our constitution, and as interpreted by the Supreme Court. The first refers to the serious handicap imposed on the levying of taxes. One hundred years ago, there was but little personal property, and the bulk of their modest taxes were received from real estate. Stocks and bonds and other evidences of "intangible" personal property were few and easily found, while such a thing as "double" taxation was unknown. It is fair to assume, therefore that the "equality of taxation" as laid down in the constitution did not have the same limits for our great grand fathers that the Supreme Court now imposes on us.
A change in our constitution in this respect is of paramount importance. The second serious handicap is the decision of the Court that as our constitution
calls for a "representative" government,
a state wide referendum is not lawful.
In view of the tremendous growth of the scheme of "popular" government,
this decision is of great and serious importance, altho little discussed at the present time. Unless a change is made in this clause of our constitution popular government will be seriously handicapped.

In view of these instances it is not high time, to begin to curtail a trifle
in our administration of the prophetic (?) statesmanship of our forefathers, as embodied in our fundamental laws, and to educate our children to believe that the highest patriotism does not consist in making a blind fetish of century old theories of government.

Governor Foss vetoes the Ellis Milk
Bill, ostensibly on two grounds—that the Legislature thereby abdicates its authority to make the laws, and because the state board of health, which executes the law has no discretion in its enforcement.

The governor again shows his lack of familiarity with our system of government by taking this ground. Our railroad commission, our gas and electric light commission, our state board of health, and local boards of health,
have exercised for many years the power of making regulations, confined to certain specified subjects, precisely the same authority granted the proposed milk administration board by the Ellis Milk Bill. The second objection of the governor is positively ridiculous, for there is hardly an executive board in the state, but what is required to administer regulations, in accordance with the law as laid down for them, and without power to make changes. The governor again shows his ignorance on matters and methods of government.

Newton is again experiencing the deadly dullness of midsummer. While it is impossible to give exact figures, it is certainly safe to say that fully one half of our residents have left the city, and some even put the proportion higher still. One marketman who has a regular list of 66 persons whom he calls upon the telephone each morning for orders, informs me that only 3 of his telephone customers are left. This higra from the city is ample evidence that Newton is still a purely residential city.

Mr. H. E. Hibbard and Mr. J. S.
Sumner are entitled to the thanks of the residents of Newton for removing the obnoxious billboards from their land on Nonantum Square. It is too bad that the full effect of Mr. Sumner's act is offset by the owners of the land in the rear allowing the billboards to be erected upon their property.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

The atmosphere on Beacon hill nowadays is not conducive to good legislation, the members being in an ugly and disgusted mood, due in part to the extraordinary and wholly unnecessary length of the session, and mostly to the erratic and vacillating attitude of Governor Foss. This was never more strikingly realized than his unexpected veto this week of the Ellis milk bill.

Mr. Ellis and Mr. Bothfield while in conference with the governor a few weeks ago on another matter, state that Mr. Foss turned to Mr. Ellis and asked after the milk bill, requested Mr.
Ellis to urge its passage in the Legislature, declared that it was a good bill and met with his approval. Then he vetoes it. Can you beat it? The governor's somersault is equalled by that of former representative Gardner, chairman of the Milk commission of last year, who wrote the report of the commission and drew himself a bill which is only different from the Ellis bill in designating a new commission to administer the law, instead of the state board of health named in the Ellis bill.
Now Mr. Gardner, who is master of the State Grange, declares that this bill will ruin the farmers, will cause a large expense to be placed on the producers (his own bill, by the way being much more expensive than the Ellis bill) and has been largely instrumental in stirring up the farmers on the matter. As a matter of fact, as Mr. Ellis states, his bill is drawn principally to protect the public health, to control the quality of outside the state milk, in the interests of consumers and producers alike and to create confidence in the public in the quality of the milk,
thereby increasing the consumption.
This would be done by an expense of $50,000 on the state tax, of which Metropolitan Boston pays two thirds and the remaining one third is largely paid by the cities of the state, leaving only a small portion of the tax to be paid by the strictly farming communities. The town of Petersham for instance would pay about eight dollars of the expense to the entire state tax caused by the Ellis bill. Newton which pays about 2 per cent of the state tax would therefore be taxed about $1000, and I doubt if anyone in this city would seriously object to this slight amount on our valuation of exceeding seventy millions of dollars, for the security which would be given the milk consumer by the provisions of the Ellis Milk bill. The veto, however, was sustained by the House yesterday, so that the whole matter must be fought over again next year.
The ladies who are interested in this matter have also caught the governor in several misstatements, and the governor has pompously demanded of them that they withdraw the charge. Not only do the ladies refuse to retract
but they back their statement up with the evidence of the person to whom the governor made the statement. Just one more instance of the foolishness of the charge that the Ellis milk bill would injure the milk producers of Massachusetts. The Boston board of health has investigated the milk situation in that city and finds that 5300 farms send milk to Boston, 2000 in Massachusetts and 3500 outside. Of the Massachusetts farms, the inspectors find but 200
with unsatisfactory conditions, or 10 per cent, while of the outside farms,
the percentages range from 20 per cent to 44 per cent unsatisfactory. It ought to be plain to the most ignorant that to require better conditions outside the state would undoubtedly drive the consumer to the Massachusetts producer, and that the low percentage of Massachusetts would be more quickly remedied than that of the out state farms.

It is rumored that the action of the Governor in refusing to re-nominate
Mr. Charles Warren, the efficient chairman of the Civil Service commission, has reconciled the Boston Democrats and that he will have their hearty support hereafter. The General Court has certainly sustained the Governor's vetoes more heartily for the past ten days than hitherto.

Most of the important legislation,
like the income tax, the New Haven tunnel bill, the recent agitation on the Shoe Machinery monopoly will either die between the two branches or go over to the next General Court. The workmen's compensation bill, which I mentioned last week, has been declared constitutional by the Supreme Court and has passed the Senate.

Great interest is being taken by the members of the Legislature in the canvas being made for the Republican nomination for governor by Lieut-Governor Frothingham, Speaker Walker and Representative White. Mr.
Frothingham, at present, seems to have a long lead, and it is even hinted that the vociferous Mr. White is ahead of the Speaker. Governor Foss has undoubtedly felt considerably in the public esteem the past two weeks. It was openly stated about July first that only a political earthquake could defeat the governor for re-election this fall. With the prorogation of the Legislature, and the return of its members to home life, considerable opposition will undoubtedly develop, as about every member is sore on the chief executive.

Mr. Louis A. Coolidge, treasurer of
the United Shoe Machinery Company, whose boom for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor was launched last week, now states that he is not a candidate and that the announcement was made without his consent. This leaves Mr. Robert Luce with a clear field for this nomination and subsequent election.

J. C. BRIMBLECOM.

TEMPEST IN TEAPOT.

The midsummer weather is unquestionably responsible for the prominence
given the Boston papers to a little affair near Eliot station, where a fence erected across a private right of way was torn down by parties accustomed to using it. The land in question is at the corner of Circuit avenue and Eliot street and was formerly used by the city for crushing stone. It has been standing idle for several years and at the suggestion of Mayor Hutchinson, three years ago, authority was given to sell it. A customer did not appear until this year, however, when it was bought by Mr. H. W. Ross and by him subsequently sold to Gemmare Bianco of Boston. While Circuit avenue is laid out as a public street from Boylston street to Eliot street, the formal lines do not follow the wagon path across the property, and Mr. Bianco erected a fence across the travelled road to prevent trespassing on his land.
The interference with their right to cross this property was resented by the residents of that neighborhood and the fence torn down this week. On the land is an old stone watering trough, which has been discarded for some time, and which will be removed if the city authorities deem it advisable. It is of little value. At a conference of the new owner and the city officials this morning, it was announced that the fence would not be erected again right away. Mr. Bianco also states that it is his intention to begin the construction of dwellings immediately.

DANGERS OF CURIOSITY.

Where there is a general fire alarm signal, such as a whistle or a bell, it is quite natural for people to run to the telephone to ask the operator or the fire station the location of the fire. In 99 cases out of 100 the calls are made by those whose controlling impulse is curiosity. They have no special interest at stake, but they would like to know where the fire is and all the details of it.

This curiosity might be pardoned if it did not involve more serious considerations. The making of such calls is apt to interrupt the work of the fire department; also tends to congest telephone traffic and in some cases to block calls that are of an imperatively emergency nature. When there is a rush of such calls, the operator sees before her simply a mass of lights or drops. She answers as fast as she can but there is nothing on the switchboard itself to tell her that one call is for a doctor in a life or death case, while another is for curiosity.

Where a business man has property located in the vicinity indicated by the fire alarm, it is proper that he should use the telephone to make inquiries regarding it. Where there is no such personal interest, however, it is highly desirable that people refrain from calling and leave the telephone lines open for the emergency use that always is a possibility of a fire.

FRUIT AND FLOWER MISSION.

The Fruit and Flower Mission continues its work throughout August and into September. Fruit and vegetables and small sums of money will be just as welcome as flowers, though flowers are earnestly desired. Money may be sent to Miss Kittie Thompson, 88 Oriston street, or to Miss Lizzie C. Allen, 56 Central avenue.

All other contributions should be sent Tuesday and Friday mornings to the Newtonville Railroad station before 9 o'clock.

Every member of the Newtonville Women's Guild should be represented by some contribution.

GERMAN LATCHKEYS.

Big Enough to Be Used as Weapons of Attack or Defense.

Locksmithing in Germany is today
as important a trade as plumbing, blacksmithing or the vocation of the barber, says our consul at Hanover in a recent report. The first lock and key were introduced into Prussia in the fourteenth century and caused a considerable sensation at the palace of the elector of Brandenburg. He found that by these devices he could do away with the guard at his private doors and thus materially reduce his household expenses. Since that day the schlosser, or locksmith, has been an essential factor in German life.

The present German house key could be used as a weapon of attack and defense, besides serving its original purpose. It weighs on an average about one-eighth of a pound, and as each person entitled to carry a house and corridor key has nearly a quarter of a pound of soft iron in his pocket it is conservatively estimated that the amount of iron in circulation in Germany in the pockets of the men and in the hand bags of women amounts to 2,665 tons, besides an additional 2,500 tons for the keys to the interior of German homes. Thus something over 5,000 tons of iron are put into keys of a size to be found nowhere in America. However large the house or number of the apartments, the outer door is locked promptly at 10 o'clock, and as the German spends many of his evenings out every person carries at least one of these massive keys to effect an entrance.

ANSWERED THE SIGNAL.

The King Sent the Reply, and the Cap- tain Kicked Himself.

Rear Admiral Sir Collin Keppel was given the command of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert by King Edward,
and on one occasion when the late king was on board his majesty thought he would like to steer the yacht for a little way.

Admiral Keppel took him to the wheel, and, having ascertained the proper course to steer, his majesty tried to keep the yacht in it, with rather poor success.

The vessel was being escorted by a squadron of cruisers, and the captain of one of these vessels, noticing the wobbly course of the Victoria and Albert, thought he would "tag" Admiral Keppel on his bad steering.

He signalled a surcote inquiry as to the erratic course of the yacht, and King Edward, seeing the string of flags go up, inquired their meaning.

Admiral Keppel went all the colors of the rainbow and tried to escape the question, but the king insisted. When at last he understood the meaning of the signal his majesty went off into peals of laughter, and after he had recovered a little he ordered a reply to be signalled.

A few minutes later the captain of the cruiser read this message: "Pray accept apologies, but am a bit out of practice.—Edward."

Then the captain retired to his cabin and kicked himself.—Pearson's Weekly.

Canes and Swords in Porto Rico.

Of all people perhaps none are more fond of canes or more skilled in their use than our fellow citizens of Porto Rico. The walking stick in that island would seem to mark social distinctions
among men as fads do among women.
Every Spaniard has a cane, the well
to do own several, and the gilded youth often have a small arsenal of walking sticks. The term "arsenal" is used ad-visedly, as the Porto Ricans, like the Spaniards, have quite a fondness for sword canes and dagger canes, and they make these with remarkable skill.
The blades of the finer specimens come from famous smiths in Toledo and other Spanish cities and are forged from the finest steel. Some are damascened, and others are inlaid with silver and gold; some have worked upon them the name of the owner and others the name of a patron saint.—Philadelphia Record.

All In Good Time.

Champ Clark at a dinner in Washington pleaded indulgence for a somewhat rambling speaker.
"He'll arrive," he said, "if you'll give him time. He is like Dr. Thirldy.
"Dr. Thirldy was dividing up his sermon into appropriate heads one Sunday morning when a member of the congregation shouted insistently:
"Meat, man! Give us meat!"
"Well," said Dr. Thirldy promptly,
"hold on, then, till I'm done carving!"
—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

A Steady Watch.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gloompl at dinner, looking down at her watch, but speaking to Mr. Gloompl on the other side of the table, "my watch hasn't varied a second in a week."
"Remarkable!" said Mr. Gloompl.
"How did you get it to vary so little?"
"I broke the mainspring."

Politeness.

True politeness is that which when a man is lying to you and you know he is lying impels you to listen to him as though you believed him and impels him to go on lying as though he believes you believe him.—Chicago Post.

A Left Handed One.

He—A handsome woman smiled at me yesterday. She—Well, it is possible for even a handsome woman to have a sense of the ridiculous.—Scranton Tribune-Herald.

A beautiful eye makes silence eloquent; a kind eye makes contradiction an assent; an enraged eye makes beauty deformed.—Addison.

The Sound of It.

The ladies' aid ladies were talking about a conversation they had overheard before the meeting between a man and his wife.

"They must have been to the zoo," said Mrs. A., "because I heard her mention a trained deer."

"Goodness me!" laughed Mrs. B.
"What queer hearing you must have!
They were talking about going away,
and she said, 'Find out about the train,
dear.'"

"Well, did anybody ever?" exclaimed
Mrs. C. "I am sure they were talking about muskies, for she said 'a trained ear' as distinctly as could be."

The discussion began to warm up,
and in the midst of it the lady herself appeared. They carried their case to her promptly and asked for a settlement.

"Well, well, you do beat all!" she exclaimed, after hearing each one. "I'd been out to the country overnight and was asking my husband if it rained
here last night."

After which the three disputants retired, abashed and in silence.—W. J.
Lampton in Lipplacott's.

A Road Made in a Day.

Lothian road, a prominent street in Edinburgh, was made in a single day.
Sir James Clerk of Penicuik bet with a friend that he would between sunrise and sunset prepare the line of road, extending nearly a mile in length by twenty paces in breadth. It happened to be in the winter season, when many men were unemployed. He had no difficulty in collecting several hundreds of these on the ground at the appointed time, when he gave them all a plentiful breakfast of porter, whisky and bread and cheese, after which,
just as the sun rose, he ordered them to set to work, some to tear down inclosures, others to unroof and demolish cottages and a considerable portion to bring earth to fill up a great hollow to the required height. The inhabitants, dismayed at so vast a force and so summary a mode of procedure, made no resistance. So active were the workmen that before sunset the road was sufficiently formed to allow Sir
James to drive his carriage over it.

Easy to Make a Gun.

The ameer of Afghanistan once started a gun factory of which he was very proud and placed it under the supervision of a smart Yankee who could keep his business to himself. Ameer Khan, one of the ameer's chiefs, came in to see the factory one day. The Yankee showed him around, and at the end of the inspection Ameer Khan said:

"This looks very simple. Now tell me just how to make a gun, and I will set up a factory in my own province on my return home."

"It looks simple," said the Yankee,
"and it is simple. To build a gun you make a hole first; then you wrap some iron around it, and there you are."

Ameer Khan shook his head. "Ah," he said, "there is plenty of air for the hole in my province, but how the iron should be wrapped around it is a thing
none of my people know."

Bruce at Bannockburn.

Robert Bruce was the descendant of a Norman. He was half an Englishman and half a Scotchman, and by his mother's side he was a claimant to the Scottish crown. After many daring adventures and rude perils, borne up throughout by strong persevering conscience and an ardent love of liberty, Bruce was able to get together a patriotic army to meet the English at Bannockburn in 1314. Before the battle began the Scottish army knelt down in prayer. Edward II. was looking on. He turned to his favorite knight and said: "Argentine,
the rebels yield. They beg for mercy."
"They do, my liege," the reply was,
"but not from you."

The battle ended not only in a victory, but in a rout.—Samuel Smiles'
"Duty."

Poetry.

It is a shallow criticism that would define poetry as confined to literary productions in rhyme and meter. The written poem is only poetry talking, and the statue, the picture and the musical composition are poetry acting. Milton and Goethe at their desks were not more truly poets than Pindarus with his chisel, Raphael at his easel or deaf Beethoven bending over his piano, inventing and producing strains which he himself could never hope to hear.— Ruskin.

Sins of the Fathers.

Fair Girl—I am sure papa would not object to you, but I am afraid mamma will. She says your family have depraved tastes. Rich Grocer's Son—Good gracious! Where did she get that idea? Fair Girl—I think she judges by the butter that your father used to recommend as good.

Hoist With His Own Petard.
"Why, Harkins, where have you been? You look like a wreck."
"I know it. My twin brother and I had a quarrel, and I hired a bruiser to lick him. The fellow mixed us up, and here I am."

His Present Love.
Wife—I came across some of your old love letters today. How you loved me, Harry! Husband—Yes. Is supper ready? I'm awfully hungry.

Etiquette.
Mrs. Blank—Is your husband going to Mrs. Jason's funeral? Mrs. Dash—Decidedly not! She never returned my last call.

Poverty wants some things, luxury
man, swears all things.—Cowley.

MR. MOORE DEAD.

Mr. Stephen Wallace Moore, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Moore of Oakleigh road, died on Wednesday after a long illness with tuberculosis. Mr.
Moore has made a valiant struggle against this disease living for several years at Colorado Springs, Col., in an effort to effect a cure. Mr. Moore was 44 years of age and a native of Sussex, Mass. He was educated in the Newton schools and the Mass. Institute of Technology, and always ranked with the leaders of his class. He married Miss Grace Safford of Newton and is survived by her and a son and daughter.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Following the minstrels at B. F. Keith's Theatre will be another extraordinary attraction in the Old Timers' Variety Show, among those taking part being some of the most famous actors and actresses before the American public, both on the legitimate and the vaudeville stage. All will go back to the early days when vaudeville was known as "variety".
These old timers have already appeared in New York, Philadelphia, and other cities, and made a tremendous hit.
The surprising part of it being how really up to date some of them are.
One of the foremost is Mrs. Annie Yea mans, who goes back to the days of Harrigan & Hart; Lottie Gilson, known as "The Little Magnet", who sang her famous "Sunshine of Paradise Alley"; Maggie Cline of "Throw him down McClusky" fame; Gus Williams,
the old time German comedian; Ward & Curran, who are still playing their "Terrible Judge"; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thorne, who will present an old time vaudeville sketch; Fox and Ward, two of the oldest blackface comedians in the country; Allen & Clarke, a musical team that dates back to the old days;
and others.

Castle Square—The final week of Mr. Craig's third successful season begins on Monday with a revival of "A Bachelor's Honeymoon." The Castle Square Theatre will thus have been open continuously for forty nine successive weeks, and it will be closed but a short interval of time in order to make ready for the opening of the new season of 1911-1912. "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" is a lively farce in which the audience will find plenty of opportunity for laughter. It is funny from the start, and its ingenuity of plot, its witty dialogue and its amusing characters place it among the best plays of its kind. In laughter giving power it is fully the equal of "All the Comforts of Home" and "Are You a Mason?" The new season at the Castle Square under Mr. Craig's direction will open on the first of September, and due announcement will be made of the play selected for that purpose.

Norumbega Park—Norumbega Park will have as its attraction in the magnificent open air theatre for the coming week, every afternoon and evening, beginning Monday, July 31, another musical comedy by Matthew Ott who is always so successful in appealing to the risibilities of Norumbega patrons. The title is "The Purple Lady", a musical nonsensicality which is said to be the best of the Ott series. To make this attraction all the more inviting Phil Ott, always a popular comedian in these Ott musical comedies, is announced as the star comedian. The role played by Phil Ott is that of Whitmark Von Tilzer Remick, a composer of horrible ditties. The story is that of Piper Mum, a retired travelling man, who with his wife and his accumulated savings is trying to discover the land of happiness by journeying to the famous Christy Gardens. Mrs. Mum is jealous and objects strenuously to the attentions that her spouse lavishes upon Phyllis Vichy, an actress. In order to satisfy the demands of Phyllis, Piper gets a sum of money from his wife, saying that he needs it to bury his dead sister in 'Frisco. Everything goes nicely until without warning, the sister suddenly appears upon the scene and throws all into a delicious tangle. It is described as one good long laugh with beautiful girls, elaborate costume effects, and picturesque stage settings. Among the musical numbers are: "My Irish Prima Donna", "Daffy Dill Trio", "Follow Me", "Girls, Girls, Lovey Joe", "Hid By the Light of the Moon", "Pussy Cat", "Steamboat Bill", "Land of Harmony", and "My Beautiful Lady". The new Grape Arbor Cafe, canoeing and boating, the Zoological Garden, merry-go-round, swing court, Casino, rifle range, Chalet of Wonders, etc., continue popular features of Norumbega Park's many attractions.
